Elections protested, charges filed

by MIKE GRAHAM

The ASUN general elections have been challenged. A student has filed several charges against the Elections Board. All allege illegal and unconstitutional conduct during the general election.

PEGGY LEAR Bowen, a senior drama major, has filed the charges. Bowen wants the elections thrown out. She said, "I intend to expose the unconstitutional, illegal and biased actions that took place throughout the ASUN election this year.

"The reason I have brought the charges against the Elections Board is that I feel, if rules are to be made, they should not be broken according to the whims of any board or student politician."

Bowen has asked Frankie Sue Del Papa, ASUN president, to bring the matter to the Student Judicial Council. Del Papa said she would, but a definite date for a hearing has not been set. Bowen also requested that the case be handled as a civil court action. This means Bowen and the Elections Board chairman Braden Rippetoe will both submit briefs outlining their case.

A HEARING will then be held after both sides have submitted briefs to the judicial council and each other. Once the briefs are submitted, no new points of defense or charges may be entered.

Some of the charges are:

1. "The fact that the members of the Elections Board appointed by Braden Rippetoe were not ratified by the ASUN Senate, as prescribed by the ASUN Constitution and statutes—a board which made all decisions concerning this election—denied students the due process of law and destroyed the Balance of Power concept of the ASUN government."

2. "The allowing and sanctioning of the Tuesday, March 16, 1971 general election at the Nevada Technical Institute, Stead, by the 'Elections Board' was done with total disregard and in direct opposition to section 150.0, Article I, of the ASUN Constitution.

3. "On Monday afternoon, March 15, Braden Rippetoe accepted absentee ballots, thus violating Section 158 of the Election Statutes.

4. "Due to the late appointment of the 'Elections Board' the rules and regulations for elections were not publicized as prescribed in Section 102.2 of the Election Statutes.

THE BRIEF prepared by Bowen also states, "The inefficiency and disorder with which the entire general election was run . . . has denied the students due process of law and the right to a fair and legal election."

The brief asks the judicial council to invalidate the general election and require a new "legal election be carried out under the auspices of the ASUN Constitution and Election Statutes."

(Editor's note: This is the first in a series on the athletic budgeting controversy at UNR. Today: the ASUN's side.)

by SHEILA CAUDLE

UNR students each pay $27.50 a semester for an ASUN fee. Of that, $7.50 or 27 per cent goes to fund intercollegiate athletics. The student body, roughly 5,000, then supports athletics to the tune of $75,000 per year.

This year ASUN has challenged that. In the near future ASUN will present a proposal for funding, which is still under review by Finance Control Board (FCB).

FCB HAS met with athletic department

$75,000 to athletics

spokesmen many times this year in an effort to straighten funding out. FCB wants to retain student control; now the athletic department has come up with a proposal to take the funding away, to place it as a separate fee and to raise it to $8.50 per student.

ASUN is opposed.

"A recent survey done by FCB shows that 70 per cent of the students surveyed in a questionnaire sent to 500 people felt the fee to intercollegiate athletics should either remain the same or be decreased," said Jon Wellinghoff, vice president of finance and publications for ASUN.

ROBERT J. Laughter, department of health, physical education and recreation, presented a summary of estimated expenses for the intercollegiate sports activities to FCB on Oct. 7, 1970. In the summary, Laughter stated, sports "are paid from funds provided by state appropriations, student fees, gate receipts and game guarantees."

The operating expenditures for the sports (football, $34,750; basketball, $47,280; other sports, $40,586) amounted to $122,616.

"Students are presently paying for over 50 per cent of the total operating expenditures of intercollegiate athletics at UNR," Wellinghoff said. Operating expenditures exclude coaches' salaries and tuition waivers.

GATE RECEIPTS, Wellinghoff said, came to $19,379.80 last year. "While students are paying for over 50 per cent, then, gate receipts are paying less than 14 per cent," he said.

During an FCB meeting on March 10, 1971, Laughter said he intended to ask for an athletic fee of $8.50—$7.50 per student to men's intercollegiate fees at all; Santa Clara students pay $10 per year; University of San Francisco, $30,000 from 4,500 students; and St. Mary's College, $11,000 from 1,100 students, according to Wellinghoff.

Students at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas pay $18 per year.

UNR'S EXPENSES for football, minus coaches' salaries, run to $34,750, according to Laughter's estimated figures.

UOP's operating expenses for football amount to $213,000, but gate receipts make up 95 per cent of that, Wellinghoff said.

St. Mary's operating expenses for football amount to $18,000.

Wellinghoff said other schools wouldn't give him figures because they were "highly confidential."

IN ADDITION, Wellinghoff said, "None of the schools in the WCAC, excepting UOP, which is leaving the conference, is interested in making football a conference sport."

Laughter told FCB the state contributed the most to athletics—almost $250,000. Next come the students with $72,000 (about $3,000 goes to women's intercollegiate athletics) and third is the Booster Club, which he said contributes $67,000 per year.

Laughter said then the Boosters normally ask that 75 per cent of their monies go toward football. However, he said basketball has the "top priority" at UNR. So basketball gets about $13,000 more than football per year in total budgeting.

Laughter says the $7.50 per student per semester is not enough to support intercollegiate athletics.

BUT ASUN leaders say that students shouldn't be asked to pay any more.

The issue will contain essays written by students, faculty, administration and other members of the university community, such as alumni.

A Reno doctor said Friday opponents of Nevada's proposed abortion bill were utilizing "hysterical fantasies" and "behavior more in keeping with...attitudes of the Spanish Inquisition of the New England witch burnings" to discourage liberalizing Nevada's abortion legislation.

DR. RICHARD Cavell was one of nearly 20 persons to testify before the Senate Judiciary Committee during a public hearing in Carson City.

The opponents of the legislation were as numerous as the proponents and included nurses and doctors.

Patricia Glenn, a registered nurse in Reno, told the committee, "I represent the women that have been making homes and have not had the time to march in the streets."

As the mother of ten children, she opposed the bill saying, "The fetus growing in a woman's womb is a living being. A baby is God's opinion that life should go on."

ANOTHER RENO nurse said a minority of nurses object to assisting in abortions and consider it immoral. She said the operation is a "messy business" and babies that sometimes exist outside the mother's womb must be left to die.

Not all nurses agreed.

Representing the Nevada Nurses Association, Dorothy Buddon retorted, "The Nevada Nurses Association feels it is time that the state is freed from a moral code of a religious minority."

DR. PAUL White of Washoe Medical Center reminded the committee that a promise to liberalize abortion laws was part of both the recent Democratic and Republican election platforms.

ship of the university to the community.

Essays should be typed, doublespaced and not more than three pages in length. Please bring them to the Sagebrush office in the basement of the Counseling and Testing Building on campus or mail to Box 8037, University Station, Reno, 89507, no later than April 12.

The issue is funded by Honors Board through the courtesy of Richard Siegel, director.

'Hysterical fantasies'

He said "You as legislators cannot sweep this issue under the rug. If you ignore your party platform then you shall be swept under the rug next election."

White said an estimated 2500 abortions are performed on Nevadans in other states and travelling was dangerous for patients.

DAN HANSEN of the American Independent Party attacked gynecologists supporting the abortion bill, whom he said were only bitter about losing "fat fees" for performing abortions in Nevada.

Hansen said liberalizing abortion laws would create a "decaying society" and would lead to the "killing of old people and the sterilization of women after the second child."

He also attacked senators Swobe, Young, Titlow and Monroe for supporting SB494.

The matter of abortion has been a political volley ball during the legislative session ever since Assemblywoman Mary Frazzini, R-Reno, introduced it.

ALTHOUGH FRAZZINI'S AB4 got some hard knocks on the Assembly side, it did pass 22-14 and went to the Senate.

The Senate killed the bill (10-7) after Sen. James Gibson, D-Las Vegas, moved "We give this bill no further consideration."

The legislation was reintroduced under a new number (SB494) by four senators. The new version included an amendment saying the legislation would not become law until the voters decided on the question in the 1972 general election.

Hansen attacked Senator Coe Swobe for adding the amendment.

"This is a cowardly attempt of legislators to avoid the question. Are the innocent to be tried by a kangaroo court of a public whipped into a frenzy by the mass media?"

The Senate will vote SB494 this week.

The will of the students

Editor:

Winds from the aftermath. We have experienced the will of the students. Wednesday's (resurrection) election results contained an indictment in some form of every student at this campus. John Lundemo won that election. From the very day (Dan) Klaich announced his candidacy, he had 600-700 Greek votes locked up.

Lundemo had zero votes the day he decided to run. Play around with these numbers a bit (although it may be tough for UNR students) and you find that Lundemo's platform won him 888 votes while Klaich's brought him 300-400.

I refuse to recognize the Greek vote, for the main reason that most Greeks are apolitical. It was a clique election (as usual, but this time they sweated a little more). Anyone who saw the debate between the two knows that Lundemo was the qualified candidate.

John had so much experience and so many ideas that Klaich looked and sounded ridiculous up there. Politically for this campus, there was no comparing the two. Yet Klaich will be ASUN president. Why, even Klaich realized that Lundemo was the better man.

I don't see how Klaich's conscience can let him keep the position. Those of you who elected Klaich voted for parties and pride of your foolish frats. Why must you always label yourselves? First, you consider yourselves human and supreme and you isolate yourselves from the entire world. Then you join frats and things, becoming elitist. Can't any of you be individuals? Must you always be a part of some thing?

Those of you who voted for John (and especially those who built the campaign with him)—have you learned your lesson yet? A university gets what it deserves—this one got Klaich. John, you're too damn good for this bizarre-bazaar-zoo. They are "educated fools, in uneducated schools." Leave this waste.

Those of you who didn't bother to vote, where are you? What are you? And this brings me to the last group I wish to attack—the student longhairs.

For years now you have been praised by scholars and intellectuals as the "hope of America," "the tuned-on," "concerned young generation." And you started believing this myth. You make me sick. You stay in your "Nye Hall Box" being NOTHING but stoned vegetables concerned about NOTHING but who you'd like to make it with tonight and the size of your lid.

You can complain righteously but when it comes to DOING you're no better than the rest. The longhair identity has lost its meaning and is being sucked into society right beside Glen Campbell and Rod McKuen. My 15 closest friends have dropped out this semester. There are more to come. We can no longer relate to this place, and that makes it hard to relate to good things like the Experimental College.

Being a student and owning what is now popularly referred to as a "revolutionary consciousness" is a contradiction in terms. The paradox is mind-boggling. Students are no longer part of the revolution. It has passed them way back at Kent State. You are no longer part of it. And you know that "if you are not part of the solution, you are part of the problem." Join us. Drop out.

Wednesday night Braden Rippetoe carried the "great message of the UNR tragedy." At about 7:15 p.m. Rippetoe administered last rights. The University of Nevada, Reno was pronounced DOA. Funderal and burial services take place on the first day of the fall 1971 semester. The student body will lie in state until then.....may it rot in hell.

This is the last in a series of letters designed to antagonize and perhaps stir you out of your lethargic slumber.

Goodbye and oink.

Do you give a damn?

Open letter to students:

Do you give a damn about the quality of your education?

The University of Nevada, Reno may not receive the funding necessary to maintain an adequate library. If the library does not receive sufficient funds, it will be forced to cut back on the purchase of new books and eliminate some of the services it provides now.

This will have a definite effect on the quality of education that you now receive—particularly those of you who are taking upperdivision and graduate courses.

This should concern you—after all, it's your education. If you are concerned, the time to act is now. And the first step you can take is to attend an organizational meeting at The Center Tuesday night at 8.

Harold Morehouse, the director of the library system, will be the guest speaker and will answer questions concerning the library's situation. After Morehouse's talk students can get together and decide on a course of action.

Ralph Nader drew applause from nearly 2,000 students last week when he combined consumer warnings with witty jabs at America's industrial polluters.

Nader's entire speech was interesting, to be sure; but one phrase seemed particularly apropos for the UNR campus.

"IF INDIVIDUALS are not willing to take to small steps, the

"IF INDIVIDUALS are not willing to take too small steps, then the big steps will never be taken on consumer and environmental issues."

How many small steps have been taken to save the grass on this campus?

Not all pollution is manifested as sulfur dioxide smoke bellowing from a copper smelting plant or lethal slag being dumped into a river by an auto plant.

Small steps

Environmental degradation can be something as petty as the condition of a campus lawn.

THE DAMAGE done by one individual walking on the grass is admittedly infinitesimally smaller than that of large industry, but the negligence is equally as evident.

My advice to students in the face of such environmental apathy is don't be too vocal in your disgust for industrial polluters for someone may ask you the embarrassing question, "What have you done to save the environment?" and you won't even be able to say "Well, I didn't walk on the grass today."

The UNR baseball team will be in action today at noon when UNR hosts Sacramento State College in a non-conference double header. The Pack will be out to improve its 3-7-1 record and to get a little more experience under its belt before a trio of games against Pepperdine this weekend.

Baseball today

Three games dropped

UNR's baseball team, starting its season out the hard way, dropped its first three conference games to University of the Pacific over the weekend. The Pack was shelled 16-0 Friday afternoon and lost Saturday's double header by 4-0 and 3-1.

In Friday's contest, the strong pitching of Pacific's talented freshman southpaw Rod Bovee coupled with UOP's 18-hit attack was more than UNR could handle. Bovee limited the Nevadans to three hits and struck out 12.

Saturday's twin bill saw the Pack's pitchers make a comeback, holding the Tigers to seven hits in each game, but the hitters mustered only seven hits the entire afternoon.

The first game would have been a pitchers' duel if the bottom half of the second inning could have been omitted, but UOP hung up four big runs in that frame. Rich Tucker pitched well in relief for the Wolves.

In Saturday's nightcap, the Pack put up one run in their half of the second when John Nienaber doubled and Bill Penaluna singled him in, but Pacific retaliated with one of their own in the third and added a pair in the fourth to end the

Another record

Wolf Pack distance star Peter Duffy has broken another record.

Having set the two mile mark two weeks ago, the Birtich athlete put his skill on the track in the three mile run this time.

The result was a 16 second shave of the stadium record of 14:38.5 set by Athol Barton. Duffy turned in splits of 4:45, 4:56, and 4:41 to set the new record of 14:22.9.

The pole vault standard was also destroyed as three-sport star Bert Serrano sailed over the bar at 15-3 to set a new Mackay Stadium mark and tie John Capdeville as the school's all-time premier pole vaulter.
