Fees Feature Tells Of Music Allotment For University Band

By Mary Solaro
Staff Writer

Editors Note: This is the fourth in a series of special Sagebrush Features.

Fifty cents of the ASUN Fee is allotted to the University of Nevada Music Department each semester. This money is dispersed under the direction of Professor John Carrico, Director of Bands. It is used for various band activities.

In the fall semester the allotment is used to finance travel for the marching band to one Far West Conference football game in which the Nevada team plays. In order to transport the 70 member band, two busses and several university cars are used. Housing and meals must also be paid for. En route to the game, the band usually plays several concerts at high schools for which the band may get free meals. This helps to save money.

In the spring, the allotment finances a tour by the University of Nevada Concert band to various high schools throughout the state. The concert band attempts to visit each high school in the state at least once every two years. This year the tour will be to the southern part of Nevada, particularly the Las Vegas high schools.

This is the first year U. of N. bands have received an allotment. It was obtained by cutting the athletic allotment by fifty cents last year. The allotment plan was approved by the Board of Regents last summer.

The fall allotment this year will also help finance a tour of the University of Nevada Stage Band through Northern California, Oregon, and Washington. The band will give 20 concerts. Most of the tour will be paid for by the schools visited, but additional money is needed to pay for travel.

In addition to the stage band tour, the fee allotment also pays for music and uniform cleaning expenses.

Dr. Carrico is very pleased with the allotment. He feels the Nevada bands have needed one for the last six years.

The next article will deal with how students who are committee chairmen spend their fee allotments.

Nevada's Trachok With Senator Cannon

Before the Convention — Nevada Sen. Howard W. Cannon, left, visits with Dick Trachok, head football coach of the University of Nevada. Trachok was in Washington for a three-day meeting of the American Football Coaches Association. Cannon discussed the university's athletic program and the dispute between the NCAA and AAU which was the subject of Senate Commerce Committee hearings last year.

Horticulture Will Be Given

The University of Nevada's evening division is offering an introductory course in horticulture for the coming spring semester.

Horticultural Science 104 will include a study of the basic principles of plant growth, reproduction, and use, with special emphasis on special techniques that can be applied to school instruction.

The class begins on Feb. 7 and meets from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Mondays in room 234 of the Fleischmann Agriculture building. The fee for the three credit course is $45, payable at registration.

Dr. Robert H. Ruf, Jr., associate professor of horticulture, will teach the class. Dr. Ruf received his B.S. degree from the University of Massachusetts in 1955; his M.S. degree in 1957 and his Ph.D. in 1959 from Cornell University. He has been on the faculty at the University of Nevada since 1959. He is also associate horticulturist, plant, soil, water science, at the University Experiment Station.

Publications Board Meet Scheduled

Publications Board will meet, January 31 for the purpose of discussing a steering committee proposal which will eliminate editors and business managers as voting members of the board.

Chuck Murphy, newly appointed ASUN First Vice President, said that although he favored the proposal, he would represent the wishes of the board in the first Senate meeting of the new year on February 2.

Const. Approved By Regents Board For Social Science

The construction contract for the new Social Science building for the University of Nevada has been officially awarded to McKenzie Construction Inc. by the Board of Regents last Saturday, according to Mr. Edward Pine, director of the physical plant.

Construction will begin within 30 days after the signing of the contract. The site will be the old Mackay football stadium.

The building will house the various social science departments with the ground floor being devoted to the A. L. Higginbotham Department of Journalism.

The firm of Vhay and Ferrari are the architects for the building.

Geology Prof. Lintz Appointed Nat. Council Research Assoc.

Dr. Joseph Lintz, professor of geology, Mackay School of Mines, University of Nevada, has been appointed an associate of the National Academy of Sciences' National Research Council, to serve for one year with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston, Texas.

In making the announcement today, Dr. Vernon E. Scheid, dean of the Mackay School of Mines, confirmed that Dr. Lintz has been granted sabbatical leave from his teaching duties at the mineral college to fulfill the NASA assignment beginning July 1, 1966. He will return to the Mackay School of Mines in the fall of 1967.

At the Manned Spacecraft Center, Dr. Lintz will coordinate and evaluate programs relating to the use of instruments designed especially for the detection of surface and structural features of the earth from the air. From these prototype instruments it is hoped that more sophisticated models can be developed for the exploration of planetary bodies from orbiting spacecraft.

The "remote sensing" program is a continuation of exploratory studies initiated this past year under NASA's Manned Space Science program, which included a series of test flights over areas in the Sierra Nevada selected by a geological team from the Mackay School of Mines of which Dr. Lintz was a member.

At the Center, Dr. Lintz will coordinate the work of specialists from some 17 to 25 agencies representing naval, military, governmental, academic, and industrial fields.

To date research testing of remote sensing equipment under the NASA program has been restricted to domestic sites. Part of Dr. Lintz's responsibility will be to expand this phase of the program to include testing on an international scale.

Nevada Journalist Published Again

The fourth issue of the "Nevada Journalist," a six-page publication in newspaper format, was published during November by the journalism students of the A. L. Higginbotham Department of Journalism. The publication is for people who want to know about the department.

The current issue contains information about the professors in the department, the courses offered, honors won by the department, and other articles that relate to the department and how it operates.

Home Furnishings Course Is Offered

The Sarah Hamilton Fleischmann School of Home Economics, evening division, is offering a course in home furnishings.

The course will deal with the use and application of design principles in planning, selecting, and arranging furnishings and accessories in the home. A prerequisite of art 105, design, or equivalent is required.

Miss Marilyn J. Landrum will teach the class. She received her A.B. and M.S. degrees from the University of Missouri.

The class begins on Feb. 8 and will meet in room 213 of the Fleischmann Home Economics building for lecture from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Tuesday evenings, followed by a lab class from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. An additional one-hour lab each week will be arranged. The fee for the three credit class is $45.

For further information, contact the evening division office, room 200, Clark Administration building at the University of Nevada, or phone 323-2081, Ext. 221.

Move Out Of The FWC?

The talk about Nevada moving out of the Far Western Conference is for the most part in vain. The Board of Regents must act on it and all they want to do is increase the cost of tuition without any benefits. Proposals were presented to them over a year ago concerning this subject and as of now nothing has come of them.

The proposals included special dining commons and housing privileges for athletes, job contracts, and the need for $75,000. The money is the big problem. It can be obtained from two sources — legislative apportionment and booster clubs. So really the only way to get the necessary funds would be from the citizens of Reno. I believe they would contribute, especially the clubs who could use the publicity big-time college athletics would give Reno.

Another argument against Nevada moving out of the Far Western Conference is that of the several minor sports that would suffer because of the lack of money. It is true that these sports would be curtailed after a move out of the FWC but it is entirely probable that these sports would be stronger and have better competition within two years of such a move. The money made from football and basketball competition against "big-name" schools would give these smaller sports more than enough funds to function — with better athletes and against better schools.

The advantages of an accelerated athletic program are numerous. The publicity gained from such a program would help the image of the school and would probably have a direct effect on increased enrollment. The money from attendance at athletic contests involving a good Nevada team and a large athletic school would aid the entire campus. The money made at such games could be used to build a new gym or fieldhouse. This campus could use a swimming pool, more tennis courts, handball courts, and a separate field for gym classes. The money could be provided for these improvements from an accelerated program.

I am not finding fault with the FWC. When Nevada joined in 1952 it was doubtful if we could even field a football team. Now this is a growing campus that is improving its standards in every field. It is possible to leave the FWC now because it has served its purpose.

Let's grow and accept the challenge of big-time athletics. The Reno area has a population of over 100,000 and could support such a program. It is not a question of possibility but one of security. I believe a move from the security of the FWC to the challenge of a major athletic policy and the probability of more and better sports than we have now, is the right and smart thing to do.

Prell Criticized

University Station
 Reno, Nevada
 January 17, 1966

Editor, Sagebrush
 Reno, Nevada
 University Station
 Dear Sir:

Last night on the Allen Prell Show on radio station KCBN, one of our African exchange students, Sam Ajiri, called in to express his amazement and disapproval at the apathetic attitude Americans have toward the coup in Nigeria and toward world affairs in general. Evidently Prell didn't know too much about the Nigerian crisis. To cover up, he quickly switched the topic of personalities, saying that Sam should be "grateful" he could come to the United States and "grateful" for whatever financial assistance he was receiving.

Now there are many American students who go to school on scholarships granted by the government. No one accuses them of being "ungrateful" if they criticize the people or government. Gratitude does not mean meekly accepting everything everyone tries to shove down your throat.

According to the Nevada State Journal of January 9, Sam is the founder and president of an organization for African students for the whole United States. (Pardon me if my information is incomplete.) The future leaders of Africa will be people like Sam. When ignorant, inconsiderate Americans like Allen Prell call them "educated idiots" and accuse their countries of being "immoral" for accepting aid from both the West and Communist countries, what kind of Afro-American relations are we going to have in the years to come? It is our responsibility to show Sam and other guests in our country that all of us are not like Allen Prell.

Sincerely yours,
 Frances Moore

Dale Jack Gives Piano Performance

Mrs. Dale Jack, a graduate student at the University, presented a piano recital last night in the Fine Arts Auditorium.

On the program were three Scarlatti sonatas, the "Sonata Opus No. 78," by Beethoven, "Pictures at an Exhibition," by Mussorgsky, and two short pieces by contemporary composers.

Mrs. Jack has a Bachelor of Arts in music from the University. She is now working on her Master's degree. The recital was in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree.

was so truly outstanding that we felt rather sanguine that he would be one of our finalists and ultimately one of our Root-Tilden Scholars.

During the period I have been intimately concerned with the Root-Tilden selection process, I doubt if any other young man has presented credentials so markedly similar to those envisioned by the founder, the late Chief Justice Arthur Vanderbilt.

May I express, on behalf of the Root-Tilden Committee, the profound sense of loss we feel at the passing of Mr. Ingersoll.

Sincerely yours,

Marines Write

Dear Sir:

As a representative of the officers and men of the United States Marine Corps, I would like to thank the students of the University of Nevada for their support of the Civic Action Fund for Vietnam.

These monies will go to CARE, Incorporated and will be used by the Marines in Vietnam to provide assistance to some of the 2,730,000 Vietnamese in their area of responsibility. It is intended that the provisions supplied these Vietnamese people will help in winning their cooperation and loyalty. You who helped may be assured that these monies will save Marines' lives.

Thank you for your most generous assistance in support of the Marine Corps Reserve Civic Action Fund for Vietnam.

Very Respectfully,

Sagebrush Competition

U of N Rifle Team Now Ready

The U. of N. Rifle Team is presently firing in the Sagebrush League competition which began last Thursday January 13, stated Captain Rolland B. Peterson, faculty advisor for the team.

The university will have three five-member teams participating with the local Naval Reserve team, two rifle teams from Carson City, the Air National Guard team, the Reno Rifle and Pistol Club, and two teams from the Silver Sage League. The competition firing will extend over a ten-week period.

The Sagebrush League competition, recognized officially by the National Rifle Association (NRA), offers trophies, belt buckles, and tie clasps to the best shooters, Capt. Peterson added.

types of competition. There is the shoulder-to-shoulder firing where one team invites one other team to a "shoot-off"; an invitational meet where one team invites two or more teams; and the sectional shoot-off that has all teams in an area shooting for the meet championship.

The university rifle team has a schedule which includes a shoulder-to-shoulder meet with Stanford, Jan. 29; the Northwest Coastal Intercollegiate Sectional match at Oregon State University, Feb.

4-7; a shoulder-to-shoulder with the University of California at Berkeley, March 3-5; the Berkeley Nationals, March 19; a shoulder-to-shoulder in early April; and the Reno Invitational in late April.

The traveling team consists of two five-member teams and two alternate members, Capt. Peterson stated. Members include Nancy Bacon, Ann Nearpass, Olin Beall, Larry Bennett, Ted Dixon, Jim Edwards, Bill Ellis, Roger Gash, Bill Guss, Bob Herron, Craig McKee, Ed McPherson, Richard Norton, Wayne Reed, and Ron Wolff.

Rifle marksmanship will be offered as a P.E. 101 course this year, Capt. Peterson said, depending on how many students show interest in the course.
