

PLAYBRUSH

Playbrush Philosophy

By Humpem Young
Playbrush Philosopher

The values, mores, goals, attitudes and drinking habits of the modern Western collegiate have been diagnosed by sociologists, philosophers, psychologists and various pseudo-intellectual students as lazy, industrious, lecherous, pleasure seeking and obnoxious.

These intellectuals have been taking small bites out of the student cult and masticating us into chunks before coolly savoring and loudly gulping our beliefs. We are slowly forced into a pit of intellectual bile, acid and ulcers, partly digested and ultimately regurgitated with a satisfying "burp."

Wading into this large and diversified psychological pile of contemplative gibberish has been confusing and has left the average discotheque college student in a squeamish qualm. That is, students don't know in which direction to turn. One sociologist will consider us wild and pleasure-seeking, frenziedly hopping from "Whisky-a-go-go" to "Condor" Club to permeate our gratification glands to overpouring. He's right.

SERIOUSLY STIMULATED

But another psychologist will incorrectly assume we are a serious, high-minded group of intellectually-stimulated, potentially-excellent members of a conforming society. This is enough to throw even the most hedonistic mind into a schizophrenic quagmire of conformistic doubt toward the true ideals and morals we must adhere to.

The American student must have a standard, a basic criteria to mold the neopytes' consciousness and retain the idealistic norms which have been transmitted to us by that original epicurean, ex-Playbrush-mate and dissenter of dorm hours—Dean Maulby, keeper of the broads.

The "Playbrush" then, offers University of Nevada yearlings—the "PLAYBRUSH PHILOSOPHY."

Primely, it must be hereinafter noted that as members of the "Ample Society," as our great statesman and ASUN president, Mike Hoof'mouth, has so aptly phrased it, we must philosophically adhere to the basic philosophy as it is put down here: "I am boss and cool and keen and neat. I am a member of the "Playbrush" set, the "Discotheque" set, the "Piper Cub" set and the "Ample Society." I go to the University of Nevada."

MAJOR COMMANDMENTS

Basically the "Playbrush" philosophy consists of five major canons, or commandments, which outline the major facets of that which is inclusive of the quasi-discotheque philosophy.

They are: (1) Beer, that nectar of the deities, is hereinafter to be considered "suds" and previous to drinking every can, bottle, glass, pitcher or goblet of "Suds" one is to kiss their partner and reverently murmur, "Heal, oh honey of the Gods. Mend my pain-racked and tortured mind so that I might rise above the ignorant dissenters of the privileged discotheque and seek pleasure at my own free will as a member of a democratic society."

(2) Automobiles, perambulators of the superior discotheque few, are hereinafter to be considered "Chariots," and must all be above 400 horsepower, 4-speed, placed on a "powr" rake and used exclusively as a means of transportation between dorm and discotheque club.

(3) Daytime, that time in which the sun is above the horizon, is to be used exclusively as class time, and is to be avoided as much as possible. Cavorting freely about during the day with no regard for the holy nighttime is to be considered sinful.

(4) Classes, which we must all endure to be a true discotheque—our crown of thorns, so to speak—are to be used primarily as a means to an end. That is, graduation, if it is ever in sight, must be sought as an eventual means to incur superior earning power to sustain our ideals through immense financial backing. Finances are a tool to retain power and an essential means to purchase "Suds."

(5) Dean Maulby, goddess of all goddesses, is hereinafter to be considered as all that is good in our society today. Her word is to be considered adamant law and is never to be contradicted, as it will be the direst of sins to disagree with her word. You won't go to heaven, kiddies.

NOT ULTIMATE LAW

This philosophy, as it is put forth here, is not to be considered as ultimate law by those ignorant few who disagree with the inherent rights contained herein. The discotheques will adhere to further a philosophy of "to each his own." That is, if a dissenter believes in such things as Medicare, Social Security, Civil Rights, aid the basic freedom of man, he is to be considered uninformed and eventually he will destroy himself. For he is violating a basic trueism of our discotheque religion and believes that people are basically free and equal, which has been proved time and time again by other religions to be completely false.

But as far as we are concerned, let them believe in what they want to believe in, for they don't know no better.

Directors Plan End To Tub Deficit

The student union ended one of its most successful semesters, only landing in the red in ten of the scheduled eleven special events.

But Union Board officials have come up with a solution that will clear up the deficit.

"We plan to reinact, and understand we will have the original actors, the major battles of World War 11", announced ex-Union Board president, Karen Glib.

"The props are all in, and if we can get the USS Maine under the gym doors, the production will be a huge success."

Practice for the event will be a problem, said Miss Gibbs, but with the help of the German Club and the language department, we hope to have enough extras.

It must be understood, that practice will only be held once in the gym, and those players that do best will star in the main production, said Miss Glib.

"Props are being sent for, and already we have, the Battle of the Bulge set up."

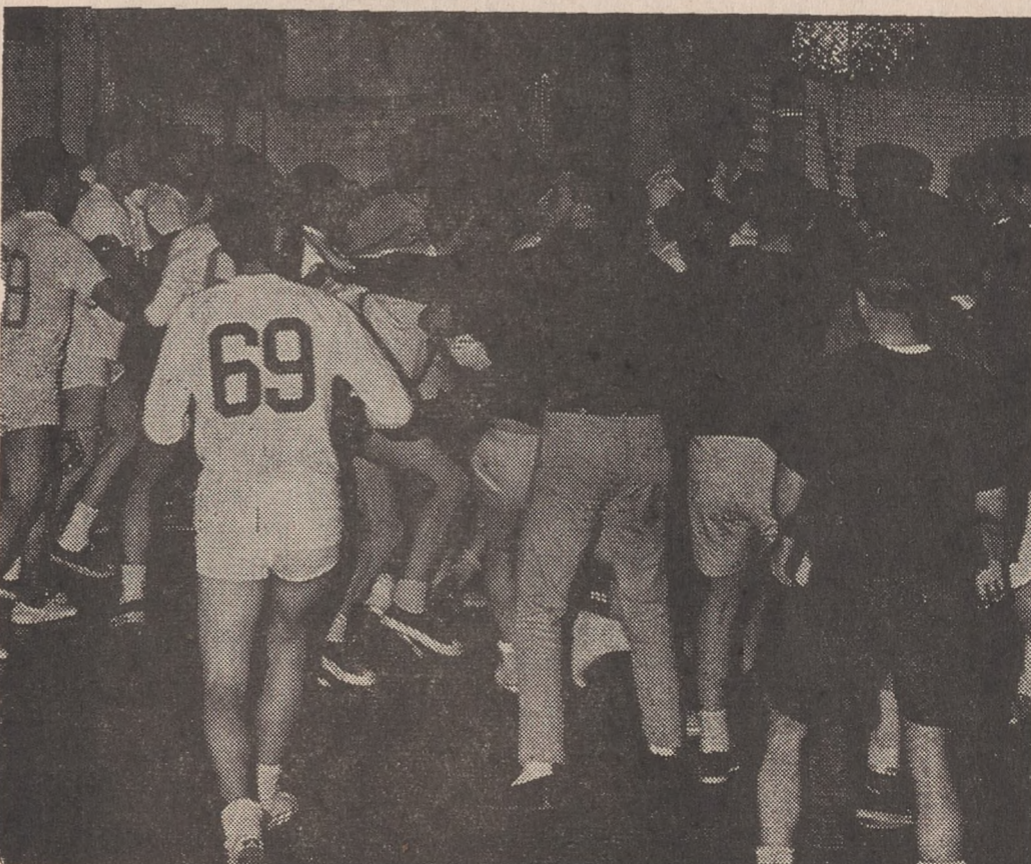

The six month scheduled performance will be free to students and faculty.

Campus Bigwigs Have Big Duck Fry

Beanie Motley said duck season would begin tomorrow at the old lake.

"Yep, these ducks have got to go. I've already killed ne swan, fifteen ducks, and three geese, so I figure I've got nothing to lose."

"Besides, you should have seen the wild duck fry we had." She added that, "Bean Blasta won the trophy this year for downing three pigeons, a sparrow, Dean Horn, a swan, and 12 geese in one shot."

"WAIT . . . THERE'S PLENTY of ice-cream for everybodys," says Skip-along Obsceno at a recent social by Animal Tau Omega and Siggy Nubie. The affair was fun for all.

Everybody's Mad At All The Secret Campus Stuff

"Our team refused to debate in the Gerater Nevada Tournament (sponsored by us) because we want someone to investigate Coffin Nails, a subversive secret gestapo organization on campus," said Jokes Drably, Coffin Nails ex-president and debate team member.

Drably refused to comment to the Playbrush on the connection between debate and Coffin Nails. He said it would be a "conflict of interests", being a member of both groups.

Earlier this year Drably attacked "Trashfire" publication because his mother was offended by some of the magazine's poetry. The controversy raged all year because of another Drably "conflict of interests". He is a member of the Trashfire editorial board and chairman of the publications board.

THREATENED

Drably said he had been physically threatened by Coffin Nails members because of his participation in the debate program.

"There's not much there to threaten," said Coffin Nails member Tim Barker.

Barker said the real reason Coffin Nails deposed Drably is because of his participation in the AWS fashion show earlier this semester. "That's no way for a Coffin Nails man to act," said Barker.

Bue we disgress.

INVESTIGATE

Debate coach Ben Moresure said the team's withdrawal from the great tournament would shake officials into an all-out investigation of the secret group. Moresure wants to know why he was refused membership into the select society.

"Our abstention will probably be more felt on a national level," said Moresure. "Every state official is a member of Coffin Nails so our local attempts will undoubtedly be ignored."

"We will wire the president tonight," said Moresure. "We must settle our disputes at home before we can begin to worry about such worldly problems as South Viet Nam."

INSTRUMENTAL

"Through this investigation, I'm sure we will find that Coffin Nails has been instrumental in the Viet Nam policy-making and the Selma racial demonstrations as well as the debate issue at Nevada," said Moresure.

"The world will soon know why the debate department did not receive its dollar allocation from the Nevada's student Senate," he concluded.

Tidal Wave Here

The University of Nevada's Project Muck was set back today when a tidal wave engulfed the artificial island in the middle of the lake.

The island was created in the middle of Manzanita Lake from the muck and slime at the bottom of the lake. The object is to make the lake more beautiful.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editrix,

It has come to the attention of myself and the group that I represent that the problems caused are not merely those that may reflect upon us as a whole. Furthermore, I wish to say that if such business were carried in an orderly manner, then the situation wouldn't be quite so bad.

But what if things were really that way, and no one was to blame, then indeed, and I use the word lightly, indeed the situation would be somewhat bewildering.

However, without taking due recourse, I must say that many agree with my position, and I too think the complexity of the problem seems from a problem so complex, and so very puzzling that neither the bewildered parties involved or other people who have studied such problems of the past will submit a decent answer to curb the at hand situation.

What will things be like in the future if such is the case at the present? And if things are in a frenzy, then perhaps the situation will rest without the agreement of the perplexed persons involved. To submit such amazement to the reasonable parties would indeed, and I use the word lightly once again, be to the bewilderment of not only myself, but many others who have given valuable time to think about the problem as it is today.

Perhaps you, the students can help the situation. Replies would be appreciated.

Most Sincerely
(and I use my nickname)
Bad Luck is the home of Virginia,
(and they say I Jinxed the whole situation)

"That sounds swell, what can I say," was all track coach Dampheart could say when he learned the track team voted him University of Nevada track coach of the year.

The voting was near unanimous, with the only other candidate being Janitor Smith, in charge of the Engineering Building Laboratory.

Dampheart said the track team wasn't that bad this year, but then again not that good. "But what can you expect from a football coach," said the track mentor.

"Heck I've been here for some time now, and all I ever get to do is run around the track, and stuff. I want to be a football coach, and stuff."

Dampheart added, "I don't know how we'll do this weekend, but I can guarantee one thing, we'll be running and jumping."

Sagebrush

Team Reenters Nevada Tourney

By LINDA CHAMBERS, Editor

"We will debate," said Max Steinheimer speaking for the University of Nevada debate team. Wednesday night the debaters withdrew from competition in the Nevada-sponsored Great Western Debate Tournament as a protest against Coffin and Keys, secret men's society on campus. "Our purpose has been fulfilled," said Steinheimer. He said President Armstrong Thursday morning assured the debaters of a public investigation of Coffin and Keys.

Before leaving for a speaking engagement in Sacramento, University President Armstrong told the Sagebrush that acting Vice-president Dr. Ralph Irwin and Dr. Sam Basta, dean of student affairs, will conduct a complete investigation of the matter, not of the group in question.

STUDENT CONCERN

"I also told the debate squad their differences with Coffin and Keys was a matter of student concern and should be settled by legally conducted student government," said Armstrong. "If it cannot be resolved then it will become a proper concern of the administration."

In a Thursday meeting with debaters, Armstrong urged them to reconsider their action of withdrawing from the tournament "so as not to bring embarrassment upon the University of Nevada."

"We are counting on Jinx Dabney to open the door to the activities of Coffin and Keys," said Steinheimer. Dabney, ex-president of the secret group, had already made mention of certain activities to the debate team.

PHYSICAL VIOLENCE

Dabney, also a debater, said he has received five phone calls and one personal encounter threatening physical violence if he "talked" about Coffin and Keys. Ex-IFC President Jim Baker, Coffin and Keys member, reportedly made the physical threat to Dabney.

"I did not threaten Dabney," said Baker. "I told him, not as a member of Coffin and Keys, that I questioned his character in regard to his tactics."

Baker said his communication with Dabney was as an individual, not as a member or spokesman for any group. "I don't feel I was threatening him and said nothing to imply any action by me or anyone would be taken against him."

INTO THE OPEN

Dabney is supposedly going to bring the "secrets" of Coffin and Keys into the open with a public statement to be issued soon.

"Our main objection to the group is the potential danger of its secrecy and the things they could do," said Steinheimer. "It is very possible they can control student elections."

Debater Demar Dahl denied that it was the Senate-approved veto of a dollar allotment to debate that caused the concern. He said, "We debaters do not feel we can represent a University which has such an organization."

ACADEMIC STALEMATE

Mike Lally, defeated candidate for ASUN President and public relations chairman for the debate tournament said Coffin and Keys "has created an academic stalemate at this University."

"We are not living in a democracy," said Lally, who came to the United States from Ireland eight years ago.

Further attacks against Coffin and Keys came from debate coach Ken Mosier who said that the secret group was "a Ku Klux Klan-type of thing."

A LOT OF GOOD

"We know Coffin and Keys does a lot of good things on campus," said Steinheimer. "But even though they act as individuals, they function as one secret unit."

The main charges brought against Coffin and Keys by the debate team are:

1. It is a secret organization.
 2. Faculty members are involved and influencing student matters.
 3. The group impairs freedom of speech on minority positions.
- "The investigation started while the debate allotment question was still in finance control board," said Steinheimer. "We heard then that Coffin and Keys was working against the debate cause."

VETO APPROVED

On March 24, Senate approved President Keith Lee's veto of a previous Senate decision which would allot one dollar per semester per student toward the debate program. The vote was 18 to 11 in favor of the veto.

The original vote, made March 3, was 27 to 1 in favor of the allocation. Lee vetoed the measure on the basis that the set allocation would take away to the constitutional purpose of Finance Control Board, which budgets appropriations for ASUN activities.

Michon Maupin, senator and ASUN second vice-president elect, told the Sagebrush, "I was not influenced or approached by any member of Coffin and Keys. I voted on my own volition and always have."

"I think other Senators would say the same thing," said Miss Maupin. She was one of the 18 who upheld Lee's veto.

DEBATE CHARGES

In a prepared press statement, the debate team charged:

"We feel that membership in this group by student body officers is contrary to their responsibilities as elected representatives of the students. We feel this because when a student body officer must reject his oath to the student body and accept instead his oath to Coffin and Keys."

ASUN President Keith Lee is a member of Coffin and Keys, as well as other male campus leaders.

The debate statement also reads: "Through concerted and surreptitious activity, this group functions as the invisible student government at the University of Nevada; their influence can be felt in all phases of student affairs."

Junior Prom Set Saturday Night At Hidden Valley

The 1965 annual Junior Prom is scheduled to take place tomorrow night at Hidden Valley, announced Mike Ingersoll, Junior Class President.

Tickets are now being sold by members of Sagers and Spurs for $2.50 per couple. They can also be purchased at the dance.

The prom will run from 9 p.m. to midnight, with music by the Paragons.

The highlight of the evening will be the crowning of the new Junior Prom Queen. Vying for the honor this year are: Sally Small, Kappa Alpha Theta; Diane Harwood, Delta Delta Delta; Michele Sala, Pi Beta Phi; Chris Garos, off campus Independent; Hazel Silber, Artemisia Hall; Sheri Johnson, Juniper Hall; Carol Egbert, Manzanita Hall; and Ruth Fenstermaker, Gamma Phi Beta.

Mike Ingersoll will crown one of eight girls Junior Prom Queen during intermission ceremonies. She will receive twelve dozen long-stemmed roses and a kiss from Ingersoll.

President Ingersoll expressed his appreciation to all those who have helped in the coordination of the dance, especially the Junior Class Committee.

Group Plans Downer Shoot For 'Mothers'

Hunting season is here. Students, break out your scattergun and a box of shot and keep an eye out for turkeys, quail and any other fowl that is fair game.

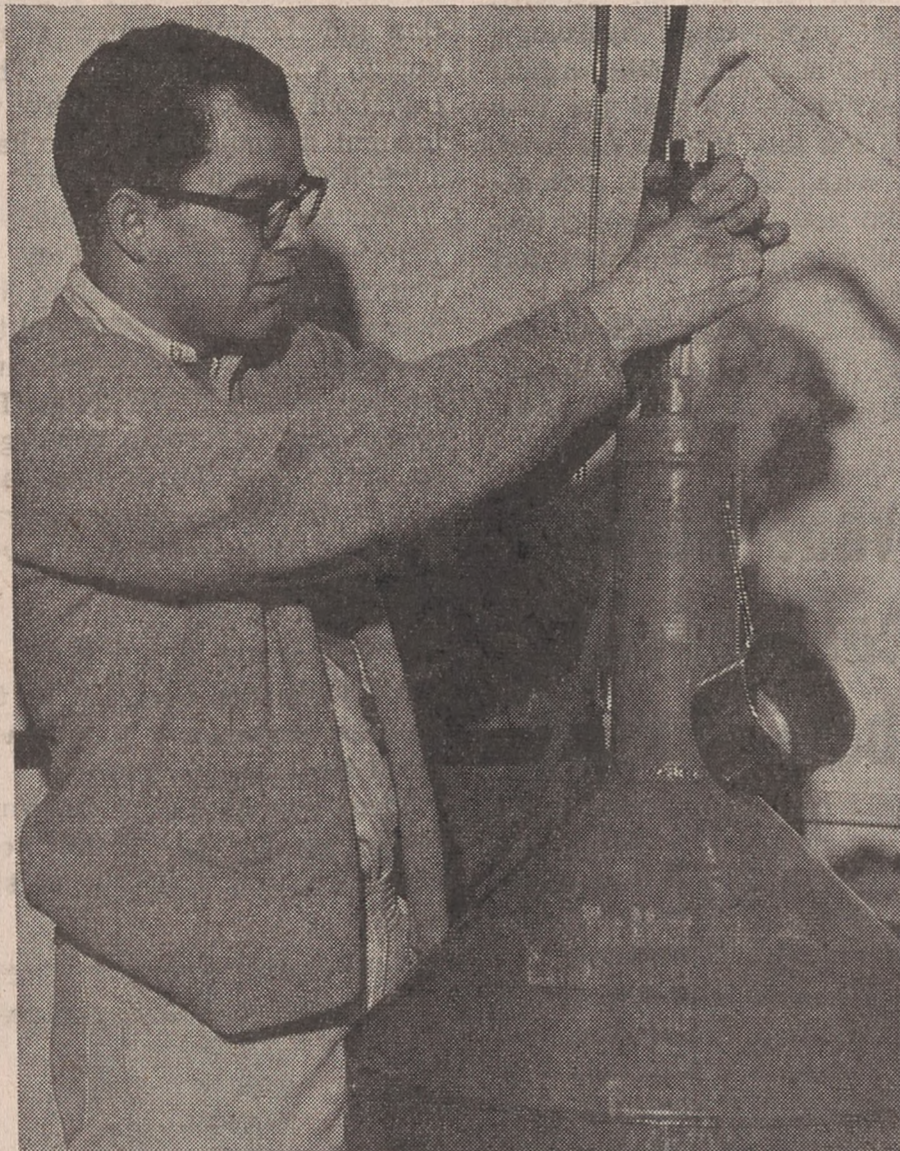

The Sundowner's annual Spring Turkey Shoot will be held this afternoon at 1:30 on Gypsum Road in the University Foothills, according to Gary Holgate, Sundowner turkey-keeper.

The Sundowners are planning to reinstate their past tradition of electing Sundowner Mothers.

All ladies interested in attaining this honor are invited to attend the "Shoot" as guests of the Sundowners.

All others on campus may attend at a charge of $1.

Refreshments will be served and the activity will last until all the shooters are eliminated or until the ammunition runs out. Whichever comes first.

Science Building Veto Made While Men Orbit In Space

By Tim Ennor

At the same time that the U.S. space effort was performing its latest achievement in orbiting two men in space, the Nevada legislature voted to eliminate progress in the field of science at the University of Nevada by vetoing construction of a physical science building on the Reno campus.

While astronauts Grissom and Young were orbiting the earth in their spectacular advertisement of America's great progress in science, the committee chairmen of both houses agreed to eliminate the approximately $3.2 million needed for construction of the building.

Dr. Louis Lombardi, a member of the University Board of Regents, has voiced his disapproval of the legislature's move, stating that the young people of the state are being shortchanged by the cut. "The building is needed at this time and the legislative denial of funds will put the physical sciences facilities at the university in a definite bind," said Dr. Lombardi.

Although the Assembly Ways and Means Committee reconsidered the appropriations bill and restored many of the university budget cuts, it was unable to justify the needed funds for bringing Nevada a little closer to national standards in the fast-moving science field.

Sagens Wash Cars For Scholarship Here Tomorrow

Sagens, the upperclass women's honorary organization, will sponsor a "Scholarship Car Wash" tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the parking area of Lincoln Hall.

Interested persons may purchase tickets from any member, for $1 each.

Proceeds from the project will be used for a scholarship presented by the women's organization.

Psych. Talk Held Today

"S-R Social Psychology" will be the topic of a lecture by Dr. Cletus J. Burke today in the Nevada East West room of the Student Union today at 3:30 p.m.

Dr. Burke is a visiting professor from California State College in Hayward, California.

The talk is sponsored by the psychology and sociology departments.

that the issue and charges were "ridiculous and unfounded." He said he would answer any charges made against the group.

Mike Ingersoll, ASUN president-elect, said there is nothing to the charges and agreed that the matter was "ridiculous." Ingersoll is a member of Coffin and Keys.

"They'll have to make more definite charges before we can answer anything," said Ingersoll.

The Coffin and Keys constitution, on file in the ASUN office, states that the aim of the organization is for the benefit and upbuilding of the University of Nevada.

C & K AIMS

"Our aim is by personal example and advice to improve the student life and activities; to act as a medium between faculty and student body; to do all in our power to help the reputation and raise the social, moral and scholastic standing of our University and to so conduct ourselves that under-classmen seeing the good in our organization will strive to the best of their ability to win, through their scholarship and school loyalty, the honor of wearing our emblem."

Debaters charge that "the existence of Coffin and Keys is an affront to the integrity of every student on this campus, for their actions imply that they—the 'secret chosen few'—doubt the ability of the student body to govern itself, that students are unable to make their own decisions regarding government, and that therefore, Coffin and Keys must make decisions for them."

PUBLIC DEFENSE

"When they opposed the debate allotment, they should have said so publicly and defended their point of view. They chose, however, to work secretly and cowardly, afraid to expose themselves to discussion," the statement reads.

"Debate is in no way responsible for the distribution of the leaflets on campus last week," said debater Frank Bass. "If we had been, we would have signed names just as we have in this statement," he said.

Engineer's Day Will Feature Open House; Many Exhibits

Budding engineers down in Skunk Hollow will get their annual chance to show off their subject matter to fellow students and area residents tomorrow. The College of Engineering and the Mackay School of Mines will hold their annual open house in observance of Engineers' Day on Saturday, April 3.

Skunk Hollow, that depression on the eastern side of the campus which houses the Scrugham Engineering Mines building, Palmer Engineering building, and numerous "temporary - permanent" quonset huts, will be the center of tomorrow's activities. The Mackay School of Mines building will also house exhibits in conjunction with the Hollow.

INFORMATION CENTER

An information center in the Centennial Arch in front of the SEM building will furnish visitors with a list of exhibits to be seen in the various buildings.

The Scrugham Engineering Mines building will house exhibits by the soils laboratory, non-metals laboratory, cryogenics laboratory and the fluid mechanics lab. Dean James T. Anderson will appear on two-way closed circuit television in room 101 of the SEM building to welcome visitors to the College of Engineering. He is scheduled to appear at 9, 10 and 11 a.m.

The computer center will have its IBM 1620 digital computer on display in the SEM building, allowing visitors to play a game of skill against the machine.

The mechanical engineering department will feature its wind tunnel and mechanical vibrations demonstration in Palmer Engineering. The nuclear reactor of the nuclear engineering department will be shown in the No. 10 temporary building.

MINES EXHIBIT

The Mackay School of Mines will offer exhibits in geology, mining engineering, hydrology, and chemical and metallurgical engineering. A tour of the new ventilation lab will be featured, along with displays of radioactive materials and seismology records of recent earthquakes felt in Nevada.

Exhibits in observance of Engineers' Day will be open to visitors from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

Legislative Press Corps Scholarship Establishment Try

The legislative press corps at the state legislature is attempting to establish a Legislative Press Corps Scholarship for students of journalism at the University of Nevada.

This scholarship slated at $360, is to be awarded at the discretion of the University of Nevada Journalism Department.

The fund for the gift was swelled to over $560 last Monday by the auction of a beef donated by Assemblyman Ray Knisley, D-Pershing, in the assembly chambers in Carson City.

Bidding on the beef were Governor Grant Sawyer, Senator Henry Berrum, R-Douglas, and Mr. and Mrs. George Vargas.

Nevada Hosts Great Western Debate Tourney

Representatives of from thirty to forty schools are visiting the University of Nevada this weekend for the Great Western Championship Debate Tournament.

The tournament, which started Thursday, features debate, extemporaneous speaking, oratory, and after dinner speaking. The latter will be held at the Elks Country Club, site of the tournament banquet.

Also at the banquet will be the initiation of new members into Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha, by regional governor and Chairman of the Nevada Speech Department, Dr. Robert Griffin.

Any student or faculty member may attend any of the campus scheduled debates.

SNCC Members Meet Again

Nellie Maxey, chairman of SNCC and Sam Basta, dean of student affairs met last Tuesday, in an effort to add by-laws and be more explicit in revision of the SNCC constitution before presentation to the Student Affairs Board.

Chairman Maxey explained SNCC's role in the civil rights movement, SNCC does not demonstrate as an organization. If we were to carry signs with SNCC on them in a demonstration, the head office in Atlanta would be inclined to revoke our charter.

Maxey further explained that the NAACP handles most of the legal and housing discrimination cases in civil rights, CORE handles the educational side with projects such as voter registration and the improvement of minority group education. "This, explained Maxey, "is why we thought it would be good to have a "SNCC group on campus."

The group was cautioned by Dean Basta who said they no longer represent themselves, but now represent the ASUN and the University of Nevada, and must act accordingly at all times. The group now has some privileges, Dr. Basta said, but it must also accept the responsibilities carried in associating with the University and student body.

Sr Gown Deadline

April 9th has been set as the deadline for seniors to be measured for caps and gowns.

Those who wish to be measured should go to the ASUN Book Store. The cost is $3.50 per student.

Voice Recital Set Sunday

The Music Department of the University of Nevada will present Miss Reta Bowen in a Graduate Voice Recital, on Sunday, April 4, at 3 p.m. in the Jot Trav-lis Lounge.

Miss Bowen, a graduate of Wichita State University, (Kansas), has spent the past several years on the West Coast. She did musical comedy in the San Francisco area, starring in production of "PIPE DREAM", "ANYTHING GOES", and an original revue being readied for New York, "WHOOOPS!"

Following night club appearances in San Francisco and Las Vegas, Miss Bowen returned to school to complete her education. She has appeared in several concerts and productions at the University of Nevada over the past two years.

Tibetan Monk Runs For Post

By TOM DEADLY
Unmanageable Editor

The ASUN presidential race clouded somewhat yesterday when a 73-year-old Tibetan monk from the Himalayas entered the picture.

Dally Llama was nominated by Nevada's independent council. All three of them agreed unanimously on the choice.

Llama joins Mike Footinmouth of Animal Tau Omega as the ASS candidate for president.

Llama is basing his campaign on the belief that each Nevada student should have a Tibetan Monk as an adviser.

Footinmouth is using a more familiar campaign issue — the forming of a presidential council to advise the president on significant issues such as what parties are coming up during the weekend, and which sorority house to raid.

Competition is also hot for the office of seventh vice-president which is currently held by Jinxed Drabney.

The College of Arts and Science has 37 and one half candidates running for 36 senatorial positions while the College of plant nutrition has no candidates running for one seat.

The reason for this is that there are no majors in the College of Plant Nutrition.

A heavy voting turnout is expected at the election. Ninety-five per cent of the Greek population is expected to vote and five per cent of the independents could possibly vote.

Football Schedule Strengthened For Upcoming Season

Wolfpack football coach Tricky Dicky Lockjock announced today, the team would strengthen their schedule, because of last year's record.

"How can you expect the boys to be up for the game when we aren't playing anybody good," said Lockjock.

"This year we are going to play Notre Dame, Ohio State, Southern California, Michigan, Alabama, Texas, and Pioche Tech. Tech ought to give use a pretty rough time. The last time we played them they were tough, boy."

All-American candidates for the 1966 team look pretty good, added Lockjock.

"This year we are going to run off the "W" formation," said Lockjock. "This is a new setup that I thought of myself, and if I do say so, it's pretty darn good."

"Next year we're running off the "O" formation. This may sound funny to everyone, but look at it this way. We can run circles around them," said the coach.

Legislature Cuts Sharpeners From Nevada Classrooms

The 1976 Nevada Legislature has decided to cut 19 million 413.2 thousand pencil sharpeners from the University of Nevada budget.

This leaves the University with three pencil sharpeners.

"We need those pencil sharpeners says Dr. Chuck Hamstrung, University President who is presently in the Philippines letting people know about Nevada.

University reject Dr. Louie Lombard is also opposed to the pencil sharpener slashers. "Pencil sharpening is important to the student," says Lombard. "How are the men and women of the state going to sharpen their pencils?" adds Lombard.

Governor Lawyer who is enroute to the Moon on a goodwill tour—and to claim it for the state of Nevada—says the University does not need more sharpeners to be sharper.

"As I see it, sharpeners are fine thing but we must talk about this in practical terms as well as logical terms, we must discuss the aspects of it and come to positive and direct action. Nevada must look ahead to the future."

"Assemblyman Jim Gailey says the issue is far from decided. "The Assembly Ways and Meaningless Committee plus the Senate Finance Slash Committee must get together and decide the matter. The matter should be decided in the near future, say about 20 years," says Gailey.

Academic Requirements Reach All-time High

"I just can't understand it," commented Dean Bam Hasta perplexedly, "Howcum everybody's gone?"

Hasta was commenting on the immediate result of the new academic requirements for the University, which had just eliminated the entire student body from school.

"All we did was move the minimum academic requirements up from a minus 15 grade points to a plus 150 grade points. According to our records, there were three students that could have met the new requirements. Where did we go wrong?" said Hasta.

"This is seriously going to effect the passing of our budget in the next legislature," said Dr. Chuck Hamstrung, resident of the University, when asked to comment on the strange disappearance of the student body.

When asked as to how this would affect Coffin Nails, a spokesman for the group, who wished to remain anonymous, said, "There ain't no such group, so how can it affect our group?"

Links Dabley, a debater and ASUN primary vice president, commented for the forensics group. He said, "I refuse to comment on the student dropout for the debate team, because there is no debate team. That is, ever since Coffin Nails became a subversive organization and I resigned from the group, there has been no debate squad. For the debate squad does not condone secret organizations such as the one I resigned from, and the publishing of secret pamphlets against secret organizations is wrong."

"Of course, even though the debate squad is the only group that has asserted itself and condemned this secret, subversive organization and has asked them to prove they do what we don't know they do, because as a former member of Coffin Nails, I can't divulge their secrets, it doesn't mean we understand the entire notion behind the animosity that Coffin Nails hold toward the innocent debate squad which no longer exists," Dabley panted. they look, for Tricky-Dicky Lockjaw has been busy recruiting out-of-state students for our excellent sports program.

"I've got three boys who really want to participate in our program. They've each had offers of full-rides from Georgia Tech, Alabama, Oklahoma and Michigan State, but they are smart boys and realize that they can't assert their individuality and gain much-needed experience at schools the size of those. So we've got three students to go here next semester," said Lockjaw.

But things are not as serious as

Colonel Gunrack seemed disappointed that this meant the end of the ROT program on this campus. "I realize that former students are going to be sincerely disheartened," said Gunrack, "but this is the end of ROT as we know it, here on this campus."
