Sundowners placed on probation, arrested

Six members of the Sundowners, campus fellowship organization, were arrested Friday night by Reno police on charges from public intoxication to reckless driving, just hours after the organization was placed on probation by the Student Judicial Council.

Steve Katzmann, Sundowner president, and Bill Houk were booked for being drunk in and about a motor vehicle, Tim Heskett for driving under the influence and reckless driving, and Mike Schellin, Bob Dieleman, and Charles Leonard for public intoxication.

Administrative officials have indicated a number of complaints from student and faculty members have come in charging the Sundowners with carrying on initiation activities on campus, a violation of their probation.

Sundowners were at the Homecoming game Saturday soliciting funds as part of their initiation.

Todd Russell, chief justice of the Judicial Council, said charges would have to be made to the effect the Sundowners had violated probation before the council could meet to determine the matter.

Katzmann said the men were arrested as individuals, not as members of the Sundowners.

Russell said the Sundowners were found guilty on two charges Friday.

One was violation of the university's policy covering alcoholic beverages, which states that the university must uphold the county and state statutes governing the serving of such beverages to minors.

The other was "immoral conduct due to vulgarities and indignities" by members of the organization at a football game Oct. 5.

Russell said that the council, as a result of the hearing, will recommend to the ASUN President that the ASUN Social Code be reviewed by a committee. Russell said the code was "inequitable and non-explicit," that it can be too loosely interpreted.

The Sundowners are on probation for the remainder of the semester. According to Russell, this means they "can function, but not have any functions." The organization will be able to hold meetings and private parties, but will not be allowed to have social or sponsor activities.

One of the charges against the Sundowners was failure to comply with a written agreement drawn up between Dean of Students Sam Basta and a past president of the Sundowners in 1963. The letter stated that private Sundowner functions would exclude minors and prior approval of law enforcement agencies would be obtained before any Sundowner activity.

Russell said the council interpreted the try-outs last weekend as a public party, but did find that the organization hadn't obtained prior approval from enforcement agencies for the gathering as stated in the agreement.

Katzmann said the agreement was the reason the Sundowners lost the case and he hadn't known it existed. He said the council's decision was fair but charged the dean of men's office "was lackadaisical because the charges against us weren't made public until an hour before the hearing."

He said it was "unfortunate some one had to get hurt because if it hadn't happened nothing would have been done. Pressure from downtown and other places caused the hearing."

In fact, the charges were not made public until after the hearing. The hearing was closed at Katzmann's request.

At one time more than 30 persons congregated in the hallway in the Union Building Friday, awaiting the outcome of the hearing. Members of the Beaver Bowl teams were present as were past and present members of the Sundowners.

Because of the probation, the Beaver Bowl was cancelled. It had been scheduled for last Saturday. Future Beaver Bowl games are subject to the use of protective equipment and the presence of a rated official as referee. These requirements were first listed in an AWS memo last year.

Hopeful Beaver Bowl participants staged a 'sit-in' in the student union last Friday, as they awaited final word on the Sundowners social status. The Downers lost, and the Bowl was called off.

Basta to confer with student leaders

ASUN President Joe Bell and Senator Lance VanLydegraf will meet with Dr. Sam Basta and his student affairs staff next week to discuss recommendations concerning revision of Faculty Bulletin 853.

Bell has had 853 before his executive council for review and will draw up a set of recommendations Monday.

Bell said he feels 853 "without due cause restricts the expression of ideas and the use of facilities on campus. A lot of it is outdated. I think the principles in it have to be clarified. Some of them just don't apply to the university any more."

The bulletin, dated 1962, has been used by the dean of students office as a guideline for interpreting university policy in such matters this year as the sale of Love newspaper on campus and a Rally Committee's chartered flight which had to be cancelled because of the question of university liability.

Basta said he hoped the joint meeting could produce some ideas that are acceptable to both students and faculty.

"We'll be trying to coordinate together and approach the problems in a cooperative way," Basta said. "This will be a joint recommendation."

In addition, he said he hoped

'Time Out' set for campus today

The ASUN is participating in a nation-wide day of planning and action for students today.

The day has been named "Time Out" to underscore the necessity for students to stop for a day and begin to plan goals and strategies for the year.

On "Time Out" day, as many as one hundred student government officers and leaders will the joint meeting could produce an agenda for further meetings between his staff and student leaders this semester for the purpose of getting together and discussing other issues.

Bell and other critics of 853, including Dean of Men Michael Laine, have expressed concern in the past about the "vagueness" of the statement.

A portion of 853, under the be wearing badges identifying them and inviting questions concerning campus, local, state or national issues.

A speak-in will be held either in the Student Union or outside depending on the weather and turn-out. Students and possibly faculty members representing different outlooks will be on hand to join in discussions and comment.

heading "Policies," reads:

"Freedom to speak and hear will be maintained for students and faculty members, and university policies and procedures will not be used to prevent a full and frank exchange of ideas."

Further down on the same page, it reads: "Discussion of highly controversial issues will be approved only when every effort is made to present two or more aspects of the subject by qualified speakers within a reasonable period of time."

Bell said these two statements contradict each other. Other portions of the statement use terms not defined: "Law and order must be maintained on campus...., subversion and other illegal activities will not be tolerated."

Also included under the Policy heading: "No efforts at conversion and solicitation by members of political or religious groups will be permitted on campus," and then: "Activities which by their nature, method of promoting, or general handling tend to involve the university in political or religious activities in a partisan way will not be permitted."

Bell and others have questioned whether this includes the Young Democrats and the Young Republicans, both recognized campus organizations.

Why speak out?

The Sagebrush has been the topic of some rather heated controversy this past week.

The newspaper was brought to task by the ASUN Publication Board for giving priority to police harassment of a Love-In held in a local park, while subordinating a story on Homecoming.

It is unfortunate the community fails to see the social ramifications reflected in the action of the Reno Police Department, which is itself reflective of an attitude that is rapidly enveloping the entire country - an attitude that might makes right and "democracy" is applicable to only a select few.

Whether you like it or not you cannot deny that the country is undergoing wrenching turmoil. Washington, Detroit, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Newark and Chicago have all been the scenes of mass conflicts, involving millions of Americans.

Only once before in our history has the nation been so divided, and then it nearly spelt its death.

Today there are many Americans who, for one reason or another, are dissatisfied with the way they are being treated. Whether you agree with them or not, you can't deny this dissatisfaction exists.

The upshot of all this conflict has been a tremendous shift to the right within the nation. Our Presidential candidates no longer speak of democracy, but of control and law and order. One candidate has even said that if a peace demonstrator were to lie down in front of his car, he would never get up again. THIS is a leading contender for the most powerful and austere post in the world?

If this attitude of "might makes right" continues its upward swing there is little hope for the future of democratic institutions.

The Reno community is not an isolated entity, which has remained untouched by the mood of the country. That the right to peaceful assembly was violated two Sundays ago is questionable. That the law was applied arbitrarily it self evident. Reno Police Chief Elmer Briscoe said this summer he did not want the development of a "Haight Ashbury type in Reno," and members of the force picked up long hairs on such charges as littering, loitering, and jay-walking. Many of these people received fines and had their hair sheared by the police.

Many Southerners do not want Negroes in the South, but should we ship them back to Africa just because they are colored differently? The same rationale applies to Chief Briscoe's edict - except those excluded have long hair rather than dark skin.

One may use his imagination to see where such reasoning could ultimately lead to-but what we are dealing with here is not illusion - it is real. These things have already occurred.

It is frightening to hear Southerners say "I don't care what happens to the Negroes," or Presidential candidates say, "I don't care what happens to peace demonstrators," or students on this campus say, "I don't care what happens to the hippies."

It is frightening because what they are saying is "I don't care what happens to democracy," or the future of this country.

THE 'RIGHT' IDEA

Karl Estricker

CHARY DIZZARD By George Herman

"Is it not better for us that are men of this Kidney to have a Ruler set over us than to be left to our freedom?"

I do not know what sort of men Bishop Joseph Hall was speaking of back in 1652 when he wrote "The Great Mysteries Of Godliness Laid Forth By Way Of Affectuous And Feeling Meditation." It is likely he was being ironic, for he was a famous satirist, dubbed "the English Seneca."

Eventually, Hall and other bishops who were not protestant enough were brought before the bar of the House of Lords to answer a charge of high treason of which the Commons had already judged them guilty. They were duly convicted and condemned to forfeit their estates. They were hospitably put up in the Tower of London from New Year to Whitsuntide (a good seven weeks after Easter), 1642, when they were released on bail of 5000 pounds each. Free speech is often expensive.

Last Thursday a week, Dr. Deborah P. Wolfe gave a lecture in memory of Martin Luther King, Jr. Or rather I should say sermon or harangue, for Dr. Wolfe belabored her audience with a ferago of scoldings. Some people like that sort of thing, and Dr. Wolfe received a standing ovation when she got tired and stopped.

Not liking that sort of thing, I remained seated. I had learned nothing and was depressed by all the cliches hurled at me. I had certainly heard nothing that could incite me to violence. Judging by that night's work, Dr. Wolfe could talk any riot to death.

As usual, my disaffected spirit was abnormal, for I am decidedly a man of the wrong kidney. Now Dr. John DeTar has set me straight.

As every doctor knows, there is a class of patients who are determined to be ill. They keep coming with complaints until finally the physician is able to find something wrong. After all, nobody is perfect. And as everybody knows, there is also a class of impatient patients who are always finding something wrong with other people.

We keep crying "Wolf!" Hoping that eventually our timing will be right. It is a kind of saturation bombing; if we just throw enough charges, we're bound to hit somebody. Anybody who gets hit must have deserved it. After all, everybody is guilty of something.

The first of these ailments is called hypochondria. The second is called Communist conspiracy.

There is a third of these strange diseases called lycanthropia. It is a kind of insanity, now rarely practiced, in which the victim thinks he is a wolf. Instead of crying "Wolf" all the time, this poor fellow thinks he himself is very dangerous.

It is a good idea to take him seriously, but it is also a good idea to remember that his howl is more real than his bite.

Frolic must change

Across the nation with Mike Graham

"Adam Clayton Powell, flamboyant, unseated Congressman from Harlem, said he believes a conspiracy launched by a bigoted 'Establishment' has assassinated, jailed, or exiled leaders who have tried to oppose them.

Powell...believes many questions about recent assassinations have not been answered. Among those...why was part of Jacqueline Kennedy's testimony to the Warren Commission deleted; who backed James Earl Ray, accused assassin of Martin Luther King; and who changed the exit route Robert Kennedy took from the Ambassador Hotel the night he was shot."

Other remarks by Powell included in the Evergreen, Washington State Univ., were on George Wallace, "the only one of the bunch who has guts.", on youth, "young people are through with preachers, politicians and parents and are seeking to change the world", and on Black Power, Powell said, (it) would be the vehicle through which the establishment would be destroyed."

Pass-Fail System

"Its really a good deal."
"What an opportunity."
"I hope to see more of it before I leave."

The above quotes opened an article in the University of South Dakota's Volanie about a newly instigated pass-fail program initiated by their college of Arts & Science.

"The college's plan allows any major in an arts and science major field on a pass-fail basis. Sole responsibility for deciding which courses will be taken pass-fail lies with the student and his advisor...."

The system is on a two year trail basis. The director of the project at South Dakota said "pass-fail relieves some of the pressure to specialize at the undergraduate level and allows the student to broaden his knowledge without the constant fear of competition with majors in other fields."

A student remarked "It places the emphasis on knowledge rather than grades." Criticism from students followed the argument "When a job interviewer comes, I want him to know how I did. I don't want him to have to find another means to determining what I know."

SDC FORMED....

You know those vending machines that wend their way through college life; you know the prices they charge...well students at San Francisco State College have declared war on the vending machines. They have formed the Servomation Destruction Committee (SDC). Their main point of contention is the prices charged, "Those fat cats aren't goin to get rich off my nickels and dimes." said one student at SFS.

A mass student picket line or a "Kick-in" have been proposed as lines of attacking. To date SDC has circulated a petition among the students and is preparing itself to face "the slippery coin eating enemy" to reason out a non-violent solution. More to come.....

Letters to the editor's desk

No proof that God does not exist

Editor:

In his article, "God does not exist-- a logical proff," Mr. Swarup concludes with an invitation for comments. I submit the following comment as a statement of my personal belief, without any claim to absolute truth or any desire to reflect upon or try to discredit some other concept of God.

Let us assume I believe in God. And let us also assume that I agree with Mr. Swarup that there is no logical proof toward an absolute truth about God's presence. However, in the realm of logic, the mere inability to prove a statement is true does not constitute a proof that it is false.

Who or what is this God he claims does not exist? He states his belief that the never ending phenomena taking place in this universe of perfect balance is a result of interaction, i.e. cause and effect, which we can and should influence, concluding that to suppose there is some other power or force responsible for the events is false. He is thereby acknowledging some power or force in interaction which is presumably "non-God" and defining the God of the masses as some "other" power or force.

In the strictest sense, I cannot define my God, because to do so implies limitation. And yet, I must try, because I believe his proof is aimed at disproving "otherness," which would therefore seem to be his idea of God. If he recognized instead of concept of unity or oneness, there would be no "otherness" to disprove.

I agree with Mr. Swarup's interaction belief in so far as it goes. But if that is all there is to life, what a limited dismal viewpoint it presents!

What is the source of all manifestation, the changeless from which all change proceeds? What is the power behind the action? What is the force responsible for the laws of nature and why do we have faith in their predictability? Man uses the power and the laws, but man is not the power and did not make and cannot enforce the laws.

Where do thoughts come from? What of intuition and imagination? And what of the source of love, beauty, and joy? Surely these do not originate in the external effect, but come from within. These things he does not discuss, and yet they too are a part of existence, of livingness.

The source, the intelligence, the power, intuition, imagination, love, beauty, joy, cause and effect are all one; oneness, not otherness. And this is my God. God cannot be observed -- God must be experienced; and one who has experienced God can never doubt His existence.

God is personal and impersonal -- personal as the source of joy when the world seems joyless, peace when the world cries war; and impersonal as the law of cause and effect which works alike for all. I do not speak of God and man, but rather of "God in man as man is man," pushing outward toward greater involvement, not withdrawal.

In conclusion, then, I believe Mr. Swarup's logic neither proves nor disproves the existence of God. If we have not yet consciously experienced God, we would then seem to have a choice between belief in man as a thinking machine in a limited mechanical world or cause and effect (Mr. Swarup's non-God), or an understanding of man as being one with all power, love, joy, beauty, knowledge and eternal life -- to the extent he can realize and accept it.

Given this choice, I would choose to believe in God. But I have no choice -- I do!

It's good to see the positive image that University of Nevada students can project to the community at large. Take Wolves Frolic, for example.

Nary a person who attended could fail to observe the cleverness with which vulgar statements and innuendoes were slipped past the censors. In fact, only one routine, that put on by the SAE's and Gamma Phi's neglected to take full advantage of dirty jokes which can be made about sex.

Yes, the alumni who attended the Frolic after scant contact with the campus for the past year must really have been impressed. Who, for instance, could maintain a straight face when a girl on stage yelled in a lull, "Anybody got a Midol?"

A real scream. As was the strip act, ROTC cadets clad in bras, constant references to homosexuality and most of the evening.

Exactly what the university needed to help project the image of an educational institution which enlightens persons' minds and awakens them to the world.

Best public relations gimmick in the world. Just the way to get a higher budget for the next biennium. Make the world at large think we're learning something.

An audience of more than 1,000 applauded louder for the Frolic Singers, a vocal group which performed two songs during breaks in the action.

After viewing the Frolic, several questions arise in rapid succession. All deserve answers, or next year's Homecoming should NOT include the Wolves Frolic.

Why did the script writers feel it necessary to base the skits exclusively on vulgarity? Why did censors permit four of the five groups public audience for their warped senses of humor? And why must the Frolic every year resemble a hastily thrown together mass of uncoordinated lighting and stage action?

Of these three questions, the last is the least serious; failure to coordinate the show only made it look amateurish. But the first two cast definite doubt on the value of the entire evening.

One group called their routine "A Perverted Odyssey." Truer titles have rarely been given. For their honesty, at least, they should be congratulated.

Other groups masked their appeal behind clever and innocent names -- "Laugh-in," "Evening News..." etc.

Wolves Frolic as a series of double entendre one and two liners is not unique to 1968. This has traditionally been its format. But something must be done.

A professional producer-director must be hired. He must either write the entire script or have absolute privilege to cut, censor and otherwise alter scripts submitted by participating groups.

He must have complete power to censor as participating groups have almost without exception demonstrated that the ideal of self imposed censorship has failed miserably.

If this cannot be arranged, or if some persons object to the removal of their perverted lines, Frolic must be killed by the university before outside pressure forces the same end result.

No show is preferable to one that leaves a bad taste in everyone's mouth.

HOMECOMING '68

Neil Diamond performed Friday night to a near-capacity crowd in the Centennial Coliseum. For more than an hour Diamond sang and joked with the audience.

The Pack ran through a hoop and cheerleaders yelled, all to no avail as Sacramento State converted a fourth period field goal for a 17-14 victory.

COMPARATIVE ANATOMY

Floats returned to the Homecoming parade this year, bigger and better than in years past. Sigma Nu and Delta Delta Delta placed first in the float competition.

"The Importance of Being Earnest," a witty comic farce of mistaken identities, will be the second major production of the university theatre. Written in 1895 by social satirist Oscar Wilde, the play has become a classic in modern theatre production. "Earnest" is a travesty on respectability and a spoof of high society manners.

Try-outs are open to any university student interested and will be held in the university theatre Wednesday, at 4 and 7. Dr. Robert Dillard, head of theatre, will direct the try-outs.

There are many imaginative and lively character roles available which include John Worthing and Algernon Moncrieff, young men about town; Gwendolen Fairfax, an iceberg of sophistication; Lady Bracknell, Gwendolen's Wagnerian gorgon of a mother; Cecily Cardew, a sweet young thing; Miss Prism, the absent-minded governess; the Rev. Canon Chasuble, the church incarnation; Merriman, a butler and Lane, a manservant.

Dr. Dillard said, "Since this is one of the most brilliant comedies in the English language, the actors will be expected to speak the language with some degree of precision. The characters should move as if they had never been too far away from a London townhouse."

Scripts are available for overnight reading from the secretary in the speech and drama office, Room 148 of the Church Fine Arts Building. Anyone wishing to gain technical theatre experience in working backstage on the show is encouraged to sign up. Help will also be needed in readying an unusual setting and accessories.

Students desiring backstage work should see John Downie, designer of "Earnest," in the workshop office located just off the university theatre stage, or should contact David Coombs, student stage manager.

Ceramics shown in Student Union

Recent ceramics by Don Collins and Fred Reid are currently on display in the Jot Travis Student Union Building.

Both Collins and Reid are represented in the concurrent exhibition of ceramics and crafts now on display at the Nevada Art Gallery.

The university display is the fourth in a series of informal presentations sponsored by the Ceramics Guild.

Wednesday forum slated

The University of Nevada art department will present an art forum Wednesday, at 7:30 in Room 139 of the Church Fine Arts Building.

The forum is entitled "Man's Power in a Democracy," and is the first of a two part series.

The speaker of the forum will be Bill Morrison of the Nevada Technical Institute. He will discuss man's confrontation with his environment.

The second program will be held Nov. 6 at 7:30 p.m.

Birch leader to speak on campus tomorrow

Dr. John H. DeTar, local John Birch leader, will be featured as guest speaker in a Speak-In, Wednesday at 1 p.m. in the Travis Lounge.

DeTar along with other members of the Wallace campaign committee has taken a stand against the recent campus lecture series of Dr. Deborah P. Wolfe, from New York. In a special meeting of the Washoe County Central Committee of the Independent American Party, a resolution was passed which called for the legislative condemnation of the Board of Regents and the university administration for allowing "an advocate of riots to lecture at the University of Nevada."

Dr. Wolfe, professor of education at Queens College, New York spoke to university students Oct. 13 through 18. Her lectures focused on subjects from radical prejudices to interracial marriage.

DeTar, state chairman of the party, commented on the committee's proposal by saying, "Tax supported state universities are established and maintained ostensibly to provide an educated citizenry capable of responsible self-government, not to provide a free forum for advocates of anarchy and rioting."

He said universities throughout the nation are doing too much to promote this unjustified rebellion and it is high time to take actions necessary to reverse this trend.

Members of the Board of Regents had varied reactions to the resolution proposed by the Wallace committee. Proctor Hug Jr., board member of Reno, said he was not the least bit concerned about the matter. He said, "It's just a play for publicity."

Hug said he did not think the legislature would take any action against the university.

Dr. Harold Kirkpatrick, acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said in response, "It is outrageous, and is not worth commenting on further."

"DeTar will become the laughing stock of Reno," said Kirkpatrick.

Dr. Fred Anderson, chairman of the Board of Regents, declined comment.

Harold J. Jacobsen, from Carson City, said he did not believe there were any grounds for action as it is the responsibility of a university to keep its students informed on matters such as these.

President N. Edd Miller was not available for comment.

Dr. Deborah Wolfe, pictured here with President N. Edd Miller, recently came under fire from the American Independent Party for a series of lectures she gave on campus.

Alumni gifts jump 300 per cent this year

Alumni gifts to the University of Nevada jumped 300 per cent this year to more than $20,000, Roger Christensen, chairman of the Annual Giving Program said.

Gifts were made by about 600 former students residing in more than 30 states and in foreign countries as distant as Spain and Iran.

Dr. James Botsford, Alumni Association president, complimented the work of Christensen's committee and said the response of alumni to the campaign "reflects growing pride in the University of Nevada."

"The pride is in knowing that the University of Nevada is rapidly changing for the better," said Botsford.

Christensen noted that active alumni chapters in Southern Nevada and Southern California contributed much to the drive.

The California group, for instance, located a "long lost" former student who promptly made a substantial contribution.

Most of the gifts were for unrestricted use, but others were designated for specific uses such as scholarships, library books, the proposed medical school and the planned restoration of Morrill Hall, first building on campus.

In setting a goal of $50,000 for the coming year's drive, Christensen said, "Success of the effort is in some respects more dependant upon the number of donors than the number of dollars because major gifts from foundations and corporations frequently are conditioned on the support demonstrated by a school's alumni."

Officials disapprove of Frolic routines

Reaction to Thursday's Wolves Frolic was, with little exception, highly negative. The show, an annual satirical review, was generally thought to have been presented in a vulgar manner.

Dr. Sam Basta, dean of student affairs, said the Frolic should be studied and re-evaluated. Basta said the Frolic is a means of entertainment, but that was not what was presented Thursday night.

"Many persons looked upon the Frolic with a great deal of disfavor," said Basta. "Much of the show was extremely inappropriate."

Basta continued to say that he was quite concerned about the future of Frolic. "My office will not approve the Wolves Frolic next year if there is no professional director hired," he said. Dr. Harold Kirkpatrick, acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and a judge at the Frolic, reacted in a similar fashion.

"It was the first Frolic I've attended and the last one," said Kirkpatrick. "If I had not been a judge I would have walked out."

Kirkpatrick said he thought several of the skits contained lines that were libelous. "I think that those persons who were libeled should consult an attorney and contact those responsible for the skits," he said.

"The musical acts were good," he said, "but at times even the audience's laughter and applause was a reaction of embarrassment."

Dean of Men Michael Laine said the Frolic was hardly worth comment on. "The university will hear about this for the rest of the year," he said. "Who needs this type of publicity?"

Laine said he had been invited to sit in on the rehearsals as a censor, a role he resented. "Students want more responsibility," he said. "Here is an area in which they can exercise responsibility. They should censor their own acts."

Additionally, Laine said the acts

A major problem with Thursday night's production, said Laine, was that certain scripts contained lines which administrative censors had requested be cut.

Roberta Barnes, dean of women agreed with Laine. "The people who can improve the Frolic are the students themselves," she said.

Miss Barnes also said lines were added after she viewed a rehearsal one week prior to the production. "Parts offensive to certain groups were not in or not apparent when we saw it," she said.

She also said there was a need to have help from someone who knows how to put on a production. "It's a shame to have people pay $2.50 to see a camp-style production," she said.

lacked originality and generally failed to relate to the university.

There are many talented persons in the university and community who could help in writing the scripts and technical production, said Laine.

'Expose White Racism' workshop topic

A workshop--"Expose White Racism" -- will be held Nov. 1 to 3 at the Cal-Berkeley YWCA. The program will be a model for groups interested in developing or enlarging programs of racial understanding on their own campuses.

Men and women students, black and white, are invited. This should be a vital opportunity for follow-up by those who were stirred by the visit of Dr. Deborah Wolfe.

Interested students should see Sue Dodson in the Campus YWCA office for more information and to register for the workshop.

Students advised to make job applications now

Civil Service Commission advises students and graduates to make plans now for jobs in the summer of 1969. Commission officials have indicated that early applicants would have the best employment chances for the limited number of federal jobs available next summer.

Under the 1969 summer job program, most of the jobs will be filled through the Employment-Examination. Applications for the first written test must be received in Washington, D. C. by Nov. 6.

Three additional tests will be given later in the year, with Jan. 30 as the final deadline for applications. Hiring may begin after the first written test is administered. Those who apply early will have the best chance for a 1969 summer job.

College students who received an eligible notice of rating on the 1968 program need not re-take the test this year. They will be sent a special form to complete. However, those who want to try to improve their score may take the 1969 summer employment test.

Successful candidates in the exam may be hired in positions ranging from GS-1 ($1.87 per hour) to GS-4 ($2.47 per hour), depending on experience and training, or as seasonal assistant at U. S. Post Offices at $2.85 per hour. Minimum age for these jobs is 18.

College students and graduates with appropriate coursework may be hired for other positions such as park rangers, surveying assistant, engineers, and other specialized jobs. Since the Summer Test is not required for these specialized jobs at some department, applicants, may apply

ASUN senators seek committee members

ASUN senators will be taking student applications for ASUN Senate committees tomorrow in front of the student union.

A table will be set up for all students who wish to work on senate subcommittees dealing with such areas as the health service, registration, discrimination, the National Student Association, minority problems, faculty bulletin 853, dorm hours, the book store and student parking.

This is the first time students have been invited to take an active part on senate committees, according to senator Lance VanLydegraf. The senate will meet tomorrow night in the union to organize and discuss the directions of the committees.

Hoganson, Basta will discuss health service

The university health service will be discussed tonight in the Jot Travis Lounge, at 6:30.

The discussion, which is open to the public, was initiated by Freshman Class President Marty Hoganson, who said he has received numerous complaints about the service from freshmen students.

Hoganson said students have complained to him about lack of adequate staff, the scheduling of hours, and the operation of the service in general.

"I am not attacking the health service," said Hoganson. "I am merely doing my duty as Freshmen class president by answering the questions people have brought to me."

The discussion will feature a panel consisting of Hoganson, the Freshmen President's Council, and Dean of Student Affairs Sam Basta.

Dr. Zorn new NSU president

Dr. Roman J. Zorn, a 51-year-old New England college president with a broad background of both teaching and administrative experience, is the new president of Nevada Southern University.

Chancellor Neil D. Humphrey announced the appointment of NSU's new chief executive at a general faculty meeting on the NSU campus this noon.

Humphrey noted that Dr. Zorn was the unanimous first choice of a faculty committee elected to recruit candidates for the president's post. The chancellor added that he recommended Dr. Zorn to the Board of Regents "with enthusiasm" and that the Board voted unanimously to offer Dr. Zorn the position.

Dr. Zorn has been president of Keene State College at Keene, N.H., since 1964 when the New Hampshire Legislature gave the college autonomy in the state's higher education system composed of two state colleges and a university campus.

"There is a tremendous potential for a first rate university in Las Vegas and the challenge of working with the faculty and

Thursday, Nevada Day recess

No classes will be held on the University of Nevada campus this Thursday, which is Nevada Admission Day. Classes will resume on Friday, however.

Because of the vacation the Sagebrush will not appear on campus Friday, but will continue normal publication the following Tuesday.

Swiss ski vacations made available

University of Nevada students have an opportunity to enjoy nine full days of skiing at a Swiss ski resort during Christmas vacation.

The trip, a National Student Association project, will cost students $385 each, and includes round-trip fare from Reno to the resort, St. Moritz, room and board, skiing and lessons if desired.

The lodgings, in a first class chalet, will be two-man rooms, pool and sauna bath in the middle of the largest ski area in Switzerland. The ski area boasts four runs over 10 miles long.

students to bring this to fruition is really what attracted me to the new position," commented Dr. Zorn by telephone from his office at Keene.

His decision to leave New Hampshire was communicated to his faculty there simultaneously with the announcement to the NSU faculty.

An historian by profession, Dr. Zorn also has served as dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Rhode Island, as director of the Green Bay Center at the University of Wisconsin and as a professor of history at Wisconsin, Ohio University, University of Missouri and University of Arkansas.

He started as a high school instructor at Amery, Wis., in 1937.

He received his Bachelor of Education degree that year from Wisconsin State College. He earned his Master of Philosophy degree at the University of Wisconsin in 1940 and his Doctor of Philosophy degree from the same institution in 1953.

A native of River Falls, Wis., Dr. Zorn was a midshipman and an ensign during World War II.

His wife's name is Ann and they have four daughters, Frances, 16, Carolyn, 14, Marian, 12, and Kathy, 10. Two of the girls are in high school, one in is junior high and one in elementary school.

Dr. Zorn plans to assume his NSU duties in March, but said his family probably will not join him in Las Vegas until school is out.

During his four-year tenure at Keene State College, Dr. Zorn developed the institution from a teachers' college into a liberal arts college with programs in industrial technology. The college campus has seen more new construction in the last four years than it did in the previous 40 years. It now has 1,700 full-time day students and another 500 evening students. It offers the Bachelors degrees and a graduate program in education at the Master's level.

Dr. Zorn noted that the problems of expansion at NSU are not unfamiliar to him.

"It's just a case of moving aggressively from where you are to where you should be," he said.

He added, however, that he is not an advocate of pushing one phase of the university at the expense of others.

"The whole enterprise has to be brought along simultaneously," said Dr. Zorn.

He is the author of 11 research publications on historical matters, has contributed to nine reference volumes and has published 28 book reviews.

Mock election to morrow

A mock election sponsored by the Young Democrats and Youth for Nixon will be held tomorrow. Students who wish to cast a vote for either of the major candidates for the Presidency of the United States or any other candidate (or non-candidate) will find voting booths set up in the Jot Travis Student Union Building.

The voting hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Included on the ballot will be the names of dissident Democrats Gene McCarthy and Dick Gregory. Tom Myers, president of the Young Democrats, said that other names may also appear on the ballot.

There will be a write-in space on the ballot.

Engineering and Science at IBM

"You're treated like a professional right from the start."

"The attitude here is, if you're good enough to be hired, you're good enough to be turned loose on a project," says Don Feistamel.

Don earned a B.S.E.E. in 1965. Today, he's an Associate Engineer in systems design and evaluation at IBM. Most of his work consists of determining modifications needed to make complex data processing systems fit the specialized requirements of IBM customers.

Depending on the size of the project, Don works individually or in a small team. He's now working with three other engineers on part of an air traffic control system that will process radar information by computer. Says Don: "There are only general guidelines. The assignment is simply to come up with the optimum system."

Set your own pace

Recently he wrote a simulation program that enables an IBM computer to predict the performance of a data processing system that will track satellites. He handled that project himself. "Nobody stands over my shoulder," Don says. "I pretty much set my own pace."

Don's informal working environment is typical of Engineering and Science at IBM. No matter how large the project, we break it down into units small enough to be handled by one person or a few people.

Don sees a lot of possibilities for the future. He says, "My job requires that I keep up to date with all the latest IBM equipment and systems programs. With that broad an outlook, I can move into almost any technical area at IBM—development, manufacturing, product test, space and defense projects, programming or marketing."

Sac State edges Pack 17-14

Before a crowd of about six thousand alumni and Nevada student routers, the Wolf Pack dropped their Homecoming game to the Sacramento State Hornets Saturday in the third Far Western Conference game for Nevada. The Pack's FWC record now stands at two losses and one tie and nonconference standings are two wins and one loss.

The first quarter was without score and remained a chess game between the two teams. The second quarter was almost a repeat of the first but with 44 seconds left, the Hornets had pushed to the five yard line and with a fourth down and goal situation, their fullback Mike Deangelis dove over the line to put Sac on the scoreboard. The extra point kick by Doyle Brunson was good to give the Hornets a seven point lead at half time.

The second half opened with an early score by Sac which was set up by a 54 yard punt return that left the Hornets on Nevada's 17 yard line. Sac State's halfback Mantel Williams ran the remaining yardage to score and the extra point kick by Rick Bergstrom was good to give Sacramento a 14 point lead.

Nevada came back at the end of the third quarter to push the ball to the Sac 11 yard line and set up the play that would put them on the scoreboard. The first play of the fourth quarter was a scoring one for Nevada when quarterback Mike Oreno passed to flanker John Capdeville who carried the ball across for six points on Oreno's quarterback option play. Oreno then ran around his right end for another two points.

After the Pack kicked off to Sac they pulled the play that kept them in contention. Two minutes after their first score, Nevada's star tackle Jesse Sattwhite intercepted Lyle James' pass and returned it 32 yards for another Nevada touchdown with 13:13 left in the game. The extra point kick was blocked by the Sac. defense so the score remained tied at 14-14.

Both teams, sensing the need for a win to stay in FWC contention, began to boost their efforts but it was Sacramento that seemed most determined to win. With 6:27 left, Sacramento's Rick Bergstrom kicked a 22 yard field goal for three points and the game. Nevada had a chance to come back from behind when they controlled the ball on Sac's 23.

On a fourth down and ten yards needed for the first down, Oreno attempted a long run play but it was foiled by the Hornet's defense after only an eight yard gain. Sac State took over possession of the ball with 43 seconds left on the clock and ate up time by keeping the ball out of the air and grounding to steal Nevada's first Homecoming loss in the new Mackay Stadium and their chances for the Far Western Conference title.

Intramural cross country

Lincoln Hall took top honors in the intramural Homecoming cross country race last Saturday placing first, fourth and tenth for a total of 15 points. ATO placed second with runners coming in third, fifth, seventh and eighth.

The winning runner from Lincoln Hall was Jim Douglas with a 29:56.4 timing for the five-mile event. The first 15 finishers and their organizations are as follows:

Pete Reams was named "Runner of the week" by cross country coach Jack Cook for Reams' performance in Saturday's triangle meet.

Cross country team wins seventh

The Wolf Pack cross country squad won its sixth and seventh straight dual-meets last Saturday on their home course against Sacramento State and Hayward State Colleges. These two wins give the Nevada team three wins against no losses in the Far Western Conference Standings.

The scores for the two meets were Nevada-18, Sacramento State-44 and Nevada-17, Hayward State-46.

Cross country coach Jack Cook was very pleased with his team's performance as he has been all year. He was exceptionally pleased with the surprising second place finish of Pete Reams and the new Sun Valley four-mile course record set by first place finisher for the Wolf Pack Peter Duffy at 24:07.

Pete Reams commented after the race, "I just ran. I just decided to stay with the leaders and see what would happen. I passed Dick Hunter at two-miles and coasted in behind Duffy."

Reams felt that Pete Sinnott might have taken third place away from Bob Jameson of Sac. State but Sinnott lost his track shoe and had to stop to retie it.

The individual place finishers and times for the leaders were: first Peter Duffy (Nev.) 24:07, second Pete Reams (Nev.) 24:49, third Bob Jameson (Sac. State) 24:54, fourth Pete Sinnott (Nev.) 24:59, fifth Dick Hunter (Hayward State) 25:00, sixth Henry Kirk (Nev.) 25:02, seventh Anthony Risby (Nev.) 25:13, eighth Paul Bateman (Nev.) 25:30, ninth Lee Ferrero (Sac. State) 25:45, and tenth Orlando Gutierrez (Nev.) 26:05.

Other finishers for Nevada were Lee Marshall 26:30, Ray Brown 27:24, Phil Ennis 27:32, Tom Foley 28:22 and Bob Smith 35:59.

The Wolf Pack will face the University of California Aggies at Davis and the Chico State College Wildcats in a triangle meet slated for Nov. 2.

JV Raiders lose to Aggies

The Nevada JV Raiders dropped their game against the University of California at Davis Aggie's JV squad 26-14, in the third game for the Nevada squad. The Friday night game at Davis saw the Raiders gain only 11 yards rushing compared to the Aggie's 285.

Scoring for Nevada was Bill Marioni who picked off an Aggie aerial and ran 11 yards for the Raider's first score. Their second score was accomplished by Bob Loux's pass to Bruce Thomas who completed the 37 yard scoring jaunt.

Bob Riefer, halfback for the Aggies, scored twice to account for nearly half of their score by making two short plunges for 12 Aggie points. The California prep sprint champion carried the ball 28 times for a total of 92 yards rushing.

NSU downs Cal Tech 69-0

Nevada Southern's Rebels are continuing their fabulous first year of football with a 69 to 0 win over Cal Tech last Saturday night. This win is the sixth straight for the NSU squad.

The Rebel's win over the Engineers proves that Nevada Southern has the potential for expert play under the coaching of Bill Ireland and his staff. Ireland had all 51 squad members in uniform for the game and had eight different Rebels score.

The Wolf Pack faces Humboldt State College next Saturday in Mackay Stadium at 1:30. This will be the fourth FWC game and Nevada will still be looking for its first conference win.
