

Mock Vote Elects Laxalt-Fike Team

By Gregg Zive
Assistant Editor

Lieutenant Governor Paul Laxalt would be Governor Laxalt if the Sagebrush mock election was the real thing.

Laxalt crushed incumbent Governor Grant Sawyer, 465-190, in the mock state election held Wednesday by the Sagebrush. A total of 655 students balloted.

Sawyer's running mate, John Foley, also lost in the lieutenant governor's race but gathered more votes than Sawyer. Foley's 214 total fell far short of Republican candidate Ed Fike who finished with 411 votes.

Walter S. Baring, incumbent Congressman, surprised no one and defeated his Republican foe Ralph Kraemer, 375-239. Baring is an expected winner in November and most of Nevada's political experts figure him to win in a landslide.

The gubernatorial race is expected to be close statewide.

It was thought, and the mock election seems to substantiate, that Laxalt has great backing by the younger voters of the state.

Hampton Young, Sagebrush editor, said the election could not be thought of as representative of the coming November election.

"Many of the voters in the Sagebrush election were under age and would not be eligible to vote in November. The election was held purely to see how Nevada students would vote and not as a barometer of the coming general election," Young explained.

GSA Outlines Election Methods

by Susie Bruckart

The election committee of the Graduate Student Association has outlined procedures for elections to be held for president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, program director, and four members of the board of directors.

Nominations for office must be submitted by the next regular meeting of the GSA on Monday, Oct. 24. At this meeting nominations will also be accepted from the floor. Candidacy forms may be obtained from members of Election Committee or in the main ASUN office. Individual members of GSA may submit his own candidacy.

Elections will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 26 and 27 from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the Card Lounge of the Student Union. Officers will be elected by a simple plurality of votes. The candidates with the highest number of votes from four different colleges will be the directors.

Robert Dean, Chairman of the GSA election committee, will hold the next meeting of the Elections Committee immediately following the next regular meeting of GSA.

Members of the Election Committee are: Peter Baum, physics; Bruce Blatt, zoology; Virginia Frost, English; Scott Peacock, agricultural economics; Vince Vitale, agricultural biochemistry; Vince Wavra, plant, soil, and water science.

Aggie Club Attempts To Build "A" Float

Larry Wood, president of the Aggie Club, is attempting this year to have the Aggie Club float entered in the Class A competition instead of the Class B competition for the Homecoming parade.

Usually, Class A competition includes only the sorority and fraternity houses. Wood wants to put the Aggie Club on the same level with the Greeks; he believes his organization to have a winning float for the parade.

Wood hopes to work something out with Rick Shelby, chairman of the Homecoming committee.

STUDENTS FILED into TUB and voted. A total of 577 voted in Frosh election.

Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity Placed on Social Probation

The Inter-Fraternity Council voted unanimously to place Alpha Tau Omega fraternity on social probation for this semester.

The decision was made on the basis of ATO members conduct during and after last week's football game at Davis, Calif.

Final confirmation of the probation depends upon the action taken by Dean of Men James Hathorn and Dean of Student Affairs Sam Basta.

IFC President Mike Woodhead said complaints received prior to Saturday's were also considered in reaching the decision.

The probation means the Tau's cannot have any type of a social event. They can still pledge, participate in intramural sports, wolves frolic, and float competition.

The probation will stay on until the end of the semester unless "good and sufficient reason" can be shown the IFC for removal of the probation. A unanimous vote of the IFC is required to release the fraternity before the Spring semester.

Marvin Murphy, ATO president, explained his house's position. "We regret incidents leading up to the probation and measures to prevent them from recurring have been taken. We intend to show the necessary good and sufficient reasons to be released from probation not only to the Greeks but the entire campus. We should be able to do this, if judged objectively, before the end of the semester."

Halftime Race Set For Football Game

A unique race between an elephant and a donkey has been scheduled as part of the halftime entertainment at the Homecoming game between the University of San Francisco and the Wolf Pack.

The event fits in with the theme of this year's celebration, "Nevada; Where the Action Is," as the beasts will be jockeyed through a course by several candidates running in the State elections, according to Rick Shelby, Homecoming chairman.

Two trophies, donated by Harolds Club, will be up for grabs as the candidates attempt to prove which is faster, a donkey or an elephant.

Landslide Vote Elects Keele

by Dwight Connely

George Keele, an independent, compiled 286 votes to defeat Lambda Chi's Jim Hardesty for Freshman Class President in Wednesday's Frosh elections.

Hardesty polled 142 of the 428 votes cast in the presidential general election. A total of 577 votes were cast in the entire election.

Carol Yparraguirre narrowly defeated Kathy Klaich for the Freshman AWS Representative. Yparraguirre collected 126 votes to Klaich's 112.

In the race for Off-Campus AWS Representative, Merry Ritterby edged Cyndy Wedetzer 45 votes to 26 votes respectively.

In addition, there were two amendments on the ballots. Both of the amendments passed.

The first amendment read: Should the president be unable to carry out his duties because of illness, death, academic failure, the vice-president shall act in the capacity of the president for no more than two weeks until a new president be elected for the remainder of the term.

It was passed by a vote of 412 to 22.

The second amendment said: Any member of the Board including the President or Vice President, for reasons of misrepresentation, disciplinary probationary status, lack of reasonable effort, poor attendance, or irresponsibility in promoting the functions of the Jot Travis Union shall be subject to dismissal by a three-fourths vote of the entire Board only after a complete hearing before the entire Board.

This amendment passed with 348 votes in favor and 104 votes in opposition.

United Nation Day Made October 24

United Nations Week will be celebrated throughout the country on Oct. 17-24, and Governor Grant Sawyer has proclaimed Oct. 24 as United Nations Day in Nevada.

The day will be honored on the University of Nevada's Reno campus by a buffet dinner and a group of speakers who have served with an agency of the United Nations.

The speakers and their topics are: Dr. James Roberts, UN; Mrs. E. Grier and Mrs. Eugene B. Kosso, UNICEF; Roger Tissier, UNESCO; Mrs. Evelyn P. Falk, WHO; Miss Valerie Shinaver, Development of the Secretarial General Post; and Mrs. Maurice G. Osborne, FAO.

Alpha Mu Gamma, national collegiate honor society for foreign language students, will serve an international buffet in the Jot Travis Lounge between 6:30 and 8 p.m., followed from 8 to 9:30 p.m. by the official program.

Music will be provided by music department students.

Mackay Stadium To Be Dedicated

The new Mackay Stadium will be dedicated Oct. 22. The ceremony is scheduled immediately before the Homecoming football game between Nevada and the University of San Francisco.

The new stadium was opened two weeks ago with a football game between Nevada and the University of California at Santa Barbara. Nevada defeated the nationally ranked Santa Barbara team.

The old Mackay Stadium site is now being used to construct a social science building. Soon a natural science building will also be built in the former gridiron.

This will be the 47th annual homecoming at the University of Nevada.

President's Band To Perform Oct. 19

Featured entertainment for the 1966 Homecoming celebration will be the President's Marine band under the direction of Lt. Col. Albert Schoepper.

Two performances will be held in the gymnasium on Wednesday, Oct. 19, a matinee at 2:00 p.m. as a kick off to the annual event.

This year marks the seventy-fifth anniversary of tours for the band since John Phillip Sousa took the group on its first tour in 1891.

The oldest and foremost musical aggregation in America has received much acclaim throughout the nation and is being brought to the University through the efforts of the Student Union board.

Tickets for the event may be purchased at Southworth's, Shelby's Hardware, in Reno and Sparks, in the Jot Travis Student Union and at the door. Prices for all students is $1.00 and general admission will be $2.00.

Tickets Now on Sale

Tickets for the Wolves Frolic and the Homecoming Dance will go on sale today in the bookstore.

Wolves Frolic tickets are $2 for reserved seats, $1.50 for general admission.

Homecoming tickets are $3 per couple.

Election Not Political Toy

The Sagebrush is saddened that its mock election results are being used as a political bouncing ball.

The Sagebrush does not feel that Laxalt's victory reflects any statewide representation of anything.

Gubernatorial candidate Paul Laxalt, who polled 465 votes to incumbent Governor Grant Sawyer's 190 ballots, says he regards the results as a statewide representation of students. However, many of the 655 persons voting were out-of-state students. Some didn't even know which candidate to vote for and simply marked an "X" because they heard one name or the other.

Steve Kosach, a chairman of Collegians for Sawyer and an out-of-state man himself, claims Laxalt had paid workers on campus who drummed up enthusiasm for the Republican hopeful. However, this is untrue. Sig Rogich, last year's Sagebrush editor, was the only U of N student on the Laxalt staff this summer, but is no longer on the payroll. Rogich was nowhere around the polls during Wednesday's elections. He didn't even vote.

Laeta Sawyer, the governor's niece and co-chairman of the Collegians for Sawyer, says she feels that there is no real pro-Laxalt feeling on campus. She says the Young Republicans have been on campus for quite a while, whereas the Democratic group has been formed just recently.

However, Miss Sawyer fails to realize that the Young Republicans have not been at all active on campus this semester. Further, her group placed a 25-inch ad backing Sawyer in Tuesday's Sagebrush, the day prior to the mock elections. Laxalt's forces have placed no ads in the paper.

Kosach said the similar election held at Nevada Southern in Las Vegas gave Sawyer a landslide victory. However, last April's NSU election was more a poll and reflected the views of only a handful of students.

Neither election should be used for a typical political charges and countercharges session. The Sagebrush election was just to give under-age students an opportunity to express their political views.

The Sagebrush election was held next to the Frosh election polls, and most of those voting were Freshmen.

No conclusions can be drawn from a smattering of under-21 voters. The election was "for fun," and no one on the Sagebrush staff would bet even money on the outcome of November's general election.

It's a tight race, and the governor's mansion could go to either man.

DISTAFFS TAKE TO THE GRID

A calm fell over the crowd; it was third down and 14 yards to go. All eyes were on the 22 females at the far end of the field.

A voice roared, "Ready down. Hut one! Hut two;" The ball was snapped to the quarterback. The team functioned like a precision clock. Two guards hesitated momentarily, faked, pulled back and began a wide sweep around the left end of the line.

PERT, PRETTY Georgia Nannini is a hopeful starter for the sorority squad.

The quarterback faked to the left halfback and handed the ball to right halfback, Myrtle "Mert" Hawkins. Miss Hawkins adroitly followed her interference through enemy tacklers and into the end zones for the only touchdown in the first annual Greek-Independent all female "Beaver Bowl."

If last year's action is any indication, this year's game, scheduled for Friday, Oct. 21, should be an action packed thriller.

The all-Greek team enters its second game with confidence from last year's win, but the Independents have the enthusiasm and vigor that is stirred only by revenge.

Although the first annual "Beaver Bowl" was a Greek upset, it was later pointed out that the eight touchdown odds given to the Independents was somewhat mis-computed. Without considering the hard running back, Myrtle Hawkins, the 56-0 edge was grossly inaccurate. Miss Hawkins averaged eight yards a carry for the victing Greeks.

Other 1965 bowl metionables are Delores Barcellos and Sue Stiff, who acquired the name, "the Greek pulling guards." At last word the pair was scheduled for action again this year.

Ed "Lurch" Reiher and veteran coach Bernie "Cotton Bow" Cotten said last week that a new strategy is on tap and it will be "loaded with surprises".

On the other side of the field, Independent coaches "Wasslin" John Rodgers and Rick "Jughead" Jorgenson have publicly announced their strategy. "We are going to the air this year."

Rodgers said, "we are unveiling a new Independent quarterback, whose name will be announced at a later date. She is an all-around player who can pass as well as run with the ball."

Coach Rodgers added, "we also expect to see veteran Trudy Bisagno back in action again this year."

With all factors into consideration, the the up-and-coming game should be a close one.

The second year coaching of "Cotton Bowl" Cotton and the return of Miss Hawkins and linewomen Miss Barcellos and Miss Stiff, the Greeks will be entering the game with a one touchdown edge over the Independents.

ENTHUSIAST STARTS FIRE?

There is always talk about campus apathy.

One answer to the premature lighting of the scheduled Sept. 31 rally bonfire was enthusiasm. An uncontrollable motivation that isn't contained.

The person or persons just couldn't wait to "rally around the bonfire."

Letters to the Editor

Editor:

If Mr. Gerson is sincere in this desire to replace "zeal" on the part of graduate students with his own brand of "logic" then I suggest that we have very little to communicate about. However, if he wishes to support his viewpoint with some meaningful comparative examples then let him exhibit some zeal himself and comprehensively examine the college catalogs available in the Reserve Book Room and report back to us. He might, for example, examine the health services and health insurance available to students of colleges and universities about the size of this institution. Such data would be much more relevant than merely citing the ratio of doctors per 1,000 population in this country as a whole.

I should apologize to Mr. Gerson on one point: I cannot help but feel that more meaningful criteria for the evaluation of the services provided by a university are based upon at least some awareness of how good that service can (could) be. Mr. Gerson has clearly indicated his criteria for such an evaluation are based upon a lowest possible common denominator. I can only be irrevocably opposed to such a philosophy of mediocrity in a university community!

Sharp Receives DRI Position

Dr. John V. Sharp was recently appointed associate professor of geology and geography and research associate for Desert Research Institute's Center for Water Resources Research.

The appointment became effective August 1, 1966.

Three Humanities In New Course

An experimental course in art, English, and music has been initiated at the University of Nevada. This combination of humanities courses is an attempt to introduce the essence of these arts to the students, according to Dr. Charlton G. Laird, instructor of the English segment of the course.

Dr. Laird said the purpose of this course is to get the student involved with the subject by actually practicing the arts.

The class is a combination of English 131, Art 115, and Music 121. Music is being taught by Mr. Ely Haimowitz and art by Miss Shelia McClure. The three sections have met jointly for three consecutive times but will now alternate every three meetings with their home class.

The first introductory meetings gave the students the opportunity to write music, create poetry and ballads, and draw their own interpretations of a human.

Sharp is engaged in research and instruction in the field of hydrogeric chemistry of natural waters.

He was a former manager of Earth Sciences at the Hazelton-Nuclear Science Corporation in Palo Alto, Calif.

Sharp received his P.H.D from University of Colorado and his undergraduate work was performed at Haverford College, Haverford, Pa.

He holds memberships in the American Geophysical Union, the Geological Society of America, the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists and the Geochemical Society.

Sharp is also the author of numerous articles and papers in his field of research.

Prof. Attends Meeting

Recently, Dr. H. N. Mazingo attended a symposium on photosynthesis in Chicago. The University of Nevada scientist was one of 400 leading scholars from around the world who were invited to the meeting.

Scientists who deal with single cells and those who do research with the whole plant community, attended the symposium. This was the first time the two groups have held a joint meeting in the United States.

Show and Tell...

Ed Note: 'Show and Tell' is a spot the Sagebrush reserves for guest opinion and comment. Dr. Erling Skorpen, a philosophy professor is today's gracious guest columnist. Because of space limitations, it was unfortunately, necessary to place "Show and Tell" off the editorial page where it belongs.

by Dr. Erling Skorpen,
Philosophy Department

Not a year goes by when students at the University of Nevada do not complain in word and in writing about the regulations imposed on their activities by the university administration. But in spite of such sustained protest little seems to have changed and the grounds for criticism remain. Perhaps what is needed is a clear statement that shows us all just where it is at. Recently Henry Steele Commager, well-known historian at Amherst, did just this:

"... It should be remembered that academic freedom was born, some seven centuries ago, as student freedom, with the insistence by students in Italian and French universities on the right to have a decisive voice in choosing professors, arranging for courses of lectures, controlling all their house-keeping affairs, and securing certain political rights in their communities. The notion that the university should act in loco parentis to its students is a relatively new and limited one; to this day it is confined pretty much to English-speaking countries, and unknown elsewhere. The principle of in loco parentis was doubtless suitable enough in an earlier age, when boys went to college at the age of thirteen or fourteen; it is a bit ridiculous in a society where most students are mature enough to marry and raise families.

"No one will deny that manifestations of student independence occasionally get out of hand, just as manifestations of adult independence get out of hand; we should remember, however, that if there is to be excess, it is far better to have an excess of interest and activity than an excess of apathy. But the solution for student intemperance is not for the university authorities to act in the place of parents. It is not the business of the university to go bustling around like some Aunt Polly, censoring a student paper here, approving this club or that, accepting or rejecting speakers invited by student organizations, snooping into the private lives of students. These matters are the responsibilities of the students themselves.

"If they perform their duties badly, so much the worse for them—perhaps they will learn by experience. If they go to excess and violate the law, let them be subjected to the penalties of the law. Where they violate reasonable academic rules—rules designed to protect the integrity of the academic enterprise, they should be subjected to whatever penalties are provided for such violation. But they should not be treated as if they were children, nor should the university be expected to turn aside from its proper job, which is education and research, to the petty pursuit of discipline."

For more of Professor Commager's thought on the subject of academic freedom, including student freedom, I recommend his article in the Saturday Review, August 27, 1966. I also want to confess that Commager's cogency makes me ashamed for my own past inclinations at wanting to be in loco parentis to students. This is clearly a trap not only deans of students have fallen into, but many others as well. Last year's experience at the University of Nevada is enough to show this.

There was a legislature which formally condemned students for peaceably demonstrating against compulsory (not voluntary) ROTC. There were the ROTC instructors themselves who dictated to students the length of their hair and the absence of beards. There were various veterans groups who publicly blasted student teach-ins on the pros and cons of the Vietnam War. There were city police who broke up a student party off-campus, arresting the students on charges which later had to be dropped for lack of evidence. There were clergy who clucked at student interest in the widely advertised claim that God is dead.

If all such well-intentioned people, including the students themselves and their actual parents, were to pin Commager's remarks on their mirror walls and ponder them morning and night, significant changes of the kind long wished for by students might come about and soon too. And when the fences were let down we might all be free to do what universities are supposed to do.

June Grads May Find Job Market Closing

By Dave Freeman
Feature Editor

A record number of June college graduates will try to enter the job market this coming June. This may be one year that the magic of a diploma will not assure the holder immediate employment.

Although the labor market as a whole is very tight now, and some jobs are going unfilled, the nation's largest employer is cutting back its hiring. The Bureau of the Budget has issued a directive which puts a freeze on employment levels of departments of the federal government.

In the Reno federal building an information and testing center for federal jobs was recently dedicated. At the ceremony, federal civil service officials from Washington and San Francisco explained the job freeze.

The number of employes agencies had in June will be their limit until the end of this fiscal year. Asa Briley, director of the San Francisco civil service region, said the Bureau's director did not include the Post Office or the civilian employes of the military. Since his region extends westward to Vietnam, Briley says the freeze would not have much effect in the region. Most of the federal employes in the San Francisco region are civilians with the military or post office workers.

Lawrence F. O'Brien, postmaster general, recently put his own freeze into effect. O'Brien says he will hold the post office's employment down to 4,078 fewer employes than were expected to be hired by next June 10.

This left the selective service and the military's civilian employment alone on the non-freeze job list. Even though the federal government is the nation's largest single employer, its freeze on new jobs may not slow down inflation.

Federal officials pointed out that about 200,000 people will be hired this fiscal year, just to maintain the present employment level. The Vietnam War has caus-

Bigi, Campus Clown Amuses ASUN

Bigi, a large, orange mongrel owned by Merle Atcheson, 829 N. Center, spends most of his time entertaining the staff and students on the campus.

Each day Bigi comes to the campus to chase Dean Elaine Mobley's ducks and to bark at the shadows of Morrill Hall. Dean Roberta Barnes says that Bigi entertain the office staff each day. Bigi stays in the good graces of the staff, because he only chases the ducks and never catches them, according to Dean Barnes. He is often scolded, but he manages to charm his way out of punishment. Dean Barnes said that Bigi is the campus clown and is always forgiven.

The annual Aggie Club Comic Rodeo has been slated for Oct. 29. Steen Ranch in Washoe Valley will be host to the events which will begin at noon.

Men will be competing in six rodeo events: wild cow riding, hay stacking, calf scramble, cow undecorating, wild cow race, and lamb stuffing.

"Meet the Candidates" Night Held at U of N

Bart M. Schouweiler, Republican candidate for the Nevada Assembly, suggested that the state government could make greater use of the talent existing on the University of Nevada campus.

Schouweiler spoke before faculty members and students in the first of a series of "Meet the Candidates Nights" held on the U. of N. campus Tuesday night.

"College professors should be encouraged to take an active part in state government," said Schouweiler. "The college professor has the right and the duty of any intelligent citizen to speak out. I heartily endorse this spirit and encourage it to continue."

According to Schouweiler, the rapid growth of student enrollment throughout the nation will cause the influence of the professors to increase.

Schouweiler also commented on the greater awareness of the college student today and he argued that this awareness can be attributed to the role of the college professor.

A majority of the candidates for the Washoe-Storey counties district assembly seats attended the event which was sponsored by Department of Political Science.

Each candidate gave an introductory statement and then an informal discussion with the audience followed.

Neil Humphrey, Vice President of the University, was the moderator. Humphrey told of the importance of these meetings and emphasized the importance of the chance to meet the candidates for political office.

On next Tuesday night, October 18, the second in the series of meetings will be held in the Dining Commons at 8:00 p.m.

Seigfried Rejoices With New Mate

Seigfried, the lonely swan on Manzanita Lake, finally has a new mate.

Seigfried made headlines last spring by dutifully sitting on a nest full of eggs after his mate, Odette, died of an internal inflammation.

The new female swan, also named Odette, was given to the University by anonymous donors. Odette, like Seigfried, is a rare European muted swan. Odette was flown to the University Tuesday. She had been obtained from a man in Parma, Ohio, who raises the rare swans.

The silent donors heard about the swan farm and submitted the University's name on a waiting list for baby swans.

Odette was sent to join her new mate as soon as she became a year old.

Dean of Women Roberta Barnes said the two swans seem to be getting along well. "Seigfried swam over to greet her the minute they put her in the lake," said the Dean, "and they haven't been more than ten feet apart since."

U of N Campus Changing With Three New Buildings Rising

By Paul Vlautin

Looking around the University now a great state of change is apparent. Three new buildings are under construction.

The Orvis School of Nursing will soon have its own building. The new building is next to the Home Economics Building. A final inspection of the building is slated for Oct. 14. Mr. Brian Whalen, the University Engineer, reports. If approved the school of nursing building will be ready for occupancy on Oct. 21.

Nye Hall

Nye Hall, the new eight story men's dormitory, will be ready for occupancy by the Spring semester of 1967. Nye Hall will house more than 500 students and will be the University's tallest building.

A new Social Science building is being built in the old Mackay Stadium, which was the scene of many thrills. The building should be completed for the Fall semester, 1967 according to Whalen.

The new building will house the departments of political science, psychology, sociology, anthropology, and journalism.

Teaching Forms Ready In Education College

Student teaching applications in Elementary Education are available in room 209 of Thompson Education.

Applications will be accepted no later than Nov. 1, according to Dr. Willey, Chairman of the Elementary Education Department.

AWS Occupational Handbook Is Published To Guide Women

University women who are confused about possible careers will soon be aided by the AWS Occupational Handbook.

The handbook is being published as a guide for women who are coming to college for the first time, women who are undecided about their careers, and those who are returning to college to finish work on degrees.

Ann Havrilla, AWS vice-president, who devised the idea for the handbook, explains its function this way: "We want to show these women that there are more fields open to them than just teaching or home-making."

The handbook lists all job opportunities open to women. It includes information on the new two-year programs in the Home Economics department and the college of Business Administration, as well as the programs offered at the Technical Institute at Stead Air Force Base.

Also available in the book is information on scholarships and financial aids.

University of Nevada department chairmen, deans, student leaders, and the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor have contributed information for the booklet.

Miss Havrilla feels that the handbook will be beneficial to the university as well as to women students. She believes it will have untold value in advertising and public relations for the school.

The occupational handbook will be on file in the offices of high school counselors and on open file in the AWS offices of the University of Nevada.

The project was made possible by the Senate Finance Control Board, which allotted $700 for the program.

Anyone interested in the handbook or in career opportunities may meet with Miss Havrilla on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 10 to 11 a.m., 1 to 2 p.m., and 3 to 4 p.m.; on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1 to 2 and 3 to 4 p.m.; or by appointment.

Building Named For Dr. E. M. Mack

Dr. Effie Mona Mack will be honored by the university with the naming of the nearly completed social science building for her.

Located in the old Mackay Stadium, the building will house several of the liberal arts departments of the university.

Dr. Mack is widely known for histories she has written on Nevada. She was an instructor at the University and a former chairman of the social sciences department at Reno High School.

After receiving her B.A. at Smith College, Dr. Mack earned her M.A. at the University of Nevada. She received her doctorate from the University of California at Berkeley.

Dr. Mack and Bryd Sawyer, mother of Governor Grant Sawyer, wrote a history of Nevada which is considered by many to be a basic pre-college text on the state's history.

U of N Sundowners Hold Annual Feed

The Sundowners, University of Nevada's good-fellowship organization, will hold its annual spaghetti feed today.

The feed, slated for 3:30 this afternoon, is to introduce perspective pledges to the active members. The gathering will be held five miles west of Pyramid Hwy., one mile past Harold's Trap Shoot.

Ed Reiher, Sundowner president, said the course will be well plotted by signs and posters.

Regents Reject Bids

The Board of Regents Saturday rejected all bids for building a greenhouse on the Valley Road experimental farm.

Regent, Procter Hug Jr. says the bids were turned down because they were double the estimated cost for constructing the greenhouse. The College of Agriculture was instructed to use state employes to construct the building.

Changes in Conscription Laws Suggested

By DAVID FREEMAN
Feature Editor

"Uncle Sam wants you!"

Once an American male is 18 years old he is required by selective service law to register for service to his country.

This means military service for young men who are qualified, except for a majority who fall into a deferment category. Because of the Vietnam War, the inequities of the draft laws have come under a great deal of criticism. A few available men must fight and possibly die while the majority are called on for no service at all.

Many changes in the present system of conscription have been suggested. Four plans are most widely discussed by congressional leaders and educators.

The first of these plans would institute a universal military service for all males. If a man did not serve in the military he would go into a civilian alternative. Mental hospitals, VISTA, and the Peace Corps would be some of the non-military choices.

Second in the most widely discussed of the proposals would make the American an all-volunteer force. Enlistment requirements would be met by offering high pay and other benefits to professional soldiers.

Number Increases

The number of draft age men increases each year and with the exception of the army, the military manages in times of calm to keep up their strength without resorting to conscription. Proponents of this second plan are not in agreement on the use of reserve forces. However, most agree a reserve force would be vital to increase the manpower of the military in emergencies.

The third plan would be merely a modification of the present method of choosing draftees. A lottery system would choose men for military service by a "spin of a wheel". Senator Robert Kennedy has discussed this plan as being possibly more fair than the present conscription system.

The fourth plan of those most widely accepted as having merit, would require universal military service of each young man.

Still deferments would enter into this plan. Physically unfit men would not have to serve, and probably mentally unfit men would also be deferred.

Census experts estimate more than 2,100,000 men will reach the draftable age of 18½ yearly by 1974. This number represents more than twice the men reaching draft age in 1955.

But in the years since 1955 draft quotas have not increased as fast as the draftable population. This has caused inequities in the draft to be more common.

Quotas Uneven

Draft calls have not followed any pattern in the last 20 years. More than 500,000 men were taken for the Korean conflict in 1953, but in 1961 the draft figure dropped to 60,000.

With the Vietnam problem, draft calls have been between 300,000 and 400,000 annually. But selective service officials says the quotas will drop to the lower levels again when the war in southeast Asia is settled.

ice, young men would choose the military to satisfy their national service requirements.

Secretary of Defense, Robert McNamara, has already started using one of the suggested programs of the national service plan. This is giving men who are unfit because of physical or edu-

Progress. Welfare and school posts would require nearly three million workers, and projects to beautify the country would need an additional 1.3 million people.

Still the Same

While these plans are being discussed, the need for military manpower continues. The present selective service program continues to operate almost as though it were unaware of the changes being suggested.

Congress recently gave President Johnson the authority to call reserve and National Guard units into active service. In the past he needed to declare a national emergency to call up the reserves.

Even though the Vietnam situation has not quieted down, draft calls are dropping. The selective service has cut its November quota by more than 6,000 men. December calls for the draft will be the lowest since March, 1965. But the selective service points out the December quota, at 12,100 is designed to involve only half of the month.

Report Compiled

The Senate Committee on Residence Halls and Dining Commons met yesterday with the resident hall presidents. Lists of compliments and complaints on Dining Commons food were presented to Ron Shane, committee chairman.

A master list will be compiled from the five lists submitted. The compiled list will then be presented to Mr. Bob Kersey, head of Auxiliary Enterprises, at a meeting that has been tentatively scheduled for this month.

The Senate committee is acting as a coordinating element between the students who eat in the Dining Commons and Dining Commons executive staff members.

"The true purpose of this committee is to prove to the students that something is being done. It is also proof that the dorm officers are working for the resident hall members," stated Ron Shane.

The Senate committee members are: Ron Shane, Collins Griffith, Mike Pollard, and Pam Frazier.

U of N Offers Night Study

Would you rather play golf or ski during the day than to go to classes? There is an answer for you called Evening Division.

The enrollment of students taking Evening Division courses is 736. This number is made up of Special Students only; no day student are included.

There are 51 accredited courses offered, according to Dr. A. V. Johnson, director of Evening Division and Government Contract Analyst.

Any individual who can show evidence of high school graduation, or who is 21 years of age or over, may register as a special student without official admission to the University. The maximum for a Special Student is six credits per semester.

A maximum of 15 semester credits are acceptable toward a bachelor's degree. Any student or former student having a delinquent account with the University is not permitted to register.

A catalogue may be obtained at the at the General Extension office in the Clark Administration Building for further information.

College for Judges Has 2nd Largest Law Library

The National College of State Trial Judges, with headquarters at the University of Nevada, now has the second largest law library in the State of Nevada.

The 20,000 volume library was started in December, 1965 and within nine months has surpassed other private and public law libraries in Reno and Las Vegas.

The Nevada State Law Library located in Carson City is the largest such library in the state. It has in excess of 45,000 volumes.

John Moller, National College of State Trial Judges librarian, said the library is growing steadily.

He added, "the fundamental purpose of the library is for the judges who attend the summer seminar session, but the faculty and the students of the university are welcome to use the facilities."

The library operates under a $200,000 grant from the Max C. Fleischmann Foundation of Nevada.

Millions of men will never be called to serve under the present laws and critics argue this creates a cynical outlook toward military service.

Universal national service seems to be the most popular of the four solutions to the selective service controversy.

Expense Knocked

Opponents of this plan say the huge expense of using every young man for a few years will make the federal government an "administrative monstrosity". They also object because the plan would still single out certain young men to fight and die. They say this would not solve the main problem with the present system.

However, there are more proponents for the universal national service plan than there are opponents. Those in favor of the plan say it would reduce if not eliminate draft inequities.

Under this plan military service would be made more attractive, much as in the plan for an all-volunteer army.

The proponents say with increases in pay and other service benefits as well as with benefits provided after the military service, young men would choose the military to satisfy their national service requirements.

People in favor of this plan say the present selective service program deprives the unfit men of the help they should have. They also feel the rehabilitation of these men would benefit the country.

Backers of this plan say the national service would give those in it a feeling of having done something for their country.

Include Women

Some of the proponents have even suggested including women in the plan. This topic has been debated a great deal, but few solid plans or pleas to put it into practice have been suggested.

Possibly the most impressive argument for national service is an economic one. Non-military needs of the country would be given manpower to fulfill those needs.

An agency of the federal government has estimated a program to bring the United States up to acceptable standards would provide 5.3 million jobs.

Mental hospitals as well as medical facilities would need 1.2 million of these workers, said the National Commission on Technology, Automation and Economic

From the End of the Bench

By MIKE PARMAN

IT'S TIME FOR A CHANGE . . . Tomorrow's big game with the Gators is THE big game for the Pack as far as the FWC is concerned. Although the whole conference is tough, tomorrow's game must rate as just about the toughest. The Gators have dominated the FWC ever since it began. Nevada has never had a better chance to break the chain. The SF crew has been defeated twice this season, but only to top-ranked teams. If ever you wanted to go to a football game, go to this one. Game time is 2 p.m. Get there early and ROCT.

CONCERNING TOMORROW'S GAME . . . Gatorville, somewhere in sprawling San Francisco, is a campus with 15,000 students. It is not a small college when you consider that Nevada does not quite have 5,000. For that matter, SF State has a larger enrollment than Stanford, although the Indians play big school competition.

REVENGE IS A FACTOR . . . We didn't win last year. The score was 21-8, in favor of the Gators. There is going to be some changes made. Be there at the game and enjoy the fun.

Conference Teams Prepare For Big Football Weekend

Far Western Conference football may be anti-climatic after this week's action, when two of the league's toughest teams collide in Reno. The Nevada-San Francisco State game rates as the conference headliner.

Elsewhere, the Cal Aggies hope to get on the winning track when they travel to Chico State for a night game. Chico was also beaten last week, by a one-point margin to Humboldt State.

In a big non-conference game, Sacramento State takes on the University of San Francisco in the Capitol City. USF is Nevada's Homecoming opponent next weekend.

Cal State at Hayward will try to get back on the winning track, when it takes on Oregon Tech in a night game.

Humboldt State, winners last week, will take a short vacation in Hawaii, when the Lumberjacks take on the University of Hawaii.

The Rainbows have enjoyed a rough season so far this year.

Nevada in FWC Showdown

The Golden Gators of San Francisco St., sporting a 2-2 record, invade Nevada tomorrow for perhaps the most crucial game of the year for the Pack. It is generally felt that tomorrow's game will go a long way in determining the conference winner.

Nevada has not beaten the Gators in 15 years, as the Bay City club has dominated the Far Western Conference almost every year since the Wolf Pack rejoined the league in 1951. The Gators were FWC champions last year.

Even Record

Although the Gators have only an even win-loss record this season, their defeats have come at the hands of some of the best teams in the country. S.F. State lost a narrow 24-18 decision to Long Beach State, now ranked in the top ten nationally.

Santa Clara pasted the Gators, 26-16, but the powerful Broncos are undefeated against top competition this year.

Last week, San Francisco held off a desperation rally by Cal Poly of Pomona to post a 28-26 win. Earlier in the season, the Gators stopped Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo, 38-0.

The Wolf Pack will be seeking its fourth straight. Impressive wins over Willamette, Santa Barbara and the Cal Aggies have started the Nevada squad off on one of its most impressive seasons. Nevada was behind at one time or another in every one of these contests.

29 Point Average

Nevada enters the game with a 29 point-per-game average. Most of the points have come from the passing arm of Pack quarterback Chris Ault. Defensive teams have not as yet been able to stop him. On the ground, Nevada has gone with the running of Bob Johnson and Joe Sobeck. Art Bayer has proven to be Ault's top pass receiver this season.

Defensively, Nevada will be without the services of defensive end Vance Fisher, injured last week against the Cal Aggies. He will be out the remainder of the season.

Defense Tough

However, the defensive line of Nevada will still be tough, especially around the goal line, where the Cal Aggies were stopped three times in last week's conference opener with the Pack.

Defensive ends Spike Jamison and Rick Redican did standout work last weekend.

Nevada will probably be without the services of offensive tackle Ron Moore, injured two weeks ago against Santa Barbara.

Veterans

The Gators have a team that is full of veterans, including several All-Conference and All-Coast players. Backing-up the Gator offense is All-FWC and All-Coast guard Elmer Collett, who has already been drafted by the San Francisco 49'ers. End Jim Patterson and wingback Bill Pollock are also players to watch.

For the Gator defense, defensive back Harry Gualco rates as one of the best in the league. He made the game-winning tackle for the Gators against Cal Poly of Pomona last weekend.

Middle guard Lyle Baucom rates as one of the biggest defensive players in the league. Standing 6-6, and weighing 260, Baucom has to be a tough player in any league.

Game time for the FWC showdown is 2 p.m. at the new Mackay Stadium.

Wolves Host UCD

The University of Nevada will host the University of California at Davis in a cross country track meet Saturday. The meet will start at 11:30 a.m. in Panther Valley, a few miles north of the campus.

The Cal Aggies are one of the Far Western Conference favorites. Last week they edged Hayward State and Nevada for fifth place in a meet in Sacramento.

Nevada Coach Dick Dankworth feels the opposition will be very strong. His top six runners will be Steve Dunlap, Gary Elam, Ron Lee, Arlan Melendez, Pete Reams and Kevin Sherlock.

Golf Tourney This Sunday

The intramural Golf Tournament opens Sunday on the Washoe County Golf Course, located at the south end of Arlington ave.

Fifty-seven students are signed up for the annual event. Initial tee off time is 11 a.m. Subsequent starting times are listed by foursome on the intramural sports bulletin, posted in the gym. Players are advised to check in at least twenty minutes early. Students may withdraw from the tournament up until 5 p.m. tonight without being penalized with forfeit points. Anyone planning on withdrawing must contact Thorne Tibbitts, intramural athletic director, in room 107B in the gym.

Lambda Chi is the defending champion.

Band Day Set For Students

The University of Nevada will present its annual Band Day Saturday, Oct. 15 during the halftime of the football game between Nevada and San Francisco State College.

John Carrico, director of university bands says the show will include more than 500 musicians, representing high school and college bands. The Wolf Pack 85-member band and the San Francisco State Pep-Band will also perform.

Student director, Charles Bickhart is arranging the Band Day show. Four high school bands from California have registered and five Nevada bands will participate.

Marching Band In Kezar Show

The University of Nevada's marching band will windup its fall tour with a performance at the 49er-Rams football game Nov. 6 in Kezar Stadium, San Francisco.

The fall tour will be through Northern California featuring concerts and marching exhibits from Nov. 2-6.

Check-up for Health Service

By Lee Herz

The illnesses of the University of Nevada Student Health Service are to be investigated and diagnosed by a team of three doctors.

The three physicians represent the Commission on Standards of the American College Health Association. They will conduct a comprehensive survey of the present service and determine projected needs.

The inspection is not mandatory for all college health services. After reviewing the annual health service reports, the Student Affairs Board and Dean of Student Affairs Sam Basta requested the inspection. The reports showed that the conduct of the health service has not changed in 20 years.

Many Problems

The facility is beset with many problems, most of them financial. The major problem is that while the number of students have been increasing and the costs of medical service rising, there has been no corresponding increase in fees or facilities.

The health service receives $77,000 from student fees each year. From this amount, the salaries of doctors, nurses, custodians, and auxiliaries must be paid. Costs for the operation and maintenance of the building, drugs, medicines, equipment, and necessary travel also come from this one source.

In addition, the health service must pay $600 annually for the expansion of the student union building.

Under Fire

Recently, the health service has been under fire from graduate students at the university. The students object to the payment of the fees. However, the graduate fee was not determined by the A.S.U.N. University policy states that anyone enrolled for seven credit hours must pay the fee. While graduate students may be helping to pay for the care of regular students, the regular students also help to pay for care of the graduates.

Another critic of the facility is Mutual of Omaha, the insurance company which carries the policies for students. The company reports that for fiscal year 1964-65, it had a loss ratio of 92 per cent. After state tax is deducted, the company is left with 6 per cent of the premium on which to operate.

For fiscal year 1965-66 the university paid a premium of $23,229. Estimated claims are $22,627. The figures leave Mutual of Omaha with a loss ratio of 97 per cent.

Because of the great losses incurred by the company, this year it added a ten dollar deductible clause to its policies. If applied to each claim, the ten dollars will reduce benefits paid by $2,830.

Nurses Salaries

Another problem is in the area of pay for nurses. If the state raises basic nursing pay, the University of Nevada will have to follow suit. The top salary now paid to health service nurses is $512, while elsewhere the beginning minimum pay is $475.

No mental health service as such is provided on the campus. Help can be had through the psychology department, but little use is made of the method.

Three Choices

The health service now has three alternatives: (1) a fee raise; (2) aid directly from the university; presently the service operates solely on student fees; and (3) recommendations from the investigatory team.

Presently, the A.S.U.N. Senate committee in charge of the investigation is compiling a questionnaire to be distributed to students. The questionnaire will ask if the student feels the facilities are adequate and if he would be willing to pay increased fees to better the services.

Three doctors will be on campus for three days. They will interview students, record their findings, and compile a formal report with recommendations to be submitted to the university.

School Buys Tape System

A $7,200 Ampex video-tape recorder system has been purchased by the college of education.

The recorder provides immediate playback of both picture and sound. It will be used in Audio-Visual and methods classes in the teaching and resource center to assist prospective teachers in self-evaluation of their teaching techniques and over-all performance.

Five pieces of equipment are involved in the recording process. These include a microphone, camera, television monitor, lighting device, and a main control panel. Robert Hall, Ampex representative, is training staff members and assistants to use the equipment.

The purchase of the video-tape recorder is the initial step in a three-year program. Eventually every room in the resource center will be equipped to use the recorder, thus providing the entire building with a closed circuit television system.

Dean Sam Basta Is Forum Speaker

Dr. Sam Basta, Dean of Student Affairs will speak at the Friday Forum, a weekly lecture series held at the LDS Institute, 95 W. 11th Street.

"Should Students Participate in Policy Decisions" will be Dr. Basta's topic. There is no admission charge and all students are welcome.

Nevada Tech Opens Doors With 296 Students at Stead

The Nevada Technical Institute opened last month with 296 students enrolled in a "hurry-up" and somewhat make-shift setting at the former Stead Air Base.

Although a deserted military base might not seem, at first glance, to be an ideal campus, the facilities are quite adequate, Institute faculty members say.

Barracks are readily converted into dorms, mess halls become cafeterias and lounge areas. There are even items that might be considered a bonus, such as the ready-made post office and the 350-seat Stead theater.

College of Engineering Dean James Anderson's office reports the enrollment in electronics technology and mechanical drafting — both taught at this new facility — have tripled over last year's enrollment.

Conceivably it would have been impossible to enroll that many students without the increased space and extra facilities the new school provides.

Although the Stead location lacks many of the refinements of the Reno Campus, it doesn't seem to have dampened the spirits of its pioneer student body.

Lambda Chi Uses Twelve Girls To Form Auxiliary

Lambda Chi Alpha has tapped twelve girls to form its new womens auxiliary, the Crescents.

Tapped were: Pamela Andrews, Barbara Ashworth, Tana Dale, Carol Franklin, Vicki Geertsema, Dorinda Landa, Jeannie Parker, Marsha Reardon, Laeta Sawyer, Janice Van Dyke, Carol Wagner and Franny Zive.

The purposes of the Crescents are: to assist in rushing, to participate in chapter functions, to sponsor events for the chapter's benefit and to strengthen interfraternity relationships among grecks on campus.

Following the 6:30 a.m. tapping the Crescents attended a breakfast at Sambo's. A formal dinner and initiation will be held tonight at the fraternity house.

The Crescents will be wearing purple, green and gold, Lambda Chi Alpha's official colors, throughout the day.

Biologist to Speak At Sigma Xi Lunch

Mr. Thomas J. Trelease, fisheries biologist of Nevada Fish and Game will speak at a luncheon meeting of Sigma Xi on Friday, Oct. 14.

Mr. Trelease will speak on "Fishery Management Problems in Nevada". All scientifically inclined and interested fishermen are invited to attend. The meeting will be held from 12 to 1 in the East-West room of the Jot Travis Student Union.

Deferment Tests To Be Held At U

Oct. 21 has been set as the deadline for the next series of draft deferment tests.

The tests will be held on Nov. 18 and 19 at the university and will be similar to those held last spring.

Applications for the test are available at the local draft board office on Booth St.

More information is available at the draft board office or the Dean of Men's office.
