The Minority Report By Mike Sloan

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles on student government.)

Every time senate meets, or for that matter, every time necessity compels me to attend a Publications Board meeting, I find myself wondering about student government.

I keep thinking of the wasted time and effort expended under the pretense of working for the government by the students for the students and of the students. Student government at Nevada has no real goals, no real meaning. Rather it is a collection of tee and organizations that are "big-talk little-work" committed simply because they have always been maintained.

The contribution of the ASUN senate to the well-being of the student body has been negligible this year, and in other years. Likewise, the Publications Board has demonstrated little or no inclination to do anything this year, except procrastinate on the Brushfire, and listen to the same reports over and over again.

Yet I'm told by student politicians, and campus leaders that student government is indispensable. They contend, almost hysterically, that senate and its related oards and committees are the only things that prevent the University administration from complete dictatorial powers over the students. And by thus stating the case for student government, these people has defeated the whole purpose of student self regulation.

If for example, senate meets every two weeks just to show the administration that it's meeting, what have we gained. Exactly nothing. The members of the administration are not really as sinister and "power-mad" as some people would have us believe. They are concerned with only one thing, the education and development of the students attending the University.

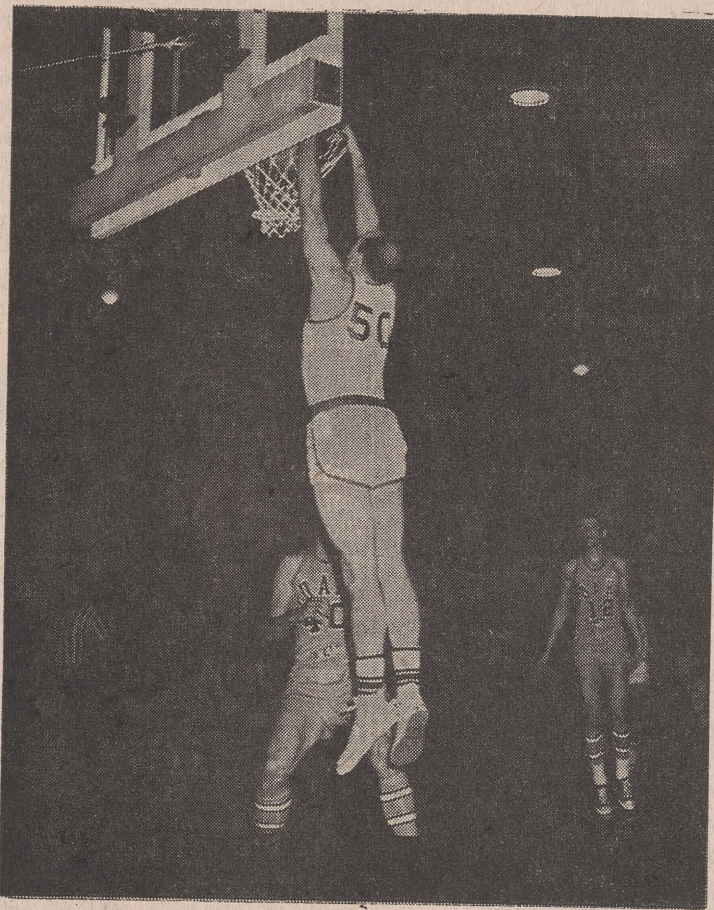

Student government exists at the pleasure of the Board of Re-

Underdog Nevada Wins 1st Sacramento State Next

The University of Nevada, with fast breaks and timely shooting, stopped a heavily favored University of Idaho Friday night, 69-63. The win was the first for the Wolf Pack this season, and was played before a crowd of 2,500 fans in the Nevada gymnasium.

Nevada moved to an early 3-2 lead, with two minutes gone in the first half, and never fell behind to the visiting Vandals.

The Pack opened a 26-18 lead with 5:50 to play in the first half. Later with 3:57 to go, Nap Montgomery made two free throws

Campus YRS Hear State Chairman

Jac Shaw, state chairman for the Republican Party, will speak to the University of Nevada Young Republicans, Thursday night at 7:30 p.m.

Mr. Shaw will lecture on "The Future of the Republican Party." A short time ago Shaw had stated, "Now is not the time to rebuild the Republican Party but to continue building upon the strong organization which has developed over the past few years."

Proposed revisions of the constitution of the Young Republicans will also be presented at the meeting, according to Joyce Hoopingarner, Y. R. secretary.

and Nevada was in front 30-20.

Idaho closed the gap in the final minutes of the first half. Mike Wicks, with a free throw and two jump shots, knotted the score and when the buzzer sounded the two teams were deadlocked at 32-32.

The second half saw the visitors pressing hard and, Nevada capitalized on the many fouls by the Idaho five. With 13:41 remaining in the first half, Tom Moreland, 6'7" center for the Vandals, fouled out with 16 points to his credit. Two minutes later, Chuck Kozar, 6'4" forward, joined his teammate on the bench. Another starter, John Rucker, fouled out with 2:23 to go.

Nevada's second half attack was paced by center Bill Nicholson and guard Frank Bruno.

Bruno netted 16 points and harrassed the visitors with his ball stealing and fast breaks. Early in the second half, Idaho held a slim 47-46 lead, but Bruno put the Wolf Pack out in front to stay with a bucket.

Scoring leaders for the Nevada five were Montgomery with 18; Bruno, 16, Moore 12, and Olivas, 10.

Idaho was paced by center Tom Moreland with 16 followed by Mike Wicks with 11 and Shaife with 10.

Next week the University of Nevada travels to Sacramento State for the Camilia Bowl.

'Operation Mud' Back In Full Swing

"Operation Mud," the Blue Key project to clean Lake Manzanita, is being given another try. The last attempt failed as efforts were made too late in the season and the seasonal increase from the natural inlet at the north end of the lake raised the water level, forcing temporary abandonment of the project.

On Monday, Nov. 30 The Wahl Contracting Company, hired by Buildings and Grounds, bored a hole in the retainer wall at the south end of the lake to drop the water level. The hole allows the water from the lake to flow into the Orr Ditch, which runs between the lake and the Tram. When the level of the lake goes below this hole a pump will be used to continue lowering the water level.

Last year a gasoline - powered pump was tried but it failed to provide the needed volume. This year an electric pump will be used. "I am sure it will work this time, and should provide enough pumping volume to produce the desired results," said Brian V. Whalen, assistant university engineer.

"This is a Blue Key project and the only reason that I've been called on is to coordinate between the office of the Dean of Student Affairs, Blue Key, and the lake cleaning contractor, Isbell Construction Company, Whalen said.

"In 1958 the north end of the lake was drag-line cleaned, and the muck hauled away. This action gave some relief from the continued problem of tullies and debris in the lake at that time," Whalen said. "Then a couple of years ago Blue Key tried without much success to clean the lake, but this time the project is moving along well. Blue Key should be given all the credit," Whalen continued. "We here at Buildings and Grounds are pretty much kept busy repairing broken windows and moving partitions. We just don't have the time or the budgetary allotments to do things like cleaning the lake."

"About the ducks and fish," Whalen said, "last year the lake was lowered about eight feet and they weren't hurt. This year we only intend to lower the lake about six feet."

"The lake is about 13 feet deep at the deepest point, and in fact there is a valve at this lowest point that drains the lake into the sanitary sewer down by

Ninth Street. We can't drain the lake with all its muck and debris into the sewers. In fact the last time a prankster with a scuba Originally from Akron, Ohio, Karen spent her freshman year at Huntington College in Alabama before coming to Nevada. Besides holding down a job as an artist for the Atmospherium, she attends a full load of classes, presides over the Union, enjoys a variety of activities, and cooks and cleans in her own apartment . . . all the while maintaining a 3.1 overall gradepoint.

Says Karen of all this: "I like to keep busy. . ." That's for sure!!!

Sets Special Meet

The Calendar Committee will meet Thursday, December 10 in the East-West Room of the Student Union at 4 o'clock to schedule activities for the spring semester and get them on the activities calendar.

Pardon My Snake

By Hampton Young

Foot in Mouth Dept:

St. Nicholas is a rat-fink. A month and a half before Christmas his degenerate facsimiles sit downtown egging little kiddies on, whilst he sits in department store offices gleefully figuring his profits this year.

Several hundred people, getting in the Christmas spirit by drinking booze from Pappy Claus's private Tennessee distillery, will be killed on the nation's highways over the annual mercenary holiday. The men in his mortuary division are already digging "instant" plots, and stoking up the crematorium fires.

People everywhere will be borrowing against their car to buy enough presents to keep their little children and families in joyful ecstasy over cleaning up with all those free presents.

In this day and age of rockets, jet-power, automatic ice - crushers, vibrating sofas, push-button windows, and electric garage doors, why should Santa need a centuries-old sled pulled by nine moth-eaten reindeer the one in front an Alcoholics Anonymous reject. I am instituting a drive to eke more money from the down-trodden Christmas-cheered masses in order to present Santa Claus with a jet powered Rolls Royce pickup with automatic egg-nog dispenser.

And to help the poor hunger-starved kiddies of America, I am also raising funds to send a CARE package of authentic, fresh-frozen reindeer venison packed by elves from the North Pole. Won't they be happy . . . ?

Sorry to disillusion you freshmen out there . . . don't get me wrong, Christmas can be enjoyable if taken in the true spirit, but it's getting more mercenary every year . . .

Bruce Whalen, University of Nevada engineer and also number one man in charge of the campus cops, made some interesting comments last week. He claimed the two lawmen don't tow cars unless they are seriously blocking traffic. Hah—at the beginning of the semester I saw them gleefully towing cars away with reckless abandon right next to the Journalism building.

HE ALSO SAID if you are employed in this state and already have a California driver's license, you must still get a Nevada license. Unfortunately it is against both California and Nevada state law to hold a valid license from two different states. Just an interesting note . . .

The old campus really sounds ivy-league with those new carillons atop of Morrill Hall. Dean Sam seems to think that the bells may be the rallying point of student spirit. Put a good rock-and-roll beat to the bells, stand a few bubble gum dispensers around campus and he might have something . . .

The engineering department is building a wind tunnel, presumably for student experiments. A friend of mine, he shall remain unnamed, has come up with a plan to avoid an expensive, electrically-eating fan to power the tunnel. "Just stand Kersey at one end and let him talk," he muttered.

'The Lady's Not For Burning'

The University of Nevada speech and drama department will present its first play of the year, "The Lady's Not For Burning," for four showings starting tomorrow at 8 p.m. The play, under the direction of Robert E. Ericson, will run nightly through Saturday.

"The Lady's Not For Burning" is a poetic comedy by Christopher Fry. It is one of the most widely discussed and produced plays of the modern theater. It first found success in England and then became a success in New York. Fry has written such other well known plays as "Venues Observed", "A Phoenix Too Frequent", and "Ring Round the Moon."

It is the story of a discharged soldier who is tired of this world and in a hurry to get out of it. Upon arriving in a small town, he announces to the mayor that he has committed a murder and should be hanged. To his surprise the mayor and officials refuse to believe his story.

Shortly a young girl is brought before the mayor for practicing witchcraft. Thomas tries to show the officials how absurd it would be to hang an innocent girl who doesn't want to die and at the same time not hang a man who confesses to murder. The two fall in love, but the question remains. Will their love flourish here, there, or where?

Maurice Beesley is the leading man, and Kathy Smith is the leading lady.

suit opened the drain it flooded all basements with backup sewage."

After the level of the lake drops and its banks dry sufficiently, Blue Key plans a field day to remove the debris from the banks. Isbell can then determine what must be done and what equipment to use to achieve the goal.

"At this point Blue Key doesn't have enough money to do all that is needed, but they feel that as they show the students and alums that they are actually getting something done, contributions will enable them to finish the job," said Whalen.

"After the tullies are removed from the north end of the lake a bridge is proposed that will run from the north end of Juniper Hall to the Jot Travis Patio," continued Whalen.

"In conjunction with this bridge would be a six to eight foot wide walkway around the west side of the lake," said Whalen. "With the lake cleaned up and the tullies gone the ducks will need a protective hatching place and an island could be constructed for them just off the dining commons."

gents and the administration; and contrary to popular belief, it is supported and encouraged by these people.

This negative concept of student government as a sort of "Horatio at the bridge," fighting off the administration for the whole student body is wrong then on two counts. We don't need it, and it's a waste of time.

The benefit of student government, if there is one, will be found only in positive thinking and action.

No One Asked Me But . . .

By Sig Rogich

I CAN'T IMAGINE that Thanksgiving was here and left already. Good times for everyone, I imagine. Glad to be back. The sooner this year is over, the better.

For all the people who may be acquainted with S. L. (Super Lover-Lyle Rivera), seems that the chap lost his pin. To whom you ask? Well, they call her Timbuck, and she hails from Loretto Heights girl's school in Colorado. "And the great snowman melted away."

By the way, I am also pinned — to Joy!

SPORTING FANS received a real surprise, and one that should be given a great deal of credit, when the University of Nevada basketball team stopped a heavily favored University of Idaho. May be an indication of the team, fans will see this year.

In other basketball action, needless to say, my prediction came through, and the University of Illinois clobbered UCLA by 28. Not bad for 15 point underdogs . . .

"OPERATION MUD" is finally going to become reality, and a great deal of credit must be given to Blue Key, men's honorary society. Art Kess, president, is doing a fine job organizing the cleaning of Manzanita Lake . . .

THIS WEEKEND brought a few surprises. Jim Romero and Vaughn Cannon, two SAE's really went overboard and when they came up, lo and behold, two goldfish had jumped into their mouths. Well, despite alot of wig-gling, the fish finally slipped down. And Vaughn decided that the taste wasn't too bad, so he went back for seconds. A nice, big black fish from someone's aquarium. Really gave Vaughn a tough time before he finally swallowed the little fellow. Good job, guys. Burp — ugh . . . In . . . Live goldfish . . . Out . . . old fashioned rainbow trout.

MOVIE FANS who really want to get psychoed, should see Lillith. The movie is one of the finest I've seen in quite some time, and I recommend it highly. I can hear it now.

Nevada Stage Band Presents Outstanding Student Show

Bellson, to surfing and twist music. All students are invited free of charge to listen to or to dance to the music of the University Stage Band.

The Stage Band is part of the curriculum of the Music Department and has been part of the music program on campus for the past five years.

The Stage Band is directed by Gene Isaeff and all of the players are regular students of the University. The Stage Band consists of 10 players, plus the vocal talents of Bobby Herron.

In his recent address, Attorney Belli castigated J. Edgar Hoover, saying that he should be removed, and a row of college girls applauded.

Fire Gomes

Dear Editor:

We recommend that Mr. Steve Gomes be relieved of his duties and responsibilities of introducing noted guest speakers at the student union lectures.

We suggest that his introduction of "Dr. Thomas Norman" (Dr. Norman Thomas) as a representative of the "Sociologist" position was something other than a "Frueidian slip."

It's indeed fortunate that "Dr. King Luther Martin" will not be feted to a Gomes introduction.

Alarm Over Dwindle of Business Ad. Majors Unfounded

Recent news stories throughout the country have stated alarming facts about purportedly decreasing interest of college students in business fields, and decline in stature of many business colleges. But the reports have failed to alarm the University of Nevada College of Business Administration.

Articles in recent issues of the Wall Street Journal and the New York Times gave panic-stricken reports on the conditions of colleges of business administration, and national statistics on lack of interest shown by college students towards business administration programs and the business world in general. But despite these statements and statistics, the University of Nevada College of Business Administration seems to be prospering.

The articles stated that the number of business majors was decreasing, yet the University of Nevada business majors have steadily increased to a total of 543, and the enrollment of graduate students in business is up 50%. The articles stated that more and more business majors upon graduation looked towards careers in scientific research, public service, and graduate work, rather than seeking positions with business corporations. Yet approximately 80% of business graduates from the University of Nevada go directly into business fields, and the remaining 20% continue with graduate work or teaching.

The national impression of current scorn for business pictures the business world as a "high-pressure conformist place where superficial values prevail... the land of the martini, the ulcer, and the gray flannel suit." There is not sufficient attractiveness in business corporations to compete against other jobs, according to the articles, and tuition waivers for graduate school and competitive professors' salaries have lured many business majors away from corporate work.

But according to Dr. Robert C. Weems, dean of the University of Nevada College of Business Administration, this trend is neither serious nor lasting. He stated that there are about ten times as many opportunities in business corporations as there are students to fill them and that, "as soon as the business world finds out it is not competing effectively, it will necessarily increase salaries."

The University of Nevada College of Business Administration is accredited by the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, one of the 110 elite of the 600 schools and departments in the country.

Calendar Committee

The meeting of the Calendar Committee will be held on Thursday, December 10, at 4:00 p.m., in the Nevada East-West Room of the Student Union Building. All social activities for the spring semester will be scheduled at this meeting. Any group interested in scheduling events on the Spring Activities Calendar should send a representative to this meeting. All dates set by the Calendar Committee are final.

Circle "K"

The Christmas spirit now prevails in the Student Union lounge thanks to the Circle K Service Club which donated its time to install the lights on the roof of the building and hang the decorations inside. Under the direction of club president Bill Mason, the members spent two days last week stringing multi-colored garlands from the lights in the ceiling and putting together aluminum Christmas trees.

The Circle K Club is a new service organization on campus designed to interest college students in the activities of the Kiwanis club. The Nevada chapter of Circle K is sponsored by the Sparks Kiwanis.

Lost And Found

Do people ever find things they lose such as glasses, watches, books and coats? No, is the answer given by Shirley Morgan, assistant to the director of Auxiliary Enterprises office in the Student Union, who has a large collection of such articles in her possession at the time.

These offices are supposed to be the lost and found department on campus, but articles lost go unclaimed because "people do not realize that anything found on campus is brought to this office," says Mrs. Morgan. "Often we end up giving unclaimed things away."

International Club

The university students from India will host the International Club's monthly meeting with an interesting program about their country, Thursday night at 7:30 p. m.

The evening will include students speaking on the religions and customs of India as well as three short films entitled: "New India," "Land of Enlightenment", and "Indian Wedding".

The program will last about an hour and a half. The meeting place is the Aggie Conference Room. Refreshments will be served. All students and faculty are welcome to attend.

Civil Defense

The hazards of radioactive fallout, the effect of nuclear weapons, and the basic principals of protection will be the topics of discussion at a Faculty-Staff Civil Defense Seminar on Monday, Dec. 14.

The seminar will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Jot Travis Lounge. A question and answer period will follow the discussion.

The seminar will be sponsored by the Civil Defense division of the General University Extension.

Spurs Party

Spurs will hold its annual orientation party for freshmen women Tuesday, December 15, in the Jot Travis Lounge.

All freshmen women are invited as guests of the University of Nevada chapter of the national sophomore women's honorary organization.

The party is designed to acquaint the women with the service organization and to tell them of the requirements. Applicants must have a grade point average of at least a 2.5 for the first semester, and qualities of leadership and service. New members will be chosen in the spring.

The recent regional Spur convention held on the University of Nevada campus will also be discussed.

Chairman for the party is Judy Crowell. Other chairmen are: Mary Hyde, invitations; Sophie Sheppard, decorations; Lana Strosnider, refreshments; Twyla Smith, entertainment; and Margie Uhalde, name tags.

Experience counts in coaching and Jack Spencer has plenty.

The Wolf Pack coach was an Iowa all-state basketball player in 1941 and 1942. While in high school he lettered in football, baseball, and track.

He was a two-sport athlete at the University of Iowa. He lettered twice for baseball and in 1945 he finished second in the Big-Ten batting race. Ted Kluzewski, later a major league star, won it that year.

Spencer was a four-year letter winner in basketball and in 1948 was an all Big-Ten conference star.

He played one year of professional ball with the Waterloo Hawks in 1949.

Spencer's coaching career began at the University of Iowa. He was the assistant basketball coach in 1949.

He interrupted his coaching for two years to become a deputy sheriff.

He resumed his career at Iowa Wesleyan College, where he stayed until 1959.

Spencer came to the University of Nevada in 1959. He won two Far Western Conference titles in 1960 and 1964.

When asked to pick the outstanding players he has coached in the past years at Nevada he pointed out that the choice was hard since every player is different and contributes to a team in a different way.

He picked Craig Hall as his outstanding guard. He said that Val York was the smartest player he has coached here. The player with the most potential was Bill "Dipper" Robinson. This year's squad was not included in these evaluations as the season is just starting.

His biggest thrill in his playing and coaching career, he said, was "Every game we win."

Nevada Eludes Year Of College Protest

This is fast shaping up to be the year of the student protest at the nation's colleges and universities.

Students on campus in all parts of the country have staged a rash of demonstrations and protests on a wide array of national, international, and local issues, and no let up seems in sight.

Protest action has been aimed at everything from new regulations governing the consumption of alcohol at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn. to policies restricting student political activity at the University of California, and almost everything in between.

At the University of Pennsylvania, several hundred students demonstrated against the construction of a new fine arts building on campus on grounds that it would destroy one of the few tree-shaded open spot at the university.

At the University of Texas, the campus chapter of the Students for a Democratic Society picketed against the use of Black Face in a campus minstrel show on grounds that it was degrading to the Negro and the university's Negro students.

At City University of New York, students organized a two month campaign favoring free tuition, and worked to defeat candidates for the state legislature who opposed it.

At the University of Michigan, a student political party staged a demonstration demanding "campus democracy now," as well as more money for teaching, new student housing, better facilities, increased student wages, and a lower cost of living on campus.

Much student protest activity has centered on civil rights. At the University of Colorado, the campus chapter of the Congress on Racial Equality picketed a restaurant which had refused to hire a Negro girl. The restaurant gave her the job within an hour after the picketing began.

The biggest, longest, and best organized of the protests, however, is at the University of California at Berkeley, where hundreds of students have been contesting a ban on campus political activity since last September.

Since it was instituted in September, the ban, which prevents student political organizations from distributing literature, recruiting members, and soliciting funds in an area adjacent to the university's student union, has sparked a number of demonstrations and protest violations, as well as an administration threat of mass suspensions.

At one point, a protest demonstration focused on a campus police car drew a crowd so large that university officials summoned 400 riot police to the campus.

The issue is central to both the Trinity and Berkeley disputes. In both cases students are claiming that the university is denying them rights and privileges they would normally enjoy if they were not students.

A second cause for protest seems to be the feeling by students that university officials are not consulting with them on decisions affecting them. Apparently this is the main reason for the demonstration at Michigan, and for a demonstration at the University of Illinois, where students are protesting an administration decision to build a million dollar intramural building without soliciting student opinion on the project.

The recently concluded presidential campaign is also a factor behind the protests. Students participated in politics to an unprecedented extent this year, and on a number of campuses this brought them into conflict with school regulations. On others, student involvement in national politics translated itself into a heightened awareness of campus oriented issues.

At Berkeley, a number of the groups protesting the political activity ban are campus affiliates of national civil rights organizations. A number of the leaders of the protest there—as well as protests on other campuses—are veterans of the Mississippi Summer Project, Freedom Rides, sit ins, and other civil rights action.

none? 1 inch? 1½ inches?

How much foam should there be?

You'll hear some people say there shouldn't be any head at all. They say phooey on the foam . . . where's the beer!

They shouldn't. Not when it's Budweiser, anyway.

Budweiser is brewed so that it will kick up a healthy head of foam. We go to a lot of trouble to let Budweiser create its own tiny bubbles, rather than pumping them in. Natural carbonation and our exclusive Beechwood Ageing are two things we just won't get modern about. It takes a lot longer this way, and costs more money. (In fact, it gives our treasurer fits.) But the results—a good head of foam, real beer taste, smoothness and drinkability—are more than worth it.

So pour your Budweiser with about an inch-and-a-half collar of foam. Two inches if it's a tall glass. Watch those bubbles gather . . . then taste. (That's what we tell our treasurer to do when he starts fussing about the high cost of bubbles and beechwood. And he just smiles and swallows his arguments.)
