Graduates Required to Join GSA

by Gregg Zive
Assistant Editor

All graduate students will have to join the newly organized Graduate Student Association if the Board of Regents approve the association and its constitution.

The constitution was finished Tuesday night and an article was approved making membership mandatory for all graduate students. There were over 50 grad students at the meeting and 32 proxy votes were official after all submitted had been challenged. All proxy votes had to be in writing to be official and eligible.

The cost for grads will be $1 a semester for all students carrying six or less credits and $2 a semester for those with a load of seven or more hours. The fee will be paid when the grad students register.

Officers will be elected within the next three weeks. An election committee headed by Robert Dean of the psychology department are working on setting up the elections.

The new organization will have a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, program director, and a board of directors.

There will be four directors—each from a separate college. The four directors and the rest of the officers will form an executive committee.

The program director will be responsible for scheduling lecture programs, speakers, and all social functions for the association.

Don Thigten of the agronomy department was the chairman of this week's meeting. The constitution requires a minimum of six meetings a year.

The organization will ask for recognition from the Board of Regents at the regents next meeting which will be in December.

William Lutz, creator of the organization, does not look for any trouble in getting the approval of the Regents.

Groups to Study English "A" Value

by Ed Parsons
Political Editor

A Senate approved committee has been formed to investigate the compulsory ROTC program at the University through a series of hearings.

The investigatory committee, one of three formed by the Senate Wednesday evening, will schedule seven public hearings in which members of the administration, ROTC cadre officers, faculty members, student leaders, interested off-campus persons and other University students may participate.

The hearings will deal with an evaluation on the program in respect to credit allowed in the Basic course and possibility of voluntary ROTC, according to the committee's Chairman Dave Firestone.

The probe by the six member committee, including Firestone, Lew Carnahan, Dave Diedrichsen, Ed Horgon, Karen Dennison, and Riley Beckett, will continue to the end of the fall semester, at which time a comprehensive and documented report will be submitted to the ASUN Senate with the recommendations of the committee.

The other two committees formed by the Senate are intended to investigate the English "A" program and a possible teacher-course evaluation program.

The English "A" investigation will be headed by Pat Tullis and will involve a series of four formal hearings. Faculty members from the English department and other departments will be asked to air their views and consider the fees involved in the program and the break-off point for qualifying a student for the English "A" course.

The final investigation body constructed by the Senate will consider a teacher-course evaluation program. Seven questions have been proposed by Committee Chairman Dick Harris, as initial steps for consideration of such a plan.

Harris intends to have the committee make recommendations after evaluating the purpose of Teacher - Course program. Who should do the evaluating, exactly what must be evaluated, (teachers, texts, etc.) when the evaluations should be made, what grading system the evaluations would be made on, who should get the reports, and should students vote on tenure will be considered.

Beauties Vie for Queenship

"Nevada, where the action is," has been chosen by the members of the 1966 Homecoming committee, under the direction of Chairman Rick Shelby, as the theme for this year's celebration.

Eight coeds will be vying for the title of Homecoming Queen for the 47th annual event. All campus males will vote for the women of their choice on October 18 and 19. The queen will be crowned at the Waves Frolic.

Representing Delta Delta Delta sorority is Marsha Ross, 19, a blue-eyed blond from Henderson, Nevada. Marsha is a German major with aspirations to travel anywhere. She represents the University as a cheerleader and is a member of the 1966 Homecoming Committee. Marsha's big dislike is wearing shoes.

Paula Brown, 20, is Pi Beta Phi's candidate. Paula is majoring in elementary education and hopes to teach in the New England area after graduation. She is secretary-treasurer of Sagens and was rush chairman for the Pi Phi's last year. Her favorite place . . . Miguel's Restaurant.

Kappa Alpha Theta's candidate is Jody Dube, a 19 year old blue-eyed blond. Animal science is her major and she hopes to continue with veterinary science after graduation. Jody is also a cheerleader and a member of the ski team. In addition, she is secretary for the Rally Committee.

Lois Ann Lewis has been chosen to represent Gamma Phi Beta. Lois is 19 and comes to the University of Nevada from Fallon, Nevada, as a major in physical education. After graduation she plans to enter the Peace Corps. She is also a cheerleader and likes happy people.

The off campus independents will be represented by Kathy Diix, 19, who hails from Incline Village, Lake Tahoe. Kathy is a journalism major and has ambitions to work in Public Relations after graduation. Her major interest is people and the college life.

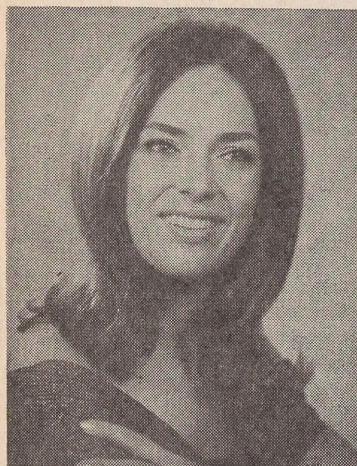

Juniper Hall's candidate is 21-year-old Pat Hammond. Pat is a nursing major and a member of the Students Nurse's Association. The brown haired, green eyed, coed dislikes the Dodger's.

Bonnie Ostroff, a 20-year-old journalism major will represent Manzanita Hall. Her ambition is to be a news correspondent. Bonnie is from Las Vegas, Nevada and likes ice cream but can't stand homework.

Frosh Presidential Race Draws 510 Votes

A total of 510 votes were cast in the primary elections for Freshman Class President and Freshman AWS Representative, according to Elections Board Chairman Joe Beloso.

In the Freshman President's race independent George Keele led the field with a total of 185 votes, followed by Lambda Chi Jim Hardesty with 115. Hardesty and Keele will vie for the position in the general elections. The other two runners Alan Means and Dan Guild received totals of 110 and 95 respectively.

In the Freshman AWS Representative contest, Carol Pyarraguirre tallied 81 votes with Kathy Klaich in second position with 63. Molly Malone captured 52, Dennise Foster, 45, Terry Christensen 26 and Kathy Wolf received 12.

No primary race was needed for the AWS off-campus representative as there are only two candidates filed for the position. Mary Ritterby and Cyndy Wedetzer will appear on the ballot in the general election next Wednesday.

"The total of 510 votes represented about 40% of the Freshman vote" Beloso commented. "This is an improved figure from past freshman elections, however, there is still room for improvement," he continued. "The independent vote was a significant factor in the primaries" he said.

The general elections will be held in the Student Union Wednesday, October 12.

In addition, the Sagebrush has slated a mock State election at the same time with the names of all State candidates scheduled to appear on the ballot.

Editorially Speaking Out!

ASUN Senate on Right Road
But Must Lead Students Now

The ASUN Senate has finally pointed its nose down a path toward becoming a workable, functioning body with student benefit uppermost in mind. However, the body should get cracking and not waver as exemplified in the past.

The student governing body has initiated four committees which will study problems and ideas concerning students themselves. Recently a Senate Standing Committee was formed to delve into alleged charges that the Student Health Service served students in only a part-time capacity.

Students charge the 24-hour service with having a doctor on duty only 10 per cent of the time.

Wednesday night Senate created three new committees. One will evaluate the need and feasibility of a Teacher Evaluation System.

Another group will investigate the University's English "A" program, and the third will probe compulsory ROTC.

Student government is generally felt on a national scale to be somewhat of a paper tiger.

It was brought out in the Pacific Coast President's Association Conference last April that students not involved in governmental activities don't feel they derive any real benefit from such bodies. The Pacific Coast Leaders tended to blame this attitude on apathy.

Apathy in this sense, however, is a vague, misleading term. Students vitally interested in sports, grades, or the fair sex are naturally not interested in student government. Other work for a living and have little time.

Lack of interest in student politics is not apathy, but zeal directed toward other interests.

Students don't generally benefit from student government simply because government does nothing for students that affects them profoundly.

Further, when our Senate attempts to help students it goes just so far and then quits. Last year the Teacher Evaluation System was brought up, a committee was formed, and then the matter was dropped.

Bodies have been created to study and solve the campus parking problem. The groups generally meet only once during a school year and nothing is determined.

The President's Cabinet, formed by former ASUN President Keith Lee two years ago, met several times for a grand lunch on student money, yet never functioned as a beneficial body.

The Senate committee probing the Health Service was created three weeks back, but hasn't reported a thing.

Students become disgusted with do-nothing governments.

Senate now has a foot in the doorway toward bettering student opinion toward itself. The four committees it has created should meet and meet and meet until a definite conclusion and decision can be reached.

Instead of adopting powerless recommendations, Senate should review committee evaluations and pass definite legislation.

Only then will students rise out of their "apathetic" mire and say, "Good job Senate, what are you going to do for us next?"

THE ODDS ARE AGAINST SIG

As the search goes on for a mate for Seigfried the chances become less. Studies show that the white swan that floats around Manzanita Lake is a lot like the people who watch from the shores.

It is no sure bet that Sig will even have anything to do with a new mate, if she arrives.

The Nevada Fish and Game Commission explained that there are many factors involved in remating of a swan, the age of the bird, his temperament and the environment.

Another important factor in his love for the original mate. If it was true love, he may not be able to shake the thoughts of her.

If loyalty and love win out they may not be swimming wing and wing next spring.

On the other hand, if Sig feels in need of a mate, "come spring", he may submerge that long neck of his and forget to come up.

LOOKING FOR A HUSBAND

There is always talk about freshman co-eds entering college and quickly receiving their MRS. degree. This may be true, early college marriages are on the rise.

For the co-ed who is looking for a life-long, secure marriage, here is a sure plan; marry an archaeologist, the older and more appealing you are.

BIG WORDS AND WIDE EYES

As the new freshman pour into the classrooms for the first time they are encountered by unfamiliar poly-syllable words from the podium. They lean to one another and ask, "What did he say?" The other replying, "I couldn't hear him."

Your editorial on Bonehead English really hit home with me. We have for years been stressing the importance of basic English and spelling. Earlier this year we began our first program designed to better prepare students for the University. We realize all too well this need.

WHO'S IN THERE?

"Let me out! Let me out!" These were the words that a Reno policeman heard as he passed a parked car in downtown Reno.

The distraught voice emanated from the trunk of the car.

According to an article that appeared in a local newspaper, it was all a "fraternity joke."

Apparently Dwight Connely and his four brothers were on a ride and if it wasn't for a concerned lady on Mill Street, who reported to police that a man had been forced into the trunk of a near-by car, the ride might have lasted much longer.

The article said that all five men were members of Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity.

They were all released, including Connely, after they were warned about the seriousness of the incident.

Business Fraternity Attends Confab

Seven members of Nevada's chapter of Delta Sigma Pi, an international business fraternity, will travel to Sacramento this Saturday to attend the Western Regional Conference.

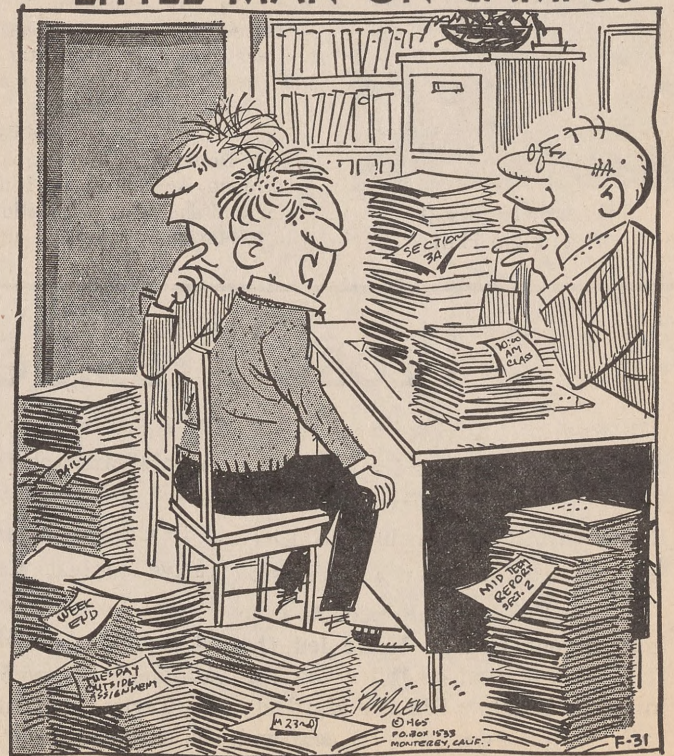

The two-day meeting will be held at the Sacramento Inn. Business and pleasure will be combined in such activities as a general business meeting, workshops, panels, speakers, and luncheons.

The Nevada group will deliver a special presentation in an effort to attract the 1969 Grand Chapter Conference to the Reno-Lake Tahoe area.

Mike Pollard is the fraternity's official representative. Other members who will attend are David Anderson, Bill Cahoon, Bill Dunfield, Robert Meriweather, and Chris Watkins.

Journalism Dept. to Observe Newspaper Week Oct. 10-14

By Louise White

On observance of National Newspaper Week — October 10 through 14 — the Journalism Department has invited a group of Reno professional journalists to speak during the week to 18 journalism classes.

On Monday, Bob Smith, wire editor for the Reno Evening Gazette, will explain the intricacies of the wire services to students in news interpretation.

On Tuesday, a team of four reporters—Ed Allison, Dean Smith, and Lee Harlan of the Gazette, and Jack Stevenson of the Nevada State Journal—will discuss their work experiences with the news gathering and reporting class.

Rollan Melton, Gazette editor, will share his knowledge with students in public relations, editing and photo-journalism.

Speaking with Melton to the editing class on Tuesday will be Warren Lerude, Gazette news editor. Lerude, a former AP radio news writer, will also speak to the radio news class.

On Wednesday, photojournalism students will hear Lonnie Peck, Gazette photographer, as well as Melton. The editorial writing class will receive writing tips from Journal editor Paul Leonard and Journal columnist Frank Johnson.

On Thursday morning, Reno Newspapers' advertising director Al Canton and retail advertising manager Karl Karrich will present some of the problems an advertising neophyte will face.

At noon, the campus undergraduate chapter of Sigma Delta Chi (the professional journalism society), with President Ed Pearce as official host, will hold a luncheon meeting in the dining commons. Guests at the lunch will be Charles Stout, president, and William Brister, automation consultant, Speidel Newspapers; Charles Murray, publisher, Reno Newspapers; and Dean Ralph Irwin, College of Arts and Science.

Charles Stout, as president of Speidel Newspapers Inc., headquartered in Reno, heads a group of 10 newspapers in 8 states, including both Reno papers.

After the luncheon meeting, Stout, Murray and Brister will speak to the reporting class.

The Journalism Department's Newspaper Week program will close Friday with Gazette reporter Pat Rogero and Journal reporter Mimi LaPlante sharing their experiences with the news interpretation classes, while Gazette editorial writer John Sanford speaks to would-be editorialists.

Of the eighteen professional journalists who will participate in the week-long program, half have either attended or graduated from the University of Nevada Department of Journalism, Prof. Theodore Conover, chairman, said.

Heavy Schedule for Gorrell and Laird With National English Conference

Dr. Robert Gorrell and Dr. Charlton Laird have a busy schedule of National English Conferences ahead of them this month. Beginning on tomorrow Oct. 8, Dr. Gorrell and Dr. Laird will attend four successive meetings in the Los Angeles area.

Dr. Gorrell will lecture to secondary school instructors on rhetoric and composition, and Dr. Laird will speak on language. These four Saturday sessions are special training clinics for secondary school instructors. The meetings will be held in Long Beach, Norwalk, Pasadena, and on the U.C.L.A. campus.

Dr. Laird will miss the last of these meetings in order to speak at the Idaho Conference of English Teachers on Oct. 21. This state convention was organized last year and Dr. Laird was a guest at that time also. This year he will speak at the banquet and will read "Goldilocks and the Three or More Rhetorics".

Dr. Gorrell will be traveling to New Mexico to speak at the State convention of the New Mexico Council of the Teachers of English on Oct. 25. He will also act as chairman of the college section of the National Council of English conference at the University of Illinois on Oct. 17 and 18.

Students Plan Dorm Council

By Kathy Wright

Students living in Manzanita, Juniper, Artemisia, Lincoln, and White Pine Halls are forming a Residence Hall Council. The council will be comprised of all five presidents, senators, and social chairmen of the residence halls. The social chairmen will sit in as voting members only when social activities are being considered.

The main objective of the council is to unite the five residence halls into a corporate group. "The members of the residence halls are not independents. They are members of their individual living groups. The name 'Independent' should be left to the group of students living off campus," stated Maxine Forbush, president.

The Residence Hall Council will be the voice of all the non-Greek living groups. The members will meet with sorority Panhellenic Council and fraternity Inter-Fraternity Council to make decisions on matters concerning University sponsored activities.

The members of the council are: Ken Burnham, President, Lincoln Hall and Residence Hall Council chairman; Maxine Forbush, President, Manzanita Hall; Candy McGimsey, President, Juniper Hall; Kathy Surh, President, Artemisia Hall; Jim Ryan, President, White Pine Hall.

Janet Smith, Senator, Manzanita Hall; Mary Nesmith, Senator, Juniper Hall; Holly Cooper, Senator, Artemisia Hall; and Dwayne Wallace, Senator, White Pine Hall.

The members held their first meeting on Sept. 29, in Dean Mobley's office. The main points under discussion were the five-dorm formal, homecoming, and inter-social activities.

The council is cooperating with Senate's Standing Committee on Residence Halls and Dining Commons. Ron Shane, member of the standing committee, has asked the residence hall presidents to compile a list of compliments and complaints of dining commons food. A meeting of the standing committee and the council will be held on Oct. 13, Juniper Hall lobby.

Homecoming is now the immediate concern of the council. A float committee has been formed.

Atmospherium Building Unique

Jack Porray

The University of Nevada's Fleischmann Atmospherium-Planetarium is indeed an unusual structure. The shell of the building, weighing approximately 180 tons, is supported on only two points, which form the entrances.

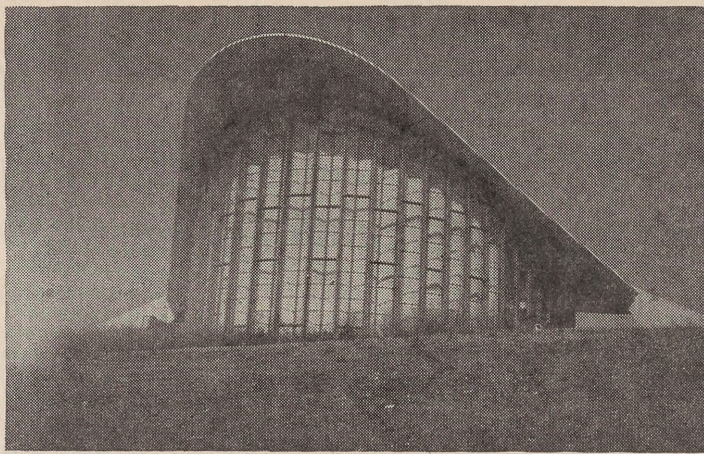

The shell of the building is in the shape of a hyperbolic paraboloid. This is a typical saddle shape. The highest point of the paraboloid is centered on due south. This area has been entirely glassed in. Behind the wall of glass are a series of 19 hollow louvers which comprise solar panels and mark the beginning of an elaborate solar heating plant.

These panels are painted black on one side and white on the other for the purpose of absorbing and reflecting respectively, solar radiation striking them. Air is sent through these panels and is thereby heated through re-radiation of heat energy into the interior. This is the same effect used in greenhouses.

This heated air is then forced into small coils immersed in an 18,000 gallon insulated water tank. This tank acts as a heat exchange unit, in which heat is transferred from the coils to the water. The heated water can then be stored indefinitely.

Automatic valves can release the water to various parts of the building through insulated pipes. This water is circulated through coils across which air streams from a blower. The air is thus warmed, and then sent into the building.

Cold water from a well 200 feet below the ground can be pumped into the system for cooling during the summer. At this time the white side of the panels are turned towards the sun, reflecting its energy and thereby maintaining a cool temperature in the panels.

This solar heating system is one of the complex experiments presently being conducted by the Desert Research Institute. Extensive records of internal and external conditions are being kept to evaluate the efficiency of this system. If proved successful, it is quite possible that future buildings in Nevada and in other parts of the country will be heated with solar power.

Film Shown To Students

The faculty and students of the College of Education were shown a film demonstration, "Project Discovery," Tuesday by Mark Rife, a representative of the Photo and Sound Co. of San Francisco.

The "Project Discovery" is sponsored jointly by Bell and Howell and by Encyclopedia Britannica Films and is directed by Ohio State University. The film dealt with the four schools that were granted loans of films by Bell and Howell and by Encyclopedia Britannica Films and exactly what was done by the teachers and children with the films.

Mr. Rife hopes that the students from the College of Education will benefit from the demonstration and that in teaching their classes in the future that they will use the films to help the children in their classes.

Also attending the demonstration were administrators and teachers from the Washoe County School District.

University of Nevada Adopts New Numbering System for Courses

The University of Nevada has adopted a new course numbering system which became effective for the 1966 Summer term and forthcoming semesters.

Under the new system, special noncredit courses are lettered A, B, C, etc., first year courses for two-year programs are numbered 1-49, second year courses for two-year programs are 50-99, freshman level courses are numbered 100-199, sophomore level 200-299, junior level 300-399, senior level 400-499. Graduate courses are numbered 600 through 999.

The new system now makes it possible for graduate students who have been officially admitted to the University's graduate program to register in the properly numbered courses without the personal approval of the Dean of the Graduate School.

This simplified procedure is expected to make the registration process function much more effectively for graduate students than was possible under the old numbering system.

When combined with the regularly established preregistration procedure for graduate students during the fall and spring semesters, future registrations at the graduate level should be accomplished more quickly and effectively.

Yearly Complaints On Rally Bonfire From Residents

The annual complaints came in to the Reno smog control office and to the University after the bonfire last Friday night.

Rally Chairman, Jim Crane, says in the struggle to keep University traditions alive his committee even tried to select wood which would make the least amount of smoke. Still residents of the area around the university complained, "how come they can burn and I can't?"

Howard Clodfelter, Reno Air Pollution Control Director says the burning permit was issued by fire department officials under a recreational agreement with the pollution control office.

The original pile of wood was set off a day early by unknown persons. A guard was posted around the second bonfire pile.

Fire department officials supervised the burning at the rally bonfire.

Wolf Pack to Attack Aggies for FWC Opener

By Mike Parman
Sports Editor

"Our toughest game to date," is Coach Dick Trachok's opinion of tomorrow's meeting with the University of California at Davis in the Far Western Conference opener for both clubs.

Trachok added that the Wolf Pack would have to play its best game against the hosting Aggies, who have only given up two touchdowns in the last two games. Nevada has not beaten the Aggies at their Davis Home since 1960.

Slightly Battered

Nevada travels to Davis slightly battered after last week's rough and tumble encounter with top-ranked Santa Barbara. Nevada overpowered the Gauchos, 33-17, for its second straight win. The Wolves rolled over Willamette, 28-21, two weeks ago.

Quarterback Chris Ault is a doubtful starter for Saturday's game. The starting signal-caller is suffering from bruises about the body from last week's game. He has had difficulty breathing.

Quilici Will Helm

Coach Trachok, however, is confident that Lynn Quilici, Ault's replacement, will do a good job. Quilici came in cold from the bench in the fourth quarter of the Santa Barbara game and directed the Wolf Pack squad out of danger in the face of a Gaucho comeback. Quilici, a senior from Lovelock, Nevada, also scored a touchdown.

Starting offensive tackle Ron Moore suffered a sprained arch and definitely will miss the FWC opener. Billy Ray Holman will move from his regular guard slot to Moore's place at tackle, while Yerington's Terry Barcellos will be in at tackle.

Pass Defense

Nevada has concentrated this week on pass defense in practice. The Aggies boast one of the best pass offenses in the conference, with end Phil Stewart receiving his share. He holds seven school pass-receiving records, one of which he tied last weekend.

Although routed by tough Santa Clara in its season opener, the Aggies have won two straight, over Riverside and Whittier. The win over Whittier is the first time UCD has defeated the Poets since 1937. The series record between the two schools is 16-2, in favor of Whittier.

Aggies Improving

The Aggies have an improving defensive line and a sharp pass defense. Against Riverside, the Davis squad grabbed four passes for interceptions.

So far this season, the Cal Aggies have used the "T" formation. They have a strong running attack, mounted by Dick South (All FWC last year), and Boyd Bentley, the Aggie's top rusher last year.

UCD has 23 returning veterans to back up its team, plus several promising junior college transfers.

Game time for the Nevada-Cal Aggies encounter is 2 p.m.

Wolves Faced Hard Road Up

Although Nevada is rapidly climbing up the Far Western Conference football ladder, the road to the top has not been easy. To say the least, it has had its darker moments.

Prior to Nevada's excellent 4-1 conference record last year, the Pack has enjoyed only one winning season since returning to the FWC 12 years ago. Nevada's conference win percentage is .379, and the Pack has a win-loss record of 22 victories and 36 defeats.

Chico State is only a hair's breadth behind, with a .373 percentage. They have suffered 37 league defeats. Chico hit a 17-game losing streak prior to this season, although the Wildcats have won two this year.

At the top of the win-loss column is San Francisco St., a team that has been in on the gravy almost every year since the conference was organized. The Golden Gators have a 48-9 conference record, for an .842 percentage.

Of course, what was, what is, and what will be are as predictable as a football's bounce. Nevada is in fourth place in the overall conference slate, but only two wins separate the Wolves from third place University of California at Davis. The Aggies have won 24 and lost 34.

Now then, you may almost be able to see FWC history made if and when you go to the Cal Aggie game tomorrow. When (there is no if here) the Pack beats Cal Davis, the Aggie percentage will slip to .407, while the Wolf Pack score will increase to .389. This is referred to as the percentage game. The more fans, the better chance for a Nevada win.

Following are the league football records of Far Western Conference football teams for the past 12 years. Percentages do not include ties.

	W	L	T	Pct.
San Francisco St.	48	9	3	.842
Humboldt St.	40	18	2	.690
U.C. Davis	24	34	2	.414
Nevada	22	36	2	.379
Chico State	22	37	1	.373
Sacramento St.	18	40	2	.310

U of N Aggie Club Travels Tomorrow To View Wolf Pack

The approximate price per ticket will be $5.00.

Girls Rough In WRA Hockey

By Lee Herz

Boys who think girls are made to be placed on pedestals and worshipped are in for a rude awakening when they see WRA-sponsored field hockey games each Thursday and Friday.

The game is a rough-and-tumble mixture of running and hockey stick shattering blows that calls for the stamina of a horse and shins of cast iron.

While all the players agree that it's a great chance to get out and lose inhibitions as well as pounds, there have been a few minor casualties. Girls who play the goalie position have been sporting ankles in living black-and-blue, while those who play the center forward position are heard to complain loudly of the evils of cigarette-smoking.

Girls who are willing to suffer a few minor abrasions for lots of exercise and WRA participation points can play field hockey by meeting at the new gymnasium at 4:00 p.m. on Thursdays or at noon on Fridays.

Sacramento Hosts Nevada Runners

The University of Nevada cross country team will journey to Sacramento this Saturday to participate in an open college division meet with 15 other squads. They will also participate in a dual meet with Sonoma State.

Nevada finished third in its first meet, and last week it defeated Chico State at Chico in a dual meet. The team has six remaining meets.

Conference Teams Clash Tomorrow

The first big week of Far Western Conference football begins tomorrow, with most of the teams taking on league rivals.

Nevada travels to Davis, Calif., to meet the University of California at Davis. Both the Pack and the Aggies have won two in a row.

Chico St., also on a two-game winning streak, invades Humboldt St. The Lumberjacks were upset by Cal State at Hayward in the FWC opener last weekend.

Hayward will be looking for its second straight conference win when it hosts Sacramento St., a team with an unimpressive record but one that has faced very tough competition.

San Francisco will attempt to recover some of its prestige when it hosts Cal Poly Pomona. The Gators were hit hard by Santa Clara last weekend.

From the End of the Bench

By MIKE PARMAN

REBEL FOOTBALL . . . There is growing support for a football team at Nevada Southern University. Widespread student interest on the Rebel campus may someday lead to a classic Nevada-NSU football game. The Sagebrush hopes that football backers in Vegas get their way. As for right now, they only have hope and little else. . .

ALSO AT NSU . . . A rapid-growing intramural program is springing up. Flag-football is now being organized. Robert Doering, the new Rebel baseball coach, is directing the program.

ON THE SUBJECT OF INTRAMURALS . . . We at Nevada have a fine intramural program under the direction of Coach Thorne Tibbitts. The program is open to everyone, even some of the older and creakier gentlemen on campus. Every fraternity house, the dorms, and the off-campus independents enter teams. Other organizations may also enter. KEEP FIT—GO INTRAMURAL.

IN HAPPY HAYWARD . . . Cal State at Hayward is still gloating over its victory in its first conference game, a 33-14 trouncing of Humboldt State. Included in the game were an 80-yard touchdown pass play, an 87-yard kick-off return for a score, and a 76-yard punt return for another touchdown — all by Hayward.
