Senate Committee To Hold Inquiry

As a result of several complaints, an ASUN Senate Standing Committee on Health Service will investigate the Student Health Service in a two-fold program.

In Wednesday night's Senate meeting, it was alleged that students receive the attention of the service's lone doctor only 10 per cent of the time, while nurses handle 90 per cent of the cases.

The Senate committee will poll students in an attempt to substantiate complaints against the Health Service located in the north wing of the Student Union Building.

Secondly, the body proposes to establish another investigating committee of California and Nevada doctors which could recommend a better set of standards for the service.

Turning to other action, Senate discussed and then tabled a discrepancy regarding Nye Hall's Senate representation.

The proposed constitution for the new dorm requires one Senator. However, the eight - floor structure may be divided into two living groups, and it's possible that another representative may be allowed.

Senate also appointed Sara Anderson to replace ASUN Secretary Alice Cate Dalimore, and Sigma Nu Joe Beloso will take over the Election Board Chairman's duties for Bob Nielson.

Senate has also named Oct. 29 as Frosh-Soph Field Day. The date will give the newly elected Freshman class president a say in the proceeding of the event.

Seven new additions to the ASUN Senate are Duane Wallace, representing White Pine Hall; Donna Hage of Gamma Phi Beta; Janet Smith from Manzanita Hall; Lance Van Lydegraf, Lambda Chi Alpha's representative and Ron Vernon from Sigma Nu.

Budget Needed For ASUN Help

Any club or organization desiring ASUN financial support must submit a budget to ASUN First Vice-President Daryl Drake by Monday Oct. 10.

Drake pointed out that before any budgets can be submitted the treasurer of any organization must first have a conference with Drake who, as first vice-president, is the chairman of the finance control board.

The conferences and budgets must be in by the deadline to comply with the ASUN by-laws.

The finance control board will meet Tuesday, Oct. 11, to appropriate money to the clubs and organizations that have met the regulations.

Sororities Glow In Glorious Red

By Gregg Zive
Assistant Editor

Unknown persons turned sorority row into the Reno red light district for a short time Tuesday night.

The Pi Beta Phi, Kappa Alpha Theta, Delta Delta Delta, and Gamma Phi Beta houses were all visited by men with red paint around midnight.

Front porch lights on each house were lit through the remainder of the night with a definite red hue.

Jacki Ennis, Gamma Phi social chairman, told the Sagebrush the back door and a post on the front porch had been painted red. The damage was estimated at about $50.

The Pi Phi house just had their front porch light painted red, Pi Phi Sue Leary explained. The damage was negligible.

The Theta's outside wall was defaced and their porch light and mailbox were also painted the bright color. Ceci Christian said the sorority had just had their house painted at a cost of $2,000 and even though the actual damage was not much it did ruin the expensive paint job.

Tri-Delta Vice - President Sue McGovern stated that the sorority's mailbox and porch light also had been painted red. Again the financial damage was not too heavy.

All the lights were quickly changed.

A candidate must have an overall 2.2 grade point average, as verified by the office of the registrar. Duties of the Freshman Class President include: appointment of committees, conducting all class business, and co-chairman of the Frosh-Soph Field Day.

The AWS representatives, both Freshman and Off-Campus, will represent their respective groups in the Associated Women Students organization. Candidates must have an overall 2.2 grade point average, and show a desire to carry out the duties of the office representing their respective group.

The Primary election will be held Oct. 5, with the General election following on Oct. 12. The election rally is scheduled for Oct. 4. At the rally, all candidates will be given the opportunity to meet the students and to present their views. The rally will be held in the gymnasium.

There will be a meeting of the Election Board on Sept. 30. All candidates will be given rules for campaign procedures and policies.

Public Test on Nye Furnishings Denied

University of Nevada officials have refused to give a public demonstration of quality requirements met by an out-of-state firm, which the officials say a Reno firm failed to meet.

Yesterday the officials held a meeting to show their reasons for awarding a $220,261 contract to a Michigan company for furnishings in the yet uncompleted Nye Hall dormitory, when a Reno firm submitted a bid which was $6,431 less.

Low bidder Sargent Shoe Case & Fixture Co. of Reno lost the contract because the bottom drawers on a sample dresser broke when a university official stepped on them, said university officials.

Other reasons for the bid going to Uni-line Company of Michigan were also given. Thickness of the top coverings and the general quality of the Sergeant furniture being among the reasons. The thickness was met by Sargent as outlined in the specifications for the bidding.

Yesterday the University officials refused to publicly stand on the Uni-Line drawers to show their superior quality.

Local labor and business leaders say the loss of the contract to the Reno area will harm its economy and effect about 100 workers.

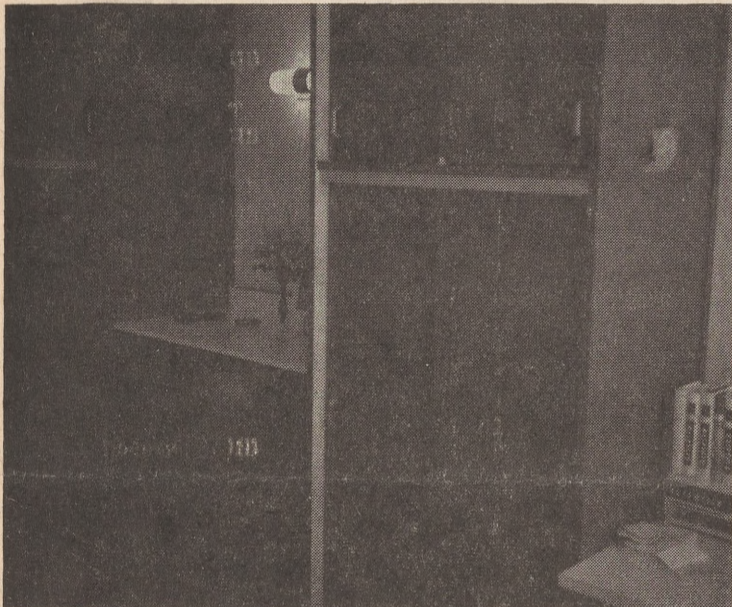

Secretary, Rowland Oakes of the State Contractors Board said the Uni-line company did not have a license to do business in Nevada.

The Sargent company has furnished the new Washoe County Library in Reno, the First National Bank's main office in Reno, and the new Ceasar's Palace in Las Vegas.

Turkey Shoot Slated For This Afternoon

The Sundowners, University of Nevada's good-fellowship group, is having their first Turkey Shoot of the year today at 2:30 p.m. in Horseman's Park.

The entire student body is invited. A donation of one dollar will be collected.

Kersey sticks foot in Sargent's drawers—opens mouth and refuses to publicly stand on Uni-Line's furniture.

Nevada's Friends of SNCC May Drop Ties with National

The University of Nevada chapter of the Friends of SNCC are considering dropping affiliation with the national organization.

Chairman Pat Gaffey said he believes there is a very good chance the campus chapter will leave the ranks of the national organization because of its leader, Stokley Carmichael.

"His beliefs, at least what he says are his beliefs, are very dangerous to the civil rights movement and the country. Black Nationalism is not what our organization believes in," Gaffey explained.

The primary purpose of the campus group is to raise funds to support work done by the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee in the South.

"Many people think we are a 'Snick' group but it is not true. 'Snick' is found only in the South while the Friends of SNCC are found in the North to finance the southern organization. However, all the northern groups are directly affiliated to SNCC," stated the local chairman.

Gaffey said if the campus group was to break the bond with SNCC it might seek to join another civil rights group except for the Congress for Racial Equality since CORE leaders follow the same beliefs as Carmichael.

The organization had a strength of 15 members last June and Gaffey said the lack of membership might cause the group to dissolve if national affiliation is cut.

The first meeting of the semester for the campus group is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday night. The meeting is open to any interested student.

Forum Accepting Written Material For First Issue

The University of Nevada Forum magazine is now accepting contributions for the October issue. The deadline for articles is Monday, September 26.

Articles may be on any subject of interest. All students, faculty members, and administrators are invited to use the Forum as medium for expressing their views and opinions, according to Jan Webb, Forum editor.

Articles are to be type-written in complete publication form, and they should be no longer than three type-written pages. Jan Webb asks that all articles be mailed to the Forum, Box 8201, University Station.

The publication is also in need of a business manager, according to Miss Cate. Requirements include full student status with a 2.2 grade point average.

Advisory System In Sad Shape

The entire advisory system at the University of Nevada is in need of a general overhauling.

It was brought out in the leadership conference at Lake Tahoe recently that several students, particularly freshmen, wouldn't even know their advisors if they saw them.

Further, it was felt many students have a difficult time reaching their advisors, who are also quite busy conducting classes.

Several students have registered complaints concerning fouled-up schedules, and many upperclassmen discover on the eve of their senior year that some of their early requirements haven't been fulfilled.

In addition, many colleges at the University have a large faculty turnover. Some students see up to four different advisors during their struggle for a bachelor's degree.

It's felt that many novice advisors do not have full knowledge of student requirements.

With enrollment growing the advisory problem will become worse in the coming years.

Student government should take the initiative now to satisfy student needs. The ASUN Senate should draw up a series of recommendations to be submitted to the Academic Affairs Committee.

Possible proposals could be:

—Student advisors, consisting of upperclassmen who could advise lower classmen and train them, in turn, to advise in their senior year.

—Appointments should be made with advisors as the semester progresses to insure students realize their own future programs.

—A faculty board, made up of seasoned professors in each college who could oversee and check the progress of the student advisors.

Further, every student should take it upon himself to read the student catalog and learn the requirements he must fulfill in order to graduate.

Mononucleosis Warning

By Jennifer Jennings
Staff Reporter

As University of Nevada and hundreds of other students return to classes, college physicians and nurses may be faced with many young men and women complaining of feeling tired and listless and other difficult-to-pin-down symptoms.

Many will simply be suffering from laziness. But others will have a legitimate reason for "back to school slump"—infectious mononucleosis.

A theory that "mono" is transmitted by close personal contact has led Nevada students to romantically term it the "kissing disease." Yet when it strikes, infectious mononucleosis can be a miserable experience, accompanied by two weeks of bed rest. "Mononucleosis consists of swollen glands and if the victim has tonsils, it is frequently accompanied by tonsillitis," said Mrs. Mary E. Johnson, head nurse.

At the University of Nevada, said Mrs. Johnson, there are very few recorded cases of mono. So far this year, there has been no cases at the infirmary. Last year, there were only five or six.

In most cases, the students involved don't even miss any classes, let alone several weeks of school. At Nevada, mono is worst in the spring.

There is no known cure for it, and it is diagnosed by a blood test. It has many of the symptoms of many other diseases, such as appendicitis and hepatitis.

Experts claim that mono can be an indicator of emotional stress. Recent studies, conducted by the Tulane University School of Social Work in New Orleans revealed that students who being treated for mono were depressed at the time they became ill.

ASUN Prexy Speaks Out

By Dave Russell

"I would like to express to student leaders, my opinion and thoughts on the student's Role in Policy Making."

In deciding upon the role of student government, I believe it is necessary to consider the part that students take in the University community. As students or products, so to speak, of the University, we have a working knowledge of the problems that affect us. More important we have some ideas for their possible solution.

It is the realization that students are apt to assume responsible action in carrying through with decisions that are made that leads me to believe, as collegians, we should be sharing a considerable responsibility in the campus community.

In a number of schools, student government is in form only. But at our university we do have some substance. The administration and the faculty have provided us with an autonomy that most schools do not have.

Students at our University in past years have made decisions that have had an affect on University policy. But that was only after the students gave much thought and consideration to something and came up with a plausible decision.

There have not been many times in our history of student government that this has happened. Normally students preoccupy themselves with superficial college life,—such things as school spirit and social events—things that always exist and will continue to do so, with or without an autonomous student government.

It is my affirmed belief that if student government is to maintain its autonomy at the University of Nevada it is going to have to recognize the need for expanded involvement in the University community and to assert more responsibility.

It is not enough to accomplish those things that are consistently the responsibility of student government. The student senate and others should start acquainting themselves with programs that will assist in making Nevada a better academic institution.

We must start interesting ourselves in such endeavors as course curriculums, grading, (possibly creating pass and fail grades for some courses), a decision one way or another on oluntary ROTC, and the possibility of initiating a teacher evaluation system or an honor system.

It must be realized that to accomplish these goals, it will require the support of the faculty and the administration. We will have to work with all established parts of the campus community, shownig them that we are reasonably and legitimately concerned about bettering our University.

Many of these actions will have to be initiated by us as students, because many faculty and administrative personnel will not take it upon themselves, for it might rock the boat or require a little work.

As a last comment, I must point out that, in becoming more involved on the campus, students, particularly student senators, will have put out a lot more interest and enthusiasm. It is going to require a lot more time and energy, but senators elected to a position of responsibility should have the interest of the students at heart.

Begin now to think about how you can assist the students of our university in obtaining a better education, for that is your obligation.

Letters to the Editor

"... In the Name of Naked Power ..."

Sagebrush
Editorial editor

It is already part of registration history at the University of Nevada that for the first time Graduate Students were required to pay an $8.00 student health fee. Until this year that fee had been optional. Last year, however, the ASUN Senate voted to require graduate students to pay the fee.

Following this action by the student Senate, the Board of Regents approved the arbitrary request of the undergraduate body-politic. It is also a matter of history that graduate students at the University of Nevada were neither extended an offer of consultation, nor even informed individually or as a group that the $8.00 fee would be a required financial imposition at Fall registration ceremonies.

We all know the old story of taxation without representation debate that took place about two hundred years ago; therefore, there is hardly any need to cite precedent or call lame Ben from the grave. But unless such backslidings in the democratic process are not checked, the errors committed in the name of naked power may engender a hundred others to spring up like viruses in a mouldy culture.

It is, of course, the principle underlying the actions of the ASUN and Board of Regents (and not the impatience of outsiders to seek reimbursement of a petty charge) that has piqued the tempers of many graduate students. Therefore, we shall organize.

I do not believe that the arbitrary fee was levied in a spirit of jest or anger on the part of either party. All need and want medical aid and treatment at the lowest possible rates. What does seem to be a bit suspect about this particular fee for all students at the University is that the services that it purports to extend are both inadequate and ineffective for a growing student enrollment.

Perhaps there are plans already afoot to remedy the totally inadequate services at the medical center (one MD-GP who has office hours one hour per day).

I do not know what qualifications nurses have to diagnose illnesses or prescribe treatment, but when a patient is sick he usually cries out for the doctor first and the nurse later—and then the nurse only to administer treatment prescribed by the doctor. It is the first university that I have had the honor of attending that did not staff itself with enough doctors to take care of its charges (i.e., to insure that medical facilities were available and ready to deal with almost any emergency short of heart-surgery).

"Ineffective" may in this case represent the wrong idea; perhaps missing is the proper word to apply to "services" at the Medical center. I believe this is as much as saying that there is no actual policy in evidence concerning the student health fee.

What the ASUN Senate acted upon seems more a myth than a program. Now as a recipient (potential in more than one respect) of medical aid on campus since I have paid the fee, I am entitled I believe to at least $8.00's worth of medical attention, and though that does not get you beyond the waiting room in the private MD's office, it should at a state university get you into the doctor's office, if only to discover that he isn't there.

Perhaps for the time being there ought to be a sign tacked to the main door of the Medical center directing the sick to Washoe County Medical Center or Berkeley or Mexico City. But long-range reason offers another solution: request that a contact made is a contact fulfilled. There is a doctor in the house.

Student Parking

Editor
Sagebrush
Dear Sir:

This office would like to thank you for the excellent cooperation that was received on your first issue in bringing to the students information on parking.

The aerial photograph published in the first issue clearly designated the areas allocated to student parking. It is pointed out that the greatest number of student parking places are within 1500 feet of the library.

Thank again for your cooperation; it has been most helpful.

Very truly yours,

Gardnerville First to Sign For U of N Band Day

The Douglas County High School Band is the first Nevada band to register for the annual University of Nevada "Band Day," to be held on Saturday, Oct. 15.

The Gardnerville band, under the direction of A. Braydon Burton, has taken part in the annual event for the past several years.

This year's "Band Day" will take place in the new Mackay Stadium during the football game between the University of Nevada and San Francisco State College.

Special music and formations are being arranged by Charles Bickhart, student assistant director of the University of Nevada band. Each band will be featured in an entry in addition to participating in the massed band formations.

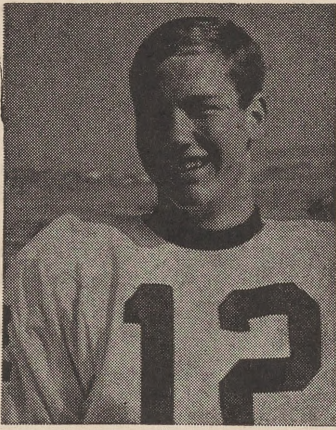

A number of bands from Nevada and California schools partake each year in the special band show which is conducted by John Carrico, director of university bands.

Wolf Pack's Ault Leads Offense

Junior Chris Ault will take the helm of the Wolf Pack offensive team tomorrow in the quarterback slot. It will be the second year that the physical education major from San Bernardino will be calling the signals.

Ault, a husky 5-9 160-pounder, wound up the 1965 season as one of the best passers in the league.

Chris was an all-around athlete in high school, where he lettered in football, basketball, track and baseball.

He currently resides in Reno with his wife Kathy. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

Sign-Up Deadline

All groups desiring to enter a team in the intramural flag football competition must register with Intramurals Director F. Donald Tibbets before next Tuesday. Entries must file before Sept. 27 at 5 p.m.

Wolf Pack Invades Willamette To Open 1966 Football Season

The University of Nevada football squad has completed its final week of training before opening at Willamette University tomorrow.

In recent practice sessions, Coach Dick Trachok has praised the team's performances. Standouts have been found on both defense and offense. Giant 250-pound tackle Billy Ray Holman has turned in fine play. Also tabbed as top-notch lineman were guards Gerald Troy and Dennis Flinn, ends Bill Houk and Rick Redican, and tackle Ben Blinn.

Deefnsive backs ike Sala, Doug Carder, Bill Gaecher, Spike Jamison, and Bill Perry have also looked sharp in recent practices.

As for the offense, quarterback Chris Ault, end Jack Byrom, and fullback Howard Briles have been teaming up to form an effective scoring attack.

The punting chores are to be handled by Byrom Jamison, or Tim Heskett, while extra points will be kicked by either Joe Sobeck or Tony Trevino.

A scouting report on Willamette shows that the club will definitely be tough, although losing its opener to Easter Washington

State 32-18 mistakes proved the margin of victory.

Next week the Pack takes on Santa Barbara in Reno.

Tentative Wolf Pack starting lineups for the Willamette clash will be:

Offense
Center, Clint DeWitt, 6' 2" junior, 215; guards Terry Barcellos, 5' 8" senior, 180, and Tony Betita, 6' senior, 220; tackles Mike Cole, 6' junior, 230, and Ron Moose, 6' 2" senior, 230; ends Jack Byrom, 5' 8" junior, 160, and Ed Hoefffer, 6' 3" senior, 220; quarterback Chris Ault, 5' 9" junior, 165; backs Bob Johnston, 5' 9" sophomore, 190; Joe Sobeck, 6' senior, 215, and Art Bayer, 5' 10" senior, 175.

Defense
Ends, Bill Houck, 6' 1" junior, 205, and Rick Redican, 6' 1" junior, 190; tackles Ben Blinn, 6' 2" junior, 230, and Bill Holman, 5' 11" senior, 250; middle guard Gerald Troy, 6' 1" senior, 230; linebackers Ron Regan, 6' 1" junior, 190; Doug Carder, 5' 11" senior, 208, and Mike Sala, 6' junior, 200; and safeties Jim Jamison, 6' 2" senior, 190; Tony Martinez, 5' 7" senior, 170, and Bill Gaechter, 5' 10" senior, 180.

Chico Hosts FWC Runners... Wolf Pack Short of Veterans

A relatively inexperienced Wolf Pack cross country team squares off against six other Far Western Conference teams tomorrow when Nevada travels to Chico, Calif., for the Chico State Invitational Cross Country Meet. Southern Oregon College will also enter a team.

Nevada, conference winner last year, has lost six of seven members of the championship-winning team. Only veteran miler Ron Lee returns. Mark Wynne, who set several records last year, is now in the service.

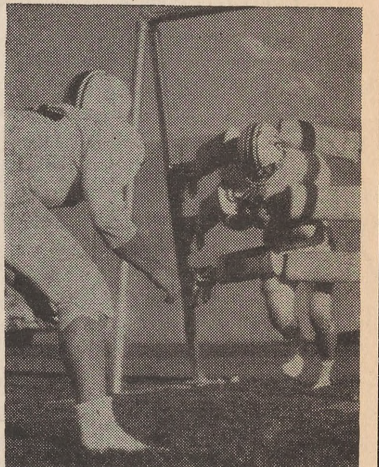

Teams participating in the meet are Sacramento State, Humboldt State, Cal State Hayward, San Francisco State and University of California at Davis.

Sacramento State is generally regarded as the team to beat. The Hornets were runners-up to the Wolf Pack last year.

Coach Dick Dankworth is optimistic about tomorrow's meet, although he stated that the team is young and inexperienced. He felt team depth may be a problem, but that the potential is good.

Entering the meet for Nevada are Lee, Arlan Melendez, Pete Reams, Steve Dunlap, Kevin Sherlock, Bob Rautio and Gary Elam. Rautio, who just returned to Nevada, holds the school record in the javelin.

Silver and Blue practice for coming season.

No Cheers Heard in Old Mackay Stadium -- Just Construction

By Sue Blakely
Managing Editor

The northern part of the campus, which once rang with cries of encouragement for the Wolf Pack, now echoes the sounds of construction.

A new social sciences building is being constructed on the site of the old Mackay Stadium. The four-story building will house the departments of journalism, history, political science, sociology, anthropology, and psychology.

Contracted February 28 of this year, the building will be completed by February 28 of 1967. It will be ready for student occupancy by next fall, says University Engineer Ed Pine.

Furniture for the building, which has not yet been purchased, will cost approximately $200,000.

The $1,425,500 building is being built by McKinsey Construction Company. At present, it is 35% complete, with preparations being made to pour the roof.

A federal government grant of $116,011 was given for construction of the yet-unnamed social sciences building. The grant, said Pine, was made due to the percentage of room available for graduate studies.

Various types of study areas will be available to students in the new building. A visual alley, one-way observation labs, and a colony for small animals will be used by psychology students.

Journalism students will have a photo workshop, including a darkroom, a radio and television laboratory, and typography and teletype rooms available for their use.

The journalism work area was planned largely by Professor Emeritus Alfred L. Higginbotham, who retired as head of the department last spring.

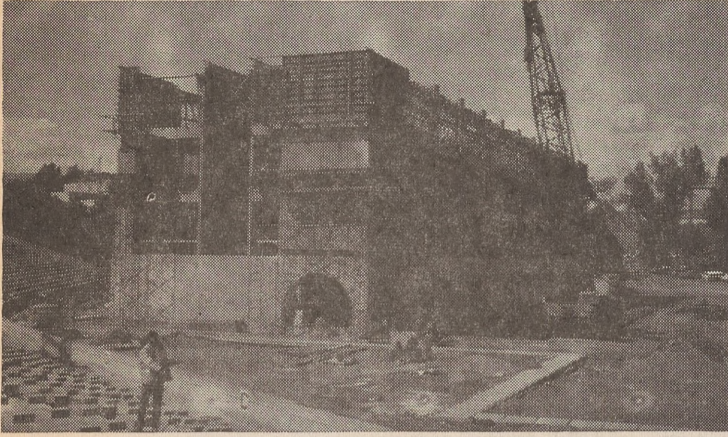

Picture Contest

Seeking a new look at the campus, the yearbook is sponsoring a photograph essay contest. Top pictures will be published in the Artemisia with due recognition.

Pictures may be submitted to the mailbox in the A.S.U.N. office or to the Artemisia office on the basement of the journalism building.

Judy Crowell, yearbook editor, says color or black and white pictures of a wide variety of subjects are possible for selection.

For further details contact Miss Crowell at 323-0781 or 323-0881. The deadline for submitting pictures is Oct. 14.

Library Given To University By Prof's Widow

A "professional library" of about 180 volumes has been donated to the University of Nevada's journalistic department by Mrs. Keiste Janulis, widow of Professor Janulis, former journalism professor. Janulis died this summer.

The books cover the field of journalism, "with a little bit of everything," said Professor Theodore Conover, head of the Journalism department.

Also donated to the department was a considerable amount of photography equipment, which will be used by the photography classes.

The books will be in Professor Conover's office until the new Journalism Building is completed next spring. They will then be moved to the new Journalism library.

Professor Janulis joined the journalism department at the University of Nevada in 1946 and remained here until his death after a brief illness on August 11, 1966.

He was honored recently by the Board of Regents in a statement of appreciation issued "in recognition of the deep dedication and significant contributions to journalism by Professor Janulis until his death . . ."

The statement also said "he was an able counselor of students, who encouraged them to be impatient with mediocrity and to strive for professional skill and quality."

"He stimulated students with his far-ranging mind, his curiosity about the world, the news events which shape it, and the great variety of subjects in which he read avidly."

During his career as a journalist, he covered the Normandy invasion, the German invasion of Poland, and the Battle of Britain as a member of the Army Psychological Warfare Division.

Janulis got his B.A. at Lehigh University and his Master's at Columbia University.

First Classic Film Held Next Week

The End of Innocence, an Argentinian film, will be shown September 27. It will be the first film in the University's Film Classic series, beginning its seventh season.

The End of Innocence is a study of an adolescent girl raised in a puritan atmosphere by her over-protective mother.

Showing with this film will be The River, a short feature on the Mississippi River.

Other films to be shown at a later date include The Tales of Hoffman, The World of Apu, Wuthering Heights, Orpheus, and Ashes and Diamonds.
