Constitution Clarified, Senate Given Power Over ASUN Boards

The ASUN Senate now has the power to approve or reject any proposed action of the Finance Control Board, Publications Board, the Graduate Manager, and the books of any organization which uses ASUN money or makes money for the ASUN.

This means, for instance, that if the Senate does not approve the Finance Control Board budget it can be sent back for recommendation by the committee along with the recommendations of the Senate as to the desired changes.

This interpretation of Article 2, Section 3, Letter F of the ASUN Constitution, which states that the Senate shall have the right "to review the actions" of these groups, was made last week by the ASUN Executive Committee. The committee, which is composed of the ASUN president, first and second vice-presidents, and a Senate representative, has among its powers the right to interpret the ASUN Constitution.

Formerly the Senate had no control over the actions of these groups. This interpretation will give more power to the Senate and will serve to bring these ASUN offices under a more central control.

However, the Senate cannot change any action by these groups. If the Senate rejects the proposals of any of these organizations and the organization also rejects the Senate recommendations, the Senate does not have the power to order that its suggestions be accepted. A compromise must be reached between the two groups.

"This is not a foolproof answer to the problem of who has the authority; but this makes it much better than the way it was before. Formerly there was no control at all over these ASUN departments," said Keith Lee, ASUN president who serves as the head of the Executive Committee.

Military Ball Queen Honored

SUE SONDEREGGER was crowned 1964 Military Ball Queen at the dance by President Armstrong last Saturday night.

Cadet officers, students, military personnel, and educational dignitaries attending the 36th Annual Military Ball Saturday night were once again thrilled by all the features of this event.

Complete with prizes, queens, VIPs, promotions, entertainment, decorations, and music provided by Al Bell's orchestra, this year's ball was billed as "Colossal".

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of Miss Sue Sonderegger, nineteen-year-old sophomore elementary education major from Ely, Nevada, as Military Ball Queen by University of Nevada President Charles J. Armstrong. Miss Sonderegger represented the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Her coronation followed the promotion of Robert D. Parrish to the rank of Cadet Colonel in charge of the Army ROTC Brigade at the University of Nevada. Colonel Parrish is a former commander of the Sierra Guard and a member of the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity. He is in the College of Business Administration and is a management major. He is married to the former Muriel Ellis and resides at 755 Winston Drive.

Guests drove into the parking area of the Elks Club where a large sign welcomed them to the Ball. After having their cars parked by members of the Army ROTC Sierra Guard Drill Team, the distinguished guests of the University of Nevada Cadet Officers Club were met at the door by the Senior Army ROTC cadets. Once inside, the guests viewed the Civil War Centennial Exhibit and then moved on into the elaborately decorated ballroom, whose draped ceiling was carried out in a beautiful web-like decor suspended over the dance floor.

At intermission Cadet Major Art Kess got the events under way by introducing the Mariachi Los Camperos singing group, courtesy of the Holiday Hotel. After the entertainment, Cadet Captain Larry Worcester, President of the Cadet Officers Club, escorted University of Nevada President Charles J. Armstrong and Colonel Robert L. Gundlach, Professor of Military Science at the University of Nevada, to the stage.

Cadet Major Kess read the special order naming Robert D. Parrish as new Brigade Commander. Then the climax of the evening arrived. Under the traditional saber arch formed by eight cadets, the lovely queen candidates were escorted to the stage. The special order promoting all queen candidates to the rank of honorary Lieutenant Colonel was read, and the name of the queen was announced. President Armstrong crowned Miss Sonderegger, and Colonel Gundlach presented her with a bouquet of roses.

Other queen candidates included: Suzan Clark, Juniper Hall; Vicki Geertsema, Gamma Phi Beta; Marsha Marvel, Delta Delta; Jane McCarthy, Pi Beta Phi; Carolyn Reese, Manzanita Hall; Sophie Sheppard, off-campus independent; and Donna Weaver, Artemisia Hall.

After the coronation, the senior cadets with their dates participated in the Grand March led by President Armstrong and Queen Sue. They led the group under the saber arch to the dance floor, where they commenced to dance to a beautiful waltz.

All the excitement and pageantry of promotions, the coronation, and military tradition will live long in the memories of the more than 1500 persons attending the Colossal 36th Annual Military Ball.

Luboff Ticket Sales Today

The popular Norman Luboff choir will appear Friday, Dec. 4, at the State Building. Tickets for the event will go on sale in the main office of the Student Union today at 12 noon.

The choir on tour consists of 30 virtuoso professional singers accompanied by four very versatile instrumentalists. The repertoire of the group is virtually unlimited.

Except for the classical selections, Mr. Luboff arranges all of the material himself, and is especially noted in this day of "echo chambers" and other electronic devices, for the clarity and naturalness of his arrangements, and the eminently singable style.

MELVIN BELLI, controversial defense lawyer for Jack Ruby, will lecture tonight on "Dallas Justice."

THANKS, WOLF PACK

The members of the Nevada Wolfpack have had little to cheer about this season, with the exception of Saturday's victory over Chico State.

The team received little or no support from the student body as the season progressed and the coach was the target for much unwarranted abuse. Now the final game has been played and the members of the team return to their regular schedule of studies and extracurricular activities.

They do so quietly, and without fanfare. When you play for a losing team, you receive very little in the way of thanks. And yet the members of this year's Nevada football squad deserve a special "thank you" from the student body.

They did play every game, win or lose, as best they could. They didn't give up and most certainly they were a credit to Nevada.

Six Wolf Pack players deserve particular praise for their effort this season. All of them played key roles in Nevada's victory over Chico. They are six seniors who have played their last college game at Nevada.

So to the entire team, and especially Dan Acuna, Al McDaniels, Allen Crawford, Bob Herron, Gene Duck and Dennis Fitzpatrick, we, the student body, extend our sincere "thank you."

J Prof And Student Make Good

Prof. A. L. Higginbotham, chairman of the journalism department, and Bruce Pozzi, President of the University of Nevada Undergraduate Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, will attend the Sigma Delta Chi national convention in Kansas City December 2 through 5.

Professor Higginbotham will end his second term as Vice-President of Undergraduate Affairs for the national journalism society. He will attend the convention representing the National Board for Undergraduate Affairs, the University of Nevada Undergraduate Chapter and the Northern Nevada Professional Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

Pozzi will represent the University of Nevada Undergraduate Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

The Muehlebach Hotel in Kansas City will be the site for the convention. Representatives will take part in panels and discussions, and tour the city's newspapers and radio and television stations.

Professor Higginbotham will attend National Executive Council meetings and a meeting of Undergraduate Chapter Advisors. He will also preside over the awards ceremony at the final banquet.

Pozzi and other undergraduate representatives will meet for an interview with Harry S. Truman and a tour of the Truman Library in Independence, Missouri.

- THANKSGIVING RECESS

Pardon My Snake

By Hampton Young

'Twas an excellent weekend for getting no studying done, wasn't it? To top off two dances that were completely devastating to anybody who indulges in suds, the Nevada Wolf Pack won its first game of the season. My equilibrium is totally upset.

A lot of credit goes to the Nevada grid-ders, who finally got together for the first time since they've been together. The boys really clicked, a little late perhaps, but better late than never.

THE SUNDOWNER GOBBLER'S BALL was utterly unbelievable. That huge hall was completely jam-packed. Everybody just had the time of their lives. It's really great when you can put an estimated crowd of 600 together, and no trouble breaks out. The Downers did a good job of keeping everyone under control.

One little girl I know, a cute little thing, found herself in the women's room at the dance, her hair somewhat mussed, yet completely devoid of a comb. She was staring helplessly into the mirror, when some Sir Galahad chanced upon the wrong room. Perceiving her problem he flourished a comb from his pocket and combed her hair for her. She was happy and she left: he was happy and he followed on out — both unperturbed.

THE MILITARY BALL was also a pretty good dance. It too was immensely crowded, but it was more of a refined affair. Nobody did anything vulgar like jumping up and releasing their inhibitions on a wild contorting dance or yelling loudly. Everybody just sat there and drank.

And a lot of suave, sophisticated young ladies and gentlemen were there, too. I could just read one young man's thoughts as he walked from the big elegant bar to the table next to mine: "I am a freshman and I am at my first big college affair. My date is a freshman, too. She is snowed. She thinks I am a courteous, polite, mannerly, urbane, ingratiating, polished, cultivated, refined, gallant, chivalrous, knightly, honey-tongued sophomore of gentle breeding. She is ugly.

"I am bringing her a drink from the bar. With a debonair bow and good grace I place the refreshment directly in front of her fat little hand. She places her other plump hand over a little smirk on her face with a silly movement and asks me what the drink is. Suavely I inform her, 'I din't know. I asked the bartender for a cocktail and this is what he handed me.' I am cool . . ."

IN THE NAME OF A DEMOCRATIC society and a free press this must be said: A young girl informed me at the dance that she had never seen Colonel Gundlach before. "Now I know why he doesn't want his cadet to have long hair. He doesn't have any," she mused.

There was sure a lotta brass at the dance; I even saw a general. I felt as though I was in some kinda top secret meeting. Well, isn't that how the Pentagon conducts their top secret meetings?

ON THE OTHER HAND skiing is at an all time high. This weekend it was sunny and beautiful in the majestic, white-tipped Sierras. As a friend of mine was stopped in the middle of a ski slope this weekend, a young lady came slowly toward him in a faltering snowplow. "I think I'm gonna need some help," she commented not quite hysterically to her fellow bunny who was plugging along behind her. She then executed a not-too-dashing egg-beater fall ending up in a not-too-graceful position about 10 feet below my friend. "Well, you need help now," chuckled my buddy as she just glared at him while trying to blow a dab of snow off the end of her nose.

No One Asked Me But . . .

By Sig Rogich

Does anyone ever watch "Shindig" on television every Wednesday night? Here is a real baout for all the "grease" fans. All the rock and roll possible, in one show. I'm diggin' it . . .

The Jade Room continued to pack 'em in last weekend. Good times for everyone. Music-a-plenty, tasties to match, and a bowling game for the sports buff. I ask you, what could be better?

And don't say I didn't tell you so. The Baltimore Colts are the new Western Division champions in the NFL.

For all the Pete Griffith fans, the last chapter of our hero's book sees the jovial little fellow bowing out. Too bad. But he went down swinging. . . .

Thanksgiving is finally here. And Las Vegas will really have the wild times for all those who may travel "down South." Parties will begin at 6 p. m. Wednesday and end 6 p.m. Sunday.

The Wolf Pack ended a long nightmare in fine fashion, clobbering Chico State. "This could be the start of something wonderful." GUARANTEED TO HAPPEN . . .

Teachers will really go crazy on the homework, now that they realize we have a few days to ourselves . . .

Someone will swear that Santa Claus is a wino, because his nose is so red . . .

Michigan will clobber the West Coast representative in the Rose Bowl . . .

Those students that travel home to "see their family" won't see them but to eat Thanksgiving turkey . . .

There will be a new campaign directed against the dining commons' food . . .

The campus cop will go crazy without any tickets to write for four days . . .

INS AND OUTS . . .

In: Those sickening colored stockings that girls wear . . .

Out: Bare legs . . .

Watching Bonanza is In but only if you have your cowboy boots on It's really In if you know the words to the theme . . .

Sneezing while making Out is In . . .

Wearing fraternity sweatshirts is Out, but In if they are dirty and stink . . .

Also very In — drinking gravy out of a glass . . .

Meat sandwiches are really In, like liver on steak with a side order of ham . . .

Here's a mad one: Newest In dating technique: Calling Sunday for Saturday, the day before. (Hi, Baby, are you busy yesterday?)

Also very In—calling to make a date in advance. (Could I see you, say, at the turn of the century?)

Going to the movies is Out. It's only In if the movie has been consored by your church . . .

When you're with someone you don't like and he tries to kiss you it's In to get a bloody nose . . .

But it's even more In, to let it drip on him or her . . .

It's In to plan a party at someone elses house . . . and not let them know about it . . .

Steve Gomes, TUB publicity committee chairman, has announced that starting December 1st free posters will be given to any organization that sends a member to work on the publicity committee for two hours every week for a minimum of four weeks. This service will continue as long as the organization sends a representative to work with the committee.

International Switch

The old CCUN Club, the Collegiate Council of the United Nations, has been replaced by the International Club on campus. The membership is the same, as only the name has been changed. Until three years ago the CCUN was considered a part of a political organization and as such could not get money from the University to further its programs. This led to its disassociation with the United Nations and the club's original purpose of promoting the United Nations on campus. However, it still retained the name of CCUN.

At the beginning of this year it was felt that its name gave no hint as to the club's purpose, which is helping the foreign students become accustomed to American college life and helping to establish good international relations.

The International Club is having a skating party at Squaw Valley tomorrow evening at Squaw Valley.

Those who wish to attend will meet at 6 p.m. in front of Morrill Hall. The transportation will be in private cars.

The skating will last until 10 p.m., when the group will return to Reno for a spaghetti feed.

It is not necessary to own skates. They can be rented at Blythe Arena in Squaw Valley.

Delicious Substitute

Judy Norcott was chosen as the new Wolf Pack cheerleader by the University of Nevada Rally Committee last Wednesday.

As the first alternate in last Spring's tryouts, Miss Norcott will replace Kathy Graham, who withdrew from school. Miss Norcott will assist cheerleaders Judie Walker, Sandy Boulett, Gary Nelson, and John McSweeney.

A senior, Miss Norcott is a member of Delta Delta Delta and Little Sisters of Minerva.

Rally committee members are co-chairmen Bill Sinnott and Mary Solaro, Jack Raycraft, Karen Gerwin, Jim Korrison, Joel Tew, Blanie Yoho, and Susan Clark.

A Lotta Dough

The University of Nevada Book Fund Drive has reached a total of $79,000 towards its goal of $100,000 by the end of the year.

If this goal is reached, the funds will actually be worth $300,000 when the Fleischmann Foundation matches the drive's dollars two to one.

The Book Fund Drive is being sponsored by the University of Nevada Alumni Association, headed by Milton Sharp and Coe

Swobe, and the Friends of the University of Nevada Library, headed by Clark Guild, Jr.

The drive began August 1, 1963 and was scheduled to end August 1, 1964, but will continue until the end of the year, said Director of Libraries David W. Heron.

The Library has already bought approximately $35,000 worth of books with an average purchase price of $9.50 each.

YWCA Meeting

The Asilomar leadership conference will be the topic for discussion at the Wednesday, November 25th noon luncheon meeting of the campus YWCA. Yvette Hash will preside over the meeting, which will be held in the Truckee Room of the Student Union.

The conference is sponsored by the Pacific-Southwest region of YWCA and YMCA and is open to men and women attending colleges and universities in Nevada, California and Hawaii. The theme of this year's conference is "The 70's: Your Promise or Prison?" and will be carried out in a series of seminars.

Summer Program In Broadcasting Offered By The 'Voice Of America'

A summer trainee program in broadcasting is being offered to interested students by the Voice of America. If chosen, the student may work in one or more of five fields of broadcasting. The five fields are:

1. Writing and Editing

Positions in this area include writing, rewriting and editing of news stories, commentaries and the like for radio broadcasting.

2. Translating and Adapting

Positions here involve the adaptation of radio scripts and other materials in English into a foreign language for broadcast purposes.

3. Special Events

Activities in this area include obtaining and auditioning live or recorded broadcast material; evaluating it, and then selecting from it those portions appropriate for international broadcasting.

4. Announcing

The announcer vocally participates in radio broadcasts in a foreign language or in English, for live and recorded programs.

5. Production

Producers are concerned with the technical and artistic interpretation of program requirements into the radio medium, including program casting and rehearsal, tape editing, scheduling production, directing arrangements for production setups, sound and musical effects, and directing all studio activities from the control room during broadcast.

To qualify the student must be a citizen of the United States, must be pursuing courses in Journalism, Foreign Affairs, Government, Foreign Language and/or Area Studies. They must have a good academic standing. They must have a good working knowledge of a foreign language and plan to continue their college work in the fall of 1965. Preferably they should be at least Juniors in college.

They are required to be able to write competently in English and/or a foreign language, to be able to acquire information about different subjects and arrange it in broadcasting format, to have and be able to apply a knowledge of the history, customs and thinking of the American people and United States foreign policy to radio programming, to have a comprehensive knowledge of the culture, mores, current developments and thinking of the people in the area of broadcast reception, to have a speaking voice suitable for international broadcasting in English or in the language of the area of broadcasting reception, and to have a strong interest in international broadcasting.

Students hired under the program will be appointed at three grade levels. Undergraduates will be hired at a salary rate of $4,480 a year. Those with a bachelor's degree and planning to start graduate work in the fall of 1965 will be hired at a salary of $5,000 per year. Those having completed at least one year of graduate work will be hired at a salary rate of $6,050 per year. They will be assigned to the area of broadcasting for which they are best suited.

To apply for the program the applicant must complete a test obtainable in the Office of Student Affairs.

In the immortal words of Sammy Small . . . "Oh well, a guy can always join the Army."

Students Revolt on Berkeley Banned Political Activity

BERKELEY (CPS)—New demonstrations flared on the University of California campus as student groups opposed to the university's decision to ban political activity from the campus ended what they termed a "self-imposed moratorium on political activity."

University officials retaliated by dissolving the student-faculty administration committee on Campus Political Activity, which had been reviewing the university's policies governing political action on campus since early October. The university's administration also threatened to take disciplinary action against the students and organizations violating them.

The Free Speech Movement (FSM), the federation of student organizations protesting the ban, issued a statement saying it was resuming demonstrations because negotiations in the committee had deadlocked and appeared headed "for a long series of radical disagreements."

"We must exercise our rights so that the University is not permitted to deny us those rights for any long period and so that our political organizations can function to their maximum capacity," the FSM statement said.

Demonstrations resumed Monday, November 9, and continued throughout the week. Members of the Free Speech Movement set up tables on the steps of Sproul Hall, the university Administration Building, which was the scene of an all-night sit-in last October, and began soliciting membership and funds in violation of university rules. The next day they were joined by a number of graduate teaching assistants who staged a sympathy demonstration.

University officials took the names of about 75 students involved in Monday's protest, and in a statement issued that evening by university President Clark Kerr and Berkeley Chancellor Edward Strong said "students participating in violation of rules will be subject to penalties through established procedures."

They did not spell out what "established procedures" were, but eight students involved in similar activities last October 2 were placed on indefinite suspension. An agreement ending the October 2 demonstrations stipulated in part that their case would be reviewed by the academic senate. A specially formed committee is presently doing so.

In their statement, Kerr and Stroug said the FSM "has abrogated the agreement of October 2 and by reason of the abrogation the Committee on Campus Political Activity is dissolved."

They said that in the future they "would seek advice on rules governing political action on campus" from the student senate and the faculty senate as both groups "have called for the use of peaceful and orderly procedures in settling disputes."

"We welcome proposals from all interested groups," they said.

The statement said the University of California "is devoted to rational discussion, to law and order, and to freedom for students and faculty matched with responsibility in the use of this freedom."

The FSM received support in its stand from about 200 graduate teaching assistants, who on Tuesday, November 10, set up tables on the Sproul Hall steps and solicited money and new members for the movement in violation of the rules.

There were representatives from every academic department among an estimated 1,000 students observing the protest, and there was loud cheering as each department announced its support of the movement.

The present dispute over campus political activity started last September, when the university told student political organizations that they could no longer distribute literature, recruit membership or solicit funds at the Bancroft-Telegraph entrance to the campus, a place where such activity had taken place for some time.

A series of demonstrations protesting the action was staged in early October culminating with a 32-hour sit-in around a police car which attracted several thousand spectators and moved nervous university officials to call out nearly 400 riot police.

Exactly why the university decided to enforce the ban, which it said it was doing under a clause in the California constitution that prohibits it from participating in any secular activity as an institution, is not clear.

It was felt, however, that the ban grew out of the unusually heavy amount of political activity that took place on the campus this summer. During the Republican National Convention, students were recruited to demonstrate for Scranton and picket against Goldwater.

Wolf Pack Trounces Chico State 38-6

The University of Nevada football team won its first game of the season Saturday afternoon against the Chico State Wildcats in Chico. The win was the first of the season for the Wolf Pack. This game broke their nine-game losing streak of the year and their eleven-game losing streak over the last two years. Nevada scored the most points they have scored in any single game of the year against the Wildcats by posting 38 points on the scoreboard. The final score was Nevada 38 and the Chico State Wildcats 6.

Dave Deyer, the Nevada quarterback, had a good day and hit on six of 12 passes for a total of 157 yards. He also hit for three touchdown passes and one conversion attempt.

Nevada marched 86 yards for their first score early in the game. Art Bayer ran for 30 yards followed by Al McDaniels, who started on offense for the first time this year and scooted for 33 yards. Fullback Danny Acuna pushed the ball across from the two-yard line for the score.

Nevada hit the scoreboard again in the first half when Dyer threw to Al McDaniels on a 64-yard pass and run. Little Alfie ran away from the Chico pursuers.

Chico came out of the dressing room at half time pepped up and quickly took control of the ball and marched 71 yards in nine plays for the score. Chico tried for a two-point conversion but the ball was thrown incomplete.

Upon regaining possession of the ball the Wolf Pack marched through Wildcat territory for 73 yards and a touchdown. Dyer hit Acuna on a pass of more than 30 yards to spark the drive. Acuna once again ran the ball over for the score, this time from the six-yard line. Nevada's attempt to run for the conversion failed and the Pack led 22 to 6.

Acuna intercepted the ball and put the Pack back in the driver's seat. Dyer quickly threw to Jack but they all missed. The play was nullified by a penalty.

Nevada's first win of the season helped to keep Chico's record perfect. Chico did not win a game this year.

Wolf Pack Boxers Begin Practice

Practice began last week for the 1965 Wolf Pack boxing team. Coach Jim Olivas has started an extensive rebuilding program for this season.

This year's team has lost three men who were 1964 California Intercollegiate Boxing Conference champions. They are Jim Evans, J. R. Curry and Skip Houk.

Evans, a heavyweight, and Curry, lightweight, are not in school. Houk has used up his eligibility.

Also gone by graduation are Dave Stix, Larry Malone, and John Clark. Middleweight champ John McSweeney is a question mark for 1965.

Competing in the CIBC this year will be Stanford, University of California at Berkeley, Chico State, and Nevada.

The first tourney will be at Chico, January 8.

sition and rambled 90 yards thru the Chico team. Each member of the Chico team had a shot at him Schwella in the end zone for the fourth Pack TD. Herron ran the ball across for the conversion and the score was a lopsided 30 to 6 in favor of the Pack.

McDaniels took a Chico punt and returned it 50 yards through the Wildcats defense to the Chico four. Al Crawford took over the reins of the team from Dave Dyer and hit Dennis Fitzpatrick on a four-yard pass in the end zone. Crawford then ran the keeper for the two-point conversion to end the scoring.

The Wolf Pack almost had another score when Crawford took

Nevada to Remain Member of FWC

The University of Nevada will not drop out of the Far Western Conference.

Dr. G. A. Broten, Director of the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department, and Glenn "Jake" Lawlor, Director of Athletics, both said the current rumor of Nevada leaving the conference is false.

Broten said the idea "has not been discussed or even thought about."

"Unless I am blind or there is something happening I do not know about, the rumor is completely false," stated Lawlor.

The Intercollegiate Athletic Board held a meeting a week ago and the idea was not brought up. If it was to have been considered the plan would have been discussed at that time.

Houk Ends Unbeaten Season; Nevada Places Second In Meet

Nevada's undefeated cross country runner, Skip Houk, kept his record for the year unmarred by racing home over three hundred yards ahead of his nearest opponent in the Far Western Conference meet held in San Francisco last Saturday. Houk not only beat his opponents badly but also beat the Conference record by 46 seconds. Skip Houk's new mark is 19 minutes and 57 seconds. Skip flashed off his first mile in 4:25.

Nevada was unable to win the Conference crown due to the strong Sacramento State squad. Sacramento's Sommers was second behind Houk in 20:42. Sac State also had the fourth and fifth place finishers as well.

Sacramento scored just 29 points in winning the Conference title. Nevada was second with 80 points followed by the Cal Aggies with 92, then came San Francisco State with 101, Chico State with 119, Humboldt State with 131, Cal State at Hayward with 171, and Cal State at Sonoma with 206 points.

In the individual honors Humboldt's Ferlatte was third, Sac State's Nelson was fourth, Davis' Furst was fifth, San Francisco's Dalton sixth, Hooper of Sac State was seventh, Kelly of Sonoma was eighth, and Trujillo of Chico was ninth.

Steve Regas of Nevada was running in strong position when he fell and was trampled by the rest of the runners. Cut and bleeding, Regas got up and finished 27th.

Other Nevada runners that finished were Frank Lemus in twelfth position, Mike Sorenson fourteenth, and Tom Beardsley twenty-sixth.

Coach Dick Dankworth said that Houk's performance was "absolutely tremendous." Dankworth now plans to enter Houk in the forthcoming NCAA "university division" meet that will be held in Fresno this coming Wednesday.

... don't pour it down the side?
(We'd rather you wouldn't)

Of course, a lot of people do pour beer down the side of the glass. They say it keeps the head down.

It sure does. And we think that's a shame.

Maybe it sounds silly, but we spend more dollars on just the bubbles than any other brewery in America. Instead of pumping them in mechanically, we let Budweiser create its own bubbles with our exclusive Beechwood Ageing and natural carbonation. It takes a lot longer to do it this way. But it's worth it.

When those bubbles get together at the top of your glass you've got a better head, a cleaner taste, a smoother, more drinkable beer. Budweiser even smells better (really ... just take a sniff next time you pour).

So let that Budweiser fall right down the center of your glass. Let it splash around and froth and foam. We went to a whale of a lot of trouble brewing the finest beer on earth, and we'd hate to think you'd missed even one little bubble.

Budweiser®
that Bud...that's beer!
