Marine Band Opens Homecoming 1966

Homecoming 1966 will kick-off tomorrow with two performances by the President's Marine Band under the direction of Lt. Col. Albert Schoepper. The group will perform at 2 p.m. in the gymnasium.

An action packed weekend in keeping with the theme for this year's celebration, Nevada: Where the action is," is promised to all students by the Homecoming committee," commented Rick Shelby, committee chairman.

Eight campus coeds will be vying for the title of Homecoming Queen for the 47th annual event. All campus males will vote for the women of their choice tomorrow and Wednesday. The Queen will be crowned at the Wolves Frolic, Thursday night.

The Queen candidates include Marsha Ross, representing Delta Delta Delta sorority; Paula Brown from Pi Beta Phi; Jody Dube for Kappa Alpha Theta; Lois Ann Lewis, Gamma Phi Beta's candidate; Pat Hammond will represent Juniper Hall, Bonnie Ostroff, Manzanita Hall, and Christie Ingersoll will represent Artemisia Hall.

The Checkmates Ltd. will be the featured entertainment at the Homecoming Dance at the Centennial Coliseum, Saturday night. Paula Phillips, dance director of the Homecoming committee, commented, "it is important that all students who will attend the dance come promptly at 8:00 p.m. as the Checkmates show will start at that time."

The parade through downtown Reno will follow the cross-country race on Saturday. The parade will begin at 10:00 p.m. As of publication date the Homecoming Parade Committee, under the direction of Chris Key and Todd Russell, was requesting additional late model convertibles for use in the parade. Anyone willing to donate an automobile should contact Key at the Sigma Nu fraternity, or Russell at the SAE house.

The Beaver Bowl will take place after the parade on Evans Park. The second annual clash between the sorority girls and the Independent girls sees the sorority football team favored by six points. This is based on last year's record in which the sorority eleven won 6-0.

Halftime entertainment at the Homecoming game between the University of San Francisco and the Wolf Pack, will include lots of action as several candidates running in the state November elections will attempt to prove which is faster, a donkey or an elephant. They will race through a course on the field. Two trophies, donated by Harolds Club will await the jockeys as they cross the finish line.

Queen Voting Begins Today

Voting for Homecoming Queen will be conducted today and tomorrow in the Jot Travis Student Union.

The winner of the balloting will be announced during intermission of Wolves Frolic Thursday night.

Running for the honor are Kathy Dix, Off-Campus Independent; Jody Dube, Kappa Alpha Theta; Bonnie Ostroff, Manzanita Hall; Lois Ann Lewis, Gamma Phi Beta; Pat Hammond, Juniper Hall; Paula Brown, Pi Beta Phi; Christie Ingersoll, Artemisia Hall; and Marsha Ross, Delta Delta Delta.

English 'A' Committee Slates 4 Hearings Before Christmas

The ASUN Senate Committee on English "A" will have at least four public hearings before Christmas, said Jim Emerson, chairman of the committee. The committee wants to find out why there is no credit for English "A", but six-grade point penalty for failure, and why full-time students must pay an extra fee to take the class during regular class hours.

The committee will not try to attack the theory behind English "A", but will investigate the course's aims, results and administration.

The committee will gather information and viewpoints from anyone who wishes to offer them in attempting to reach an unbiased evaluation of the courses. Some faculty and administration members will be specifically invited to speak to the committee, said Emerson.

The public meetings will be

PRESIDENT'S OWN Marine Band is slated to christen 1966 Homecoming tomorrow at 2p.m. in the gym. "Nevada:

Where the Action Is" is the title for this years annual celebration.

Brushfire to Grow in Size

Ace Remas, recently elected Brushfire Editor, is moving full steam ahead and so far has collected more material than has appeared in the last three Brushfires.

Remas told the Sagebrush he has already solicited the material rather than wait for it to be turned in. He explained his enthusiasm had apparently affected others because all that will hold the next issue to 50 pages or less will be a lack of money.

The new editor is a graduate student in English. He explained it was unusual for a grad student to hold such a position but he felt he could put together an excellent magazine.

"I want to stress that all contributions from any creative field will be gladly accepted. I hope to include literary efforts, art work, music, and critical essays in this edition of the Brushfire, Remas stated.

Remas said the support he has received thus far has encouraged him. He explained, "There are over 20 people working on the magazine now and the cover has already been started. I need a business manager but last week we sold ads without one.

Remas pointed out for special thanks the backing given to him by the Publishing Board and ASUN First Vice-President Daryl Drake. "None of this work could have been done without their support and desire for a good literary publication."

Contributions are needed from all creative fields according to Remas. "We hope to have creative efforts representative of all fields. I hope to even include folk-rock music reviews and critical essays."

The contribution deadline is December 1. All contributions can be turned into Remas in his office, room 20 in the Fransden Humanities Building, or sent by mail in care of the English department.

Instead of having the Brushfire come out at the end of the second semester Remas is hoping to have the magazine ready for distribution by next registration day in January. He said there is a chance for two issues this year if there is enough money.

As far as money is concerned, Remas said the newly formed Graduate Student Association is planning on giving a contribution to help cover the cost of printing the literary publication.

Independents

There will be an off-campus Independent meeting tonight at 7:30 in the East-West Room of the Student Union Building.

Purpose of the meeting will be to select a Military Ball queen candidate from Colonel's Coeds.

Senate Library Group Studying Weekend Extension of Hours

A survey is being undertaken by the Senate Library Investigating committee to determine how library services may be improved and to make feasible the plan to extend library service on the weekends.

David Heron, director of Libraries has agreed to extend library hours over weekends on a trial basis at the termination of the survey.

A questionnaire will be circulated for the remainder of this week in the various living groups and will be available in the library. Questions will consider possible weekend hours, if the library increases its hours should regular services be offered or, is a quiet study area the main concern?

The survey will also ask if an additional study area were provided in a place rather than the library (Ross Hall, Agriculture Building, etc.) would it be utilized.

"It is hoped that all students who want weekend library services will fill out the questionnaire," commented Dave Diedrichsen, a member of the Senate committee.

The problems of noise in the library, and the problem of how students may influence the purchase of books needed will also be considered.

'Bowl' On Tap For Fair-Sexed

The second annual Beaver Bowl will be held this Saturday on the SAE lawn. The event will take place directly after the homecoming parade.

Ed Reiher, Sundowner president, and a coach for the sororities, said that 30 independents and 22 sorority girls have signed up. Reiher said the Sundowner-sponsored event will be better than last year.

This year, the winner of the game will have their name engraved on the trophy. The trophy will probably be kept in the Student Union.

The sororities won last year 6 to 0.

Blue Key Meeting

Blue Key will hold an informal meeting tomorrow at noon in the Hardy Room of the Student Union Building, according to President Craig Russell.

On The Editorial Side . . .

Decorations Permanent

The traditional Homecoming parades should come to an end, and house decorations should take their place.

The Homecoming parade should be sacrificed for a more practical, yet less time consuming and less expensive project.

The tradition of parading through Reno on Homecoming day began 51 years ago during the 1915 celebration. The parade was simply a procession through the small mid-town area in an attempt to arouse interest in the university's Homecoming activities, and encourage alumni to visit their alma mater.

Since that time, however, the Homecoming parades have become more elaborate and time consuming until they have become a major drain on students' time and money.

This year, organization and preparation for the 30 minute parade extended beyond 200 man-hours of work. Construction of some floats began as early as a month before the Homecoming parade.

The time, money, and effort spent on construction of the float is tremendous. Fraternity and sorority members are required to spend many hours each week building the floats. Study time is sacrificed, and grades drop.

Furthermore, fraternity, sorority, and dormitory treasuries are dwindled to pay for material and equipment which go into the building the average float of $320.00

Is it worth it? Does a 30 minute parade justify hundreds of hour of work? Of course not.

House decorations could take the place of floats, and football half-time activities could be devoted to introducing dignitaries, queens, and guests who usually ride in the parade.

House decorations are less expensive to build and do not require the time, or extensive planning for trucks, building sites, material, and destruction procedures.

But more important, house decorations would encourage alumni to visit the campus and to visit their old fraternity and sorority houses. Furthermore, house decorations would last for days or even weeks for visitors to view.

This plan seems much more practical than spending excessive time, energy, and money to organize and present a 30 minute parade.

Student leaders and faculty advisers must realize Homecoming parades are old fashioned and obsolete. Homecoming parades have grown out of proportion and we need to establish a more practical tradition. Next year there should be no Homecoming parade. And in its place, long lasting and inexpensive house decorations should be erected.

Remas Voted Brushfire Editor

Ace Remas was elected editor of the Brushfire at the Publication Board meeting last Thursday afternoon.

ASUN First Vice - President Daryl Drake said the board also opened nominations for business managers for the Brushfire and Forum. Any interested student for either job should contact Drake as soon as possible as both publications need business managers at the present time.

Remas ran against Laura Batchler and Mike Brown for the top spot on the campus literary magazine. He fills the spot vacated by Jon Andrews who was elected last year, but did not come back to school.

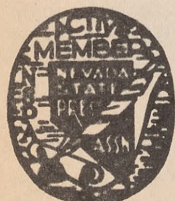

The Forum business manager's seat was vacated when Bill McGloughlin resigned last month due to his study load.

Codger's Column

By Louise White

Hampton Young's editorial in the September 16 Sagebrush expressed the dream of every Undergrad—a near-utopian grading system. (Utopian being no grades at all.)

Hampton observes that day of "education simply for the sake of learning is past." (Scholars take cover!) Nowadays, it's job security, parental pressure or the draft threat which swells college enrollments.

From his observation, he develops the hypothesis that today's college students are under too much pressure and should not have to cope with maintaining high scholastic standings in subjects unrelated to their majors.

To support his hypothesis, he draws upon psychological learning theories.

To wit, at the "onslaught of finals week," prospective degree holders, "notebook and textbook in hand, in a few short hours, stuff a full semester's knowledge into a recording segment of their brain."

Then, depending upon the "functionability of brain wave patterns" each student performs anywhere from A to F on any given exam. But a moment after the test is over a good portion of the brain's recording segment is blocked off—erased. (Never to some again?)

I make this last interpolation in all sincerity, for I find that although I can identify with cramming, finals-week, would-be degree holders, two serious flaws in my psyche prevent me from achieving total identification.

First of all, how does the cramming student stuff a full semester's knowledge into a few short hours? I've never been able to stuff more than a half dozen lectures and two chapters—and then only on occasion. However, I've worked out a system to beat this flaw in my makeup. I study as I go along. The functionability of my brain wave patterns collapses completely if I don't.

Then there's the second flaw. My brain's recording segment must be malfunctioning because it has failed to erase a disproportionately large amount of test material knowledge. At most unexpected times an appropriate cue signals my recall mechanism and I come up with some bits of information long ago acquired from courses totally unrelated to my major.

As a Codger, I know I'm odd, but these two malfunctions worried me. I don't want to be that odd. So I made a little survey of my own, the results of which would never withstand scientific scrutiny, but at least my ego has been partially restored.

I am not alone. Many Codgers and some Noncodgers (poor things, they developed the malfunctions so early) suffer from identical symptoms.

However, we represent only an insignificant variable with regard to Hampton's hypothesis, while the delightful implications of his proposed solution to the grade-system problem merits further consideration—next column.

Test Deadline Set for Friday

Application deadline is approaching for the Selective Service College Qualification Test. Postmark deadline is Friday, Oct. 21.

The nationwide test will be given in Nevada on the Reno campus, and at Nevada Southern.

The test dates are Friday, Nov. 18, and Sat., Nov. 19. To be eligible, a student must register with the Selective Service, and cannot have previously taken the test.

All eligible registrants should apply immediately, to insure a reservation for the test date and location desired. Obtain a bulletin, application card, and ticket of admission from the University's Office of Counseling and Testing, or from any Selective Service local board.

Chem. Club Holds Meeting

The first monthly meeting of the Chemistry Club was held on October 5. Marjorie Uhalde, club president, was in charge. After business was discussed, a demonstration of glass blowing was given by Mr. Robert Perthell.

Last spring the club sponsored the regional meeting of the Student Affiliates of the American Chemistry Society, the technical name for the varied chemistry clubs in the region.

The club plans to meet each month and to present a guest speaker in different phases of chemistry.

The club also plans to have two social functions this year. They will be a Christmas party and a spring banquet.

Persons interested in joining the club should contact Marjorie Uhalde, Mary Lawrence, or Ron Ainsworth for information.

Spurs to Attend Convention

Women from nine colleges and universities will attend the regional Spur convention at the University of Nevada on October 28 and 29.

Spurs is a sophomore women's service organization with emphasis on qualities of leadership, integrity, high moral standards, and an interest in serving the university and the community.

Representatives of Spur chapters from Fresno State, the University of the Pacific, and Humboldt State will meet with Spurs from the University of Nevada, which is the host school.

In addition, women from Nevada Southern University, the University of New Mexico, College of North Dakota, Chico State, and New Mexico Highlands University will take part in the convention. The five schools are interested in establishing Spurs chapters on their campuses.

The delegates will participate in workshops, open meetings, and "buzz sessions" during the two-day meet. Topics of discussion will be group projects for the university and community, selection and choosing of tapes (pledges), participation in activities, and the meaning of Spurs.

From 75 to 100 delegates are expected to participate in the convention.

Spurs Sell Mums In Student Union

The Spurs are holding their annual Mums sale in the Student Union this week.

Mums, a flower sold traditionally by the Spurs every homecoming, are for sweethearts and friends.

A Spurs booth is open in the snack bar from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Mums sell for $1; proceeds are used for service projects or the Spurs scholarship fund.

Greeks buying the flowers may have them delivered to their houses. Independents may pick theirs up Saturday morning in the Student Union before the Homecoming parade.

'Meet Candidates' Scheduled Tonight

The Political Science Department of the University of Nevada will sponsor the second in its series of "Meet the Candidate Night" tonight in the Dining Commons.

Senatorial candidates from Washoe and Storey counties will be heard at this meeting. All 10 candidates have indicated that they will attend the meeting in the Jot Travis Union Building.

The format for this meeting will include brief statements by the candidates followed by a question and answer period with the audience.

The final in the political discussion series will feature the candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor and will be held October 25.

SAE Taps Eight For Little Sisters

The men of Sigma Alpha Epsilon recently tapped eight women for the Little Sisters of Minerva, the women's auxiliary of the fraternity.

Those named were: Kathy Dix, Sarah Anderson, Candace Hayer, Sally Babcock, Sue Bollig, Margie Uhalde, Sue Ferris, and Muriel Paille.

The Little Sisters for many years have assisted the fraternity in rushing, promoting better relations between fraternities and sororities, and acting as hostesses at all chapter functions.

The initiation was followed by a banquet at the Santa Fe Hotel in downtown Reno.

The Little Sisters of Minerva, which is the original women's auxiliary on campus, have helped the men of Sigma Alpha Epsilon for many years.

UNNOTICED DURING THE GAME . . . Were two sets of downs. Nevada had the ball five times on one series and only three on the other. The officials did not notice their mistake until it was too late.

MAYBE WE WEREN'T WINNING . . . But why did a large group of "rooters" leave the stadium before the game was finished? It doesn't help team spirit, nor does it make a very good impression with visitors. Nobody can win all the time, but that's no excuse for part-time support.

TEAMS TO WATCH . . . Hofstra, Edinboro, Frostburg, Moravian, Allegheny, Ursinus, East Stroudsburg, Juniata, East Carolina, Sampton-Sidney, and Mars Hill . . . any of these may never be heard from again . . .

IRC Hosts Regional Conference This Week

"The Myth and Realities of U.S. Aid and Trade in Southeast Asia" is the discussion topic for the regional convention of the International Relations Club to be held on the University of Nevada campus Oct. 20, thru Oct. 22.

The Southeast Asian country around which the discussion will be centered is Thailand.

Week's Athlete

One of the few bright spots in the Nevada-San Francisco State game was the fine defensive play of Ben Blinn. The 230-pounder from Elko was selected as the Sagebrush Athlete of the Week for the period ending October 16.

Blinn made several outstanding yackles during the game. He has been a Pack standout all season long.

Also doing a good job for the Wolves was Joe Isaia. The 230-pound tackle was also tough on defense, and recovered a fumble early in the game that set Nevada up for one of its few offensive threats of the game.

Registration for the convention will begin at 10 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 20, and will continue until 2 p.m. in the lobby of the Jot Travis Union.

Faculty and student leaders will open the first session Thursday afternoon at 3 p.m.

The following four discussion sessions will be held on Friday, Oct. 21, starting at 9:15 a.m. and continuing thru 4:30 p.m. with a break for lunch.

A representative from the World Affairs Council of Northern California is the featured speaker for the banquet Friday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Jot Travis Lounge.

The fifth and sixth sessions and the closing session will be held Saturday, Oct. 22, beginning at 9:15 a.m. During the closing session final opinions on the topic will be formed and adopted.

All interested persons are invited to attend the convention and actively participate in the group discussion sessions. There is a $4 registration fee which includes the banquet Friday night.

Intramural Deadline

Registration deadline for the intramural cross country meet is 6 p.m. tomorrow night. Interested students must contact Thorne Tibbitts, intramural athletic director, in room 107B of the gym.

Conference Hopes Dim As Pack Is Downed, 27-0

By Mike Parman
Sports Editor

San Francisco State dealt the conference title hopes of the Wolf Pack a severe blow when the Gators downed Nevada, 27-0, in Mackay Stadium, Saturday. It was the conference opener for San Francisco State.

Nevada was plagued by fumbles, pass interceptions, and too much San Francisco all afternoon. The Pack was not able to muster a concentrated attack all day.

Nevada came closest to scoring early in the first quarter, when the Pack moved the ball to the eight-yard line of San Francisco. However, quarterback Chris Ault lost three yards as he was caught behind the line of scrimmage. Two end zone attempts also failed. This early-game offensive effort was the closest the Pack ever came to scoring.

Wolves Stopped

The Gator defense halted the Wolves in the air and on the ground. Nevada fumbled the ball three times and had four pass interceptions. One of the interceptions was turned into a score.

Neither team could score in the first period of play. The going was even in the early stages of the game.

Shortly before the first half ended, San Francisco managed to rack up six points on a Randy Ketlinski to Joe Currie pass that travelled 16 yards. A Nevada defender tipped the ball into the air, where Currie's waiting hands grabbed a six-point catch. The conversion attempt was blocked. The score remained 6-0, in favor of the Golden Gator invaders, as the half ended.

Second Half Woes

Nevada ran into more than its share of woes in the second half. After taking the second-half kick-off, Nevada went cold. The SF squad quickly got possession of the ball and marched 52 yards in eight plays for another TD. The score came on another pass from Ketlinski, a 13-yarder to Joe Koontz.

The Wolves had trouble stopping the Gators on crucial third down plays all afternoon. Nevada trailed, 12-0, after San Francisco attempted a two-point conversion and failed.

Interception

Nevada then moved goalwards again, but a Gator defender picked off an Ault pass in the end zone and ran it back 22 yards. This was the last scoring threat of Nevada, except for a drive late in the game under the signal-calling of Lynn Quilici. That too ended in a pass interception.

San Francisco scored again in the third quarter on a pass play to go further ahead, 18-0. The two-point conversion was good, and the Bay City team had a commanding 20-0 lead.

Final Quarter

On the first play of the final quarter, Gator defender Mike Clark intercepted an Ault pass and raced 23 yards to the end zone for the final score of the game.

Shortly afterwards, Quilici completed a 65 yard pass to Jack Byrom. But the tough Gator defenders intercepted Quilici's next pass.

It marked the sixteenth straight year that Nevada fell victim to the San Francisco State curse.

FWC Action

The first critical week of Far Western Conference football past, with San Francisco State emerging as the power to be beaten. The Gators downed Nevada, 27-0, to put their league record at 1-0. The loss dropped Nevada to 1-1.

The tough Cal Aggies, victims to Nevada last week, got back on the winning track by drubbing Chico State, 42-13. The Aggies are now also 1-1 on the season.

Sacramento State rolled up 17 points in the first quarter to thump non-conference foe, University of San Francisco, 23-7. It was the first loss against four wins for the Wolf Pack's Homecoming opponent.

Other conference results were not available at press time.
