

Exchange program open on UNR campus

Along with 16 other American colleges and universities, UNR is participating for the first time this year in the National Student Exchange (NSE). This program gives students the opportunity to spend a portion of their college career attending another institution and experiencing other life-styles and cultural environments.

Presently, four Nevada students are participating in the exchange, and are spending this year at other campuses. They are: Sue Kinney, University of Hawaii; Larry Gomes, University of Massachusetts; Daniel Collins, University of Oregon; and Patricia Trent, University of South Florida.

In exchange, UNR has welcomed four students from other institutions and they include Toni Ranieri and Teresa Natelson, both from the University of Massachusetts; Julie Specht, University of South Florida; and Susan Menezes, University of Hawaii.

UNR's coordinator, Jo Deen Flack, is currently seeking applicants to participate in the exchange for the spring semester and next year. Six tuition waivers are available and those interested in applying may contact her at the Orvis School of Nursing or at 784-6841.

Informational meetings will be held in the East-West Room at the student union on Nov. 8 and 21 at noon for students desiring more information.

In order to qualify, students must have a 2.5 GPA at the time of the exchange, and should be either a sophomore or junior during the period of exchange. Seniors may not apply because university regulations require them to be on-campus students during the period of acquiring their last 30 credit hours.

Students may start their exchange at the beginning of any academic term because all institutions participating in the exchange do not operate on the same academic calendar.

Only those students who are state residents may apply. Out-of-state fees are waived and the students register at the host institute as "transfer" students.

Cost to the individual student, of course, varies, but the program includes a waiver of out-of-state tuition. This means, in effect, the student can attend another state university and pay tuition and fees of a resident student.

Room and board costs are paid directly to the exchange school and most non-governmental forms of aid can be continued during the exchange.

Most institutions recommend living in the residence halls. But schools which have no dorms require the student to locate his own off-campus housing.

Each student who participates in the program plans his academic curriculum with his adviser before departing. The student is assured his work will transfer and no credits will be lost.

Grades earned for all classes taken during the exchange are figured into the student's cumulative GPA at the home school. The courses and grade will appear on the student's permanent transcript.

Other members of the NSE program, and therefore schools which Nevada exchange students may attend, include Ohio University, University of Alabama, University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, University of Maine-Fort Kent, and West Chester State College in Pennsylvania.

Nevada 48 Chico St. 37

by ALI ARCHULATA

In what seemed to be a scoring marathon, UNR outlasted a surprisingly tough Chico St. football team at Mackay Stadium, 48-37.

Before a crowd of about 1000 rain-soaked fans, the big "Silver and Blue Machine" churned up an amazing total of 507 yards, 325 coming in the first half. The win even's Nevada's record at 4-4, while Chico's drops to 3-5.

The game, which saw both teams exploiting each other's defenses, was interrupted shortly after the half, when a fun-loving fan ran onto the field and started his own little contest. With two UNR policemen in hot pursuit, a young man ran down the middle of the field and proceeded to kick a perfect field goal. Much to the delight of an appreciative crowd, the invader responded by raising his arms over his head (Muhammad Ali fashion) and bowed to the fans. After causing one uniformed officer to fall down, the youthful prankster calmly jogged off the turf, where he was promptly arrested.

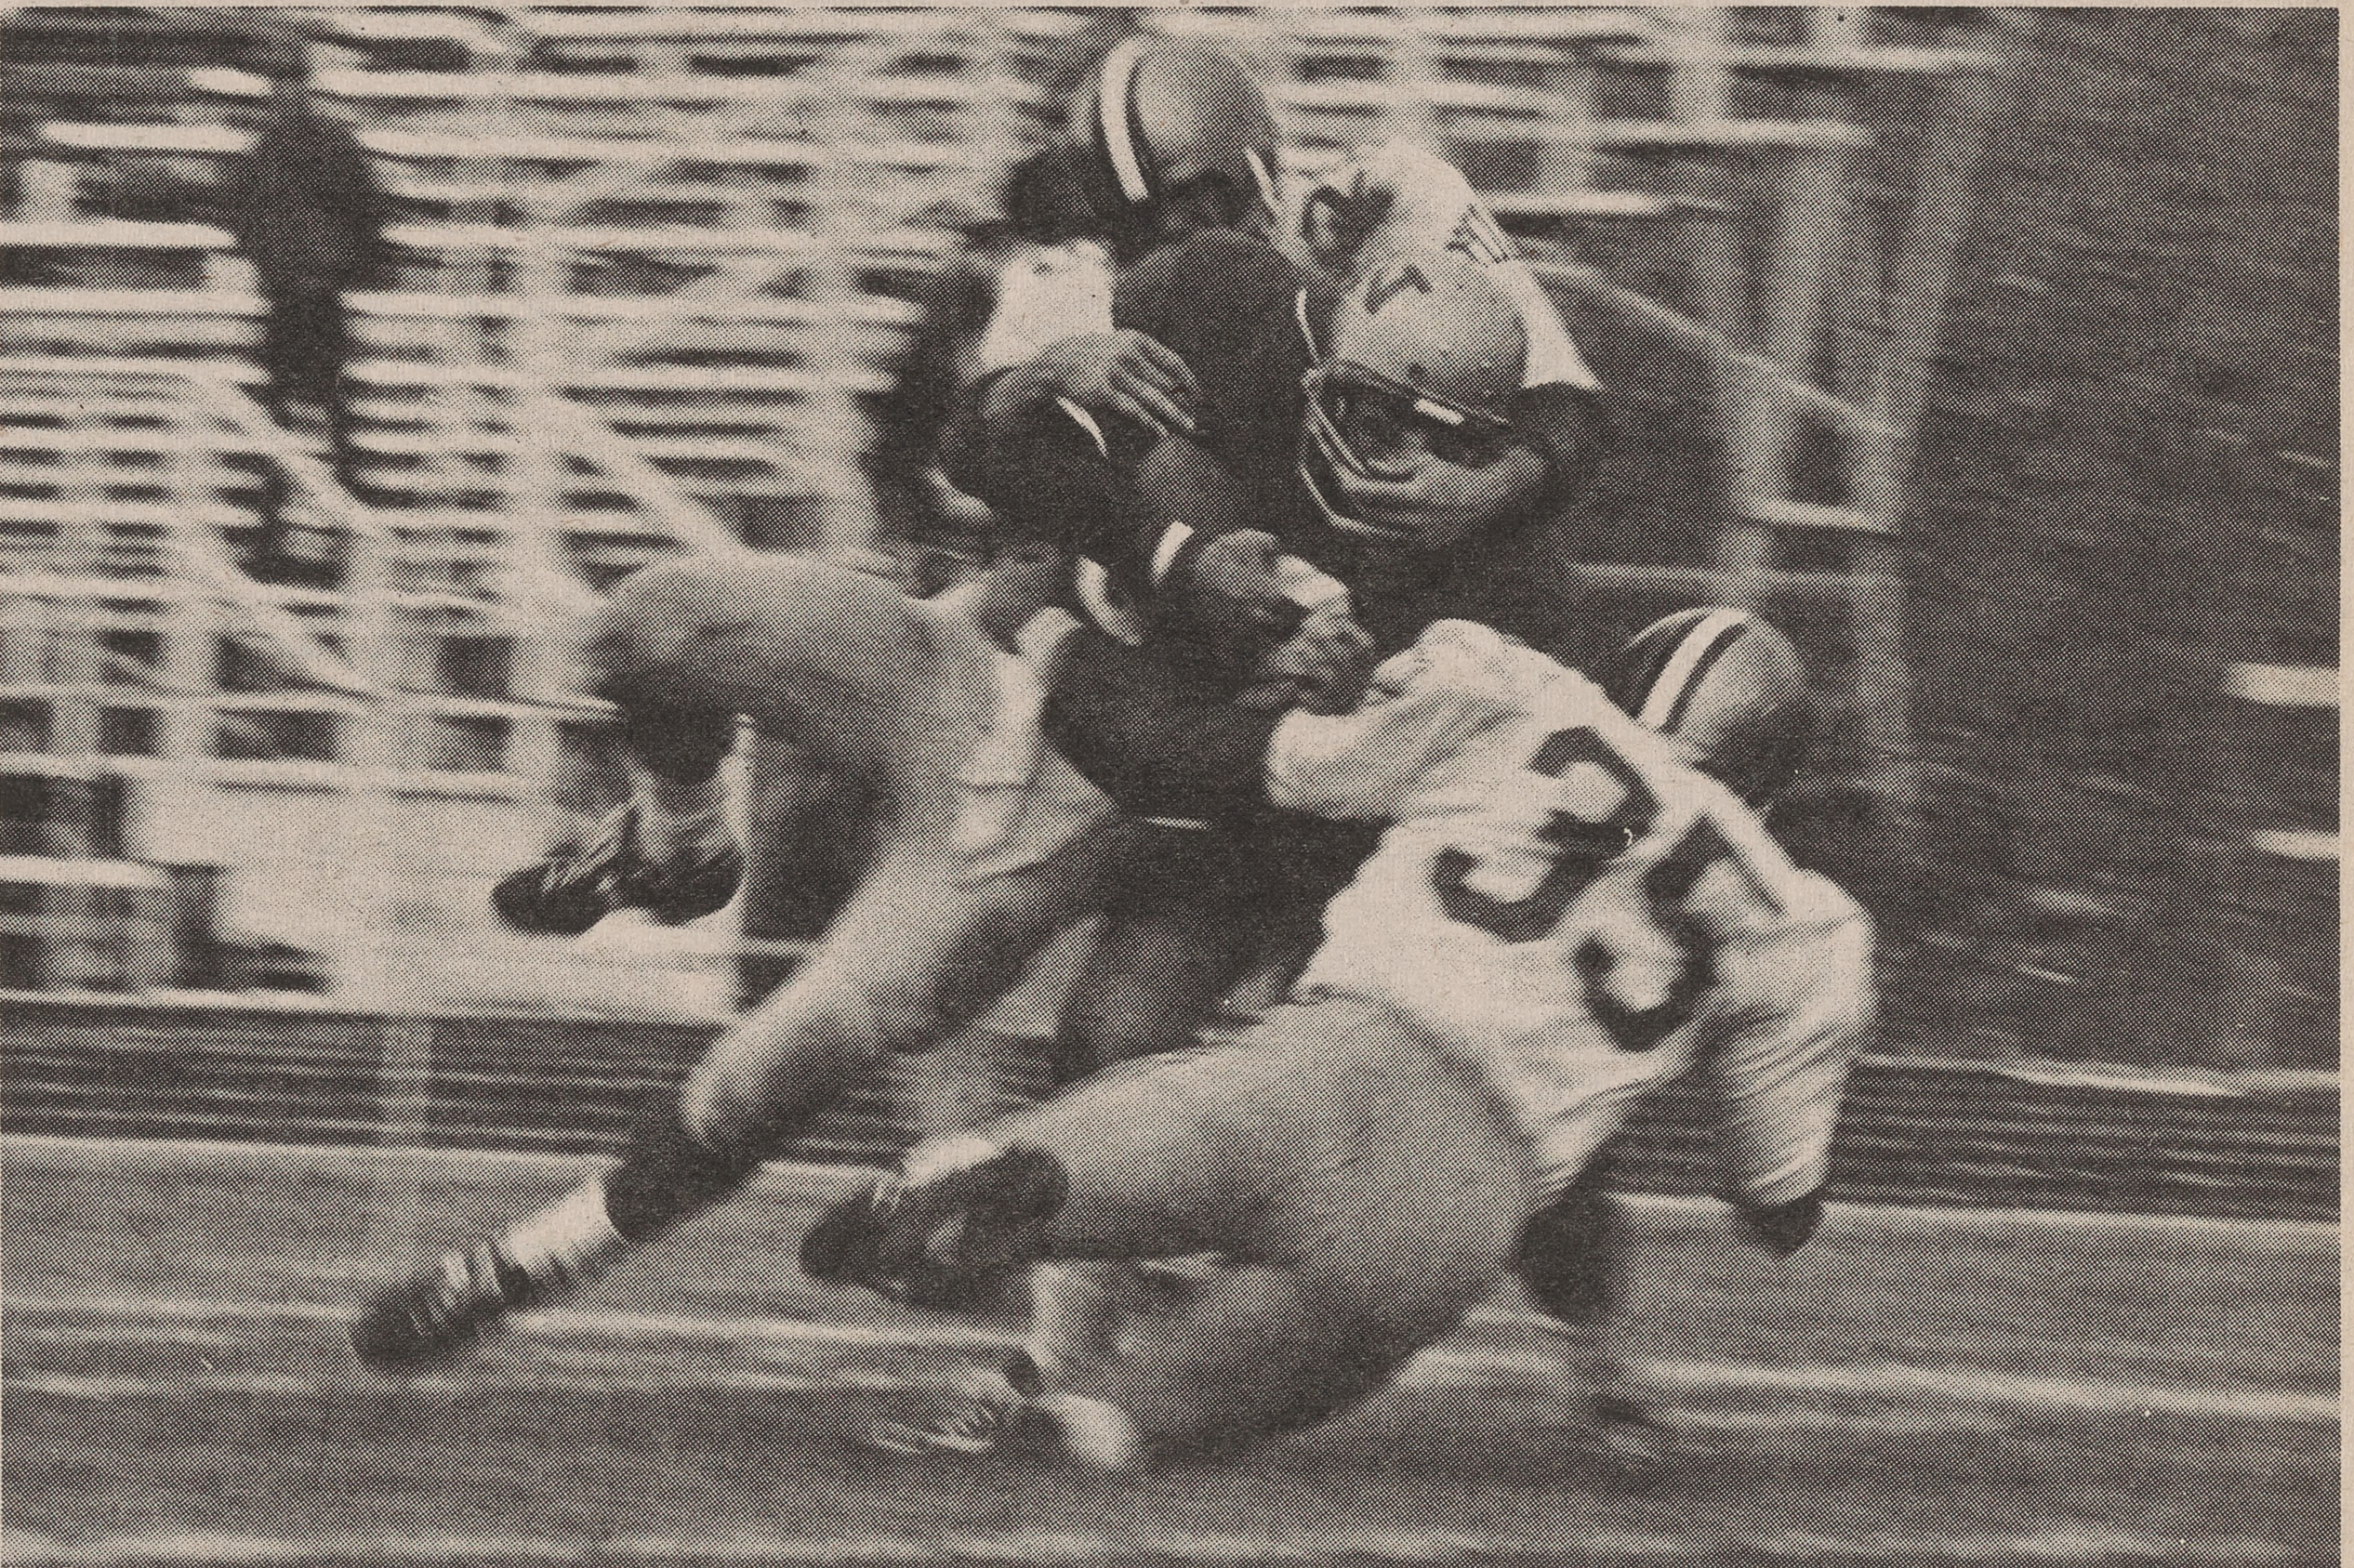

After kicking-off to Chico, a Mike Leck-caused fumble gave Nevada the ball on the visitors 27. Gene Watkins set up the Pack's first score on the quarterback keeper. With 13:20 left in the first quarter, Earnie "Magic" O'Leary slammed 11 yards to pay-dirt for the tally. A Charlie Lee PAT (Point After Touchdown) put Nevada ahead seven-zero.

Receiver Charlie Nunnely, "The Magnet," caught two passes and had Nevada "knocking at the door" again. A little more than two minutes after the first TD, O'Leary scored his second six-pointer on a "sweep."

Nevada scored once more in the first period, when Watkins fired a perfect shot into the waiting arms of Nunnely. At the end of the first period, the Wolf Pack found itself ahead, 21-0.

Following a Chico 42-yard touchdown sprint (extra point failed), Nevada retaliated by issuing orders to running back Gary Hulsey to score. He did.

A Chico drive failed but a field goal did not, as Rich Sorensen booted a 49-yard three-pointer for the losers.

Chico's Paul Matthews closed the scoring gap between the two squads to 28-16, galloping through the Nevada line for another score.

The Pack's Gary Kendrick caught a deflected pass from sophomore quarterback Tim House for 50 yards. Kendrick's reception was more thrilling than your average catch. With two defensive backs covering the burly Kendrick caught the tipped pass galloping into the end zone unmolested.

The half time score left Nevada on top, 35-16.

Chico drew first blood in the third period, when Matthews bulldozed his way into the end zone from three yards out.

The Californians came within five points when Dave Demek carried the pigskin 42 yards for another Chico TD. Demek's run narrowed Nevada's score to 35-30.

Overcast skies did not dampen the spirit or ability of the Watkins-

Kendrick combination. The Reno crowd saw Watkins' pass find its mark between two defenders and into the "glue-like" hands of Kendrick.

After Watkins had his TD run nullified by a holding penalty, Gary Hulsey re-scored the touchdown.

Chico scored the final touchdown on a Jim Parker 34-yard "option" play.

The soaring kicks of "toe man" Ray Hayes got the Nevada defense good field position many times.

"Offensively, we did a fine job, but they (Chico) played a lot better than we thought they could," said UNR head football coach Jerry Scattini. "I looked up at the scoreboard and saw the score was 35-30, and I began wondering how I was going to explain it if we lost," Scattini said. "We're just happy to win."

The Nevada helmsman cited the offensive line for their excellent protection on passing plays, and their driving blocks on running plays.

Scattini also commended substitute running back Gary Hulsey.

"Gary's capable, there's no doubt about it," Scattini said. "He's got the tools, and the pressure was on him to produce when we needed him. He did a good job."

"I've always thought we were only an inch away from a good game," said offensive coach Keith Loper. "No one broke down in their blocking, and Dave Clapham made some of the best 'hits' I've ever seen."

Defensive coach Jack Eateringer didn't think his corps did too well. "You can't say a defense played well when the opposition scored 37 points," Eateringer said the defense has been under pressure "getting up" for strong offensive teams every week.

Nevada's victory over Chico could be very costly as half back Earnie O'Leary was the victim of a "cheap-shot" during the game. After O'Leary was pushed out of bounds and the whistle had blown, he was slammed into the corner of a bench. O'Leary had to be helped off the field and the visitors were called for unnecessary roughness. He was taken to the hospital for x-rays.

Opinion

Towell/Bilbray

At least there'll be one exciting race this election, or stated more precisely, one close contest. It's the Bilbray-Towell struggle.

The fact that it's a contest at all is amazing. Following Jim Bilbray's convincing defeat of King Walter in the primary, most of the state's political notables assumed a token general ballot would send the University Regent off to Washington for two years.

Real-estate agent David Towell didn't just roll over and play dead, however, and he has even managed a majority in some polls and gained a tie in others.

Following the primary, I also saw the candidates in a dead heat. In a perfect example of "anyone-but-Baring" mentality, I actively supported Bilbray. After meeting both candidates, I found them aggressive, intelligent, refreshing and a definite change from the Nevada Congressional mold.

The general election and the creeping politic has done a great deal to influence my current position.

As with the presidential race, I have been amazed at some candidate's lack of respect for the voter intellect. Indeed, I'm not a believer in the myth of a completely informed populous, but it seems only decent to recognize the possibility of voter sophistication and concentrate at least some portion of the campaign on relevant issues, qualifications, experience and creditability.

I would be very disturbed if Nevadans elected a Congressman who used exclusively political tricks, name calling, deception, and witty (?) sayings.

Guessed yet? I'm supporting Jim (if your're behind Towell, call him "Jimmy" or "Jim Jr.") Bilbray. David Towell's entire campaign has disgusted me.

"In 1970, University professor Paul Adamian led a demonstration at Governor's Day . . ." This is the introduction to a well-played Towell commercial. The context indicates Bilbray supported a "radical" professor who laid in front of the Governor's car and therefore Bilbray supports radical leadership at the university. The entire spot is a political deception, and I'll bet it will be effective with a number of Nevada voters.

Paul Adamian didn't lie in front of the car. He was never convicted of disturbing the peace or anything else. He was fired from his job as a university professor for actions apart from his job, on his own time! Bilbray, as were most of Paul Adamian's supporters, wasn't particularly enamored with the English professor, but thought the concept of firing a person for unproven charges and off-the-job activities wasn't exactly in the democratic tradition.

"Because honesty still counts . . ." Recognize this one? It's the Towell anthem. After being caught by a leading state Republican shifting positions on the amnesty platform, I wonder how the "Towell Territorian" can bear to print the ole "Honesty counts" line.

Along with the amnesty bit, the "coat tail" race ranks No. Two in disbelief. Baring was a

Nixon rubber stamp, but at least he didn't brag about it. There has always been the blind, straight-party voter, so I assume there is some logic in the approach.

The issues, or lack of them continue.

When asked about his qualifications to represent the gaming industry this week, the Republican came up with "No comment."

A state income tax has been one of his major issues. Since when did a U S Congressman have anything to say about the taxation policies within a state?

Towell said he would prevent starting busing in Nevada. Did he forget that we already have it in Las Vegas?

He compares Bilbray's primary spending with his own as an illustration of the Regent's big-time money. Does he really think his opponents were in the same league with Walter Baring?

When first asked about Walter Baring's endorsement, his reply was he had only just read the news accounts, but was grateful. A careful look at campaign expenditures reveals that Towell financed the filming of the first announcements given to the TV stations around the state.

In fact he arranged for the release of the story and then said he'd only just learned of the news. Could be true, but then he'd have a runaway, uncontrollable campaign staff like the Nixon-Watergate group.

Sorry, I'm getting carried away and that last paragraph is beginning to sound exactly like what I found revolting in the Towell campaign. And that's the point. Mudslinging and other related joys are so easy, so effective and so much of a reality today, that I hope our Congressman isn't the best qualified in that field.

Whatever you do today, vote. You've got until 7 p.m. to do it and 2 to 4 years to live with it. Good luck.

Editor:

Tuesday, Nov. 7 at 7 p.m. there will be a meeting of the Finance Control Board concerning scholarships for ASUN officers and senators.

ASUN currently pays $6800 and ten tuition waivers a year. The scholarships are paid by ASUN fees. While tuition waivers are not paid by ASUN, they are paid by all students. There are currently three proposals for ASUN scholarships. One proposal is to leave scholarships as they currently are—$6800. The second proposal by Rick Elmore would cut scholarships proportionally and cost the students $3800 a year and eight tuition waivers.

Bob Moore, off-campus senator, proposed elimination of some scholarships and further cutting of others to cost $2100 per year and eight tuition waivers, a savings of $1700 over Elmore's proposal and, $4700 over the present system.

We urge all students interested in voicing an opinion on this subject to attend the meeting at 7 p.m. in the Ingersoll Room of the student union. This is the chance to do something about student government.

"It's designed to educate people on women and the roles they have played in history," Pyzel said. "Some of them have been very famous."

Francis Hartigan of the history department has been instrumental in providing the speakers, including David Herlihy, professor of history at Harvard University. Herlihy is currently a fellow at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford University.

News notes

No permission

(CPS)—President Nixon said last week that when and if he were re-elected president, he would not hesitate to make "unpopular decisions."

A little farther down the campaign trail, he promised that if he were re-elected, he would take actions to insure that "the age of permissiveness is gone."

Veteran blood drive

The ever-present need of medical patients for blood will be aided by the UNR Vets when they hold their on-campus blood drive.

To encourage participation by faculty and students, a trophy will be awarded to the university organization with the highest percentage of its members giving blood.

The drive will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 16 and 17 in the Jot Travis Room of the student union. Further information is available from Bill Brewer, 786-1889.

Bob Moore, president of the Vets, said the blood will be used at the discretion of the blood bank or can be credited to parents, spouses, minor brothers, sisters or children. Should a group contribute 30 or more pints, the blood can be used in any way the group specifies.

The Vets have also extended a party invitation to all UNR veterans. Slated Nov. 10 at 8 p.m. in the VFW Hall on Moana Lane, the club will provide potatoes and corn. Liquid refreshments are prepaid to $100. Those attending should bring something to barbecue and, if they like, a salad.

Gould film wins award

Arthur Gould, journalism instructor at UNR, will receive the Committee on International Nontheatrical Events (CINE) Golden Eagle Award at the organization's banquet and film festival Nov. 9-10 in Washington, D.C. Gould is receiving the award for his film "School."

CINE is the official entry organization for U.S. films in foreign film festivals. All award-winning films of the past year will be shown at the festival.

"School" was produced for use on the first day of kindergarten. It attempts to give children a positive introduction to their first day of school and to overcome any fears they may have.

According to Gould, the film should be shown at the beginning of the first class, immediately after the teacher has introduced herself. This eliminates "the crying incidents on the first day of school," Gould said.

The film has been distributed throughout the U.S. since its release in 1971.

Pledges down

The number of students who pledged fraternities at UNR is down this year from years past.

However, according to Tom Herrera, president of the Interfraternity Council, this doesn't mean the end of the fraternity on the UNR campus.

Herrera said formal rush, when students visit each house and attend socials for a week at the beginning of school wasn't good at all. "Informal rush is now the more relevant thing, and we expect many more members."

He said, "In years past, men went to a fraternity because their dad was in one. Now people don't think like that anymore. Kids now-a-days are more individualistic. They go up to a house and say they're interested. They dislike the formal, traditional thing."

This year, fraternities have pledged 105 from formal rush, compared to 140 men last year.

The sororities, on the other hand, pledged six more women at the end of formal rush than they did last year, according to Cecilia St. John, assistant dean of students.

Nationally, as well as locally, those involved with the Greek system say it is on an upswing from the turbulent sixties when radicalism cut membership.

Sierra Club

"Recycling—the state of its technology" will be discussed at the Toiyabe Chapter of the Sierra Club's Thursday evening meeting in Reno.

Ron Guidotti, vice-chairman and newsletter editor of Toiyabe Chapter, will outline some of the economic, social and political aspects of recycling as well as technological developments in the field. Guidotti, a chemist with the U. S. Bureau of Mines, will exhibit bricks and other building materials made from fly ash, incinerator ash, and other recycled components.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the Stein, 116 North Center, and the public is invited. An informal dinner, ordered from the Stein's regular menu, begins at 7 p.m.

UNR student Dave Boroughf, the Sierra Club's student representative, can be reached at 329-3741 for more information.

Old laws

(CPS)—New York City maintains several archaic laws on its books, which can be enforced by any law officer, no matter how silly they may seem.

It is illegal to walk into a city park with a newspaper, for example, if the purpose is to sit on the paper. And when you place newspapers in trash cans, they must be securely tied, or you are committing a misdemeanor.

Milk bottles must be used for only one purpose, that for which they were intended. A person who greets someone by placing the thumb to the tip of the nose and wiggling his or her fingers can be arrested for disorderly conduct. It is illegal for a bald-headed man to visit a beauty shop with the intent of having his hair regrown.

Part of the sanitary code states that every manager hiring 10 or more persons has a duty to provide proper receptacles for expectorations (spitting).

And a New York City law makes it illegal to stand more than 10 minutes in any one place in the city.

Environment out in the cold

The major problem facing UNR's Environmental Studies Board is not, according to chairman Richard Sill, the environment. It is, he said, "excessive compartmentalization."

Under ideal circumstances, the interdisciplinary ESB would have instructors from up to four departments involved with teaching a class. But, through the unwillingness or inability of departments to make instructors available, the ESB can't secure proper instruction for its proposed classes, Sill said.

Sill mentioned he was considering approaching the Board of Regents with this problem if the departments involved cannot work out a solution.

In the meantime, the ESB is advising students of any classes available in environmental study. It is also encouraging departments to adopt environmental studies classes on their own.

Learn to cheat

Cheating will be the subject of a coming student judicial council meeting, Robert Kinney, associate dean of students, announced this week. The council is considering expansion of the definition of "cheating" within the university community.

Presently, plagiarism and cheating on tests bear the possibility of expulsion. A provision barring the use of term papers manufactured by now-popular commercial term paper companies may be added to the list soon.

Kinney expressed concern that the sale of the term papers is getting out of hand, and he wants students to be aware of the seriousness of the offense of using them. Charges brought against a student for cheating always result in at least probation or suspension, and possible expulsion, he said.

Kinney noted the Sagebrush has voluntarily stopped running advertisements for these companies due to the problems the papers have caused on campus.

UNPD sargeant heads Peace Officers

Sgt. Keith Shumway of the University of Nevada Police Department is the new president of the Nevada Peace Officers Association (NPOA). He was elected for a one-year term at its annual convention in Reno.

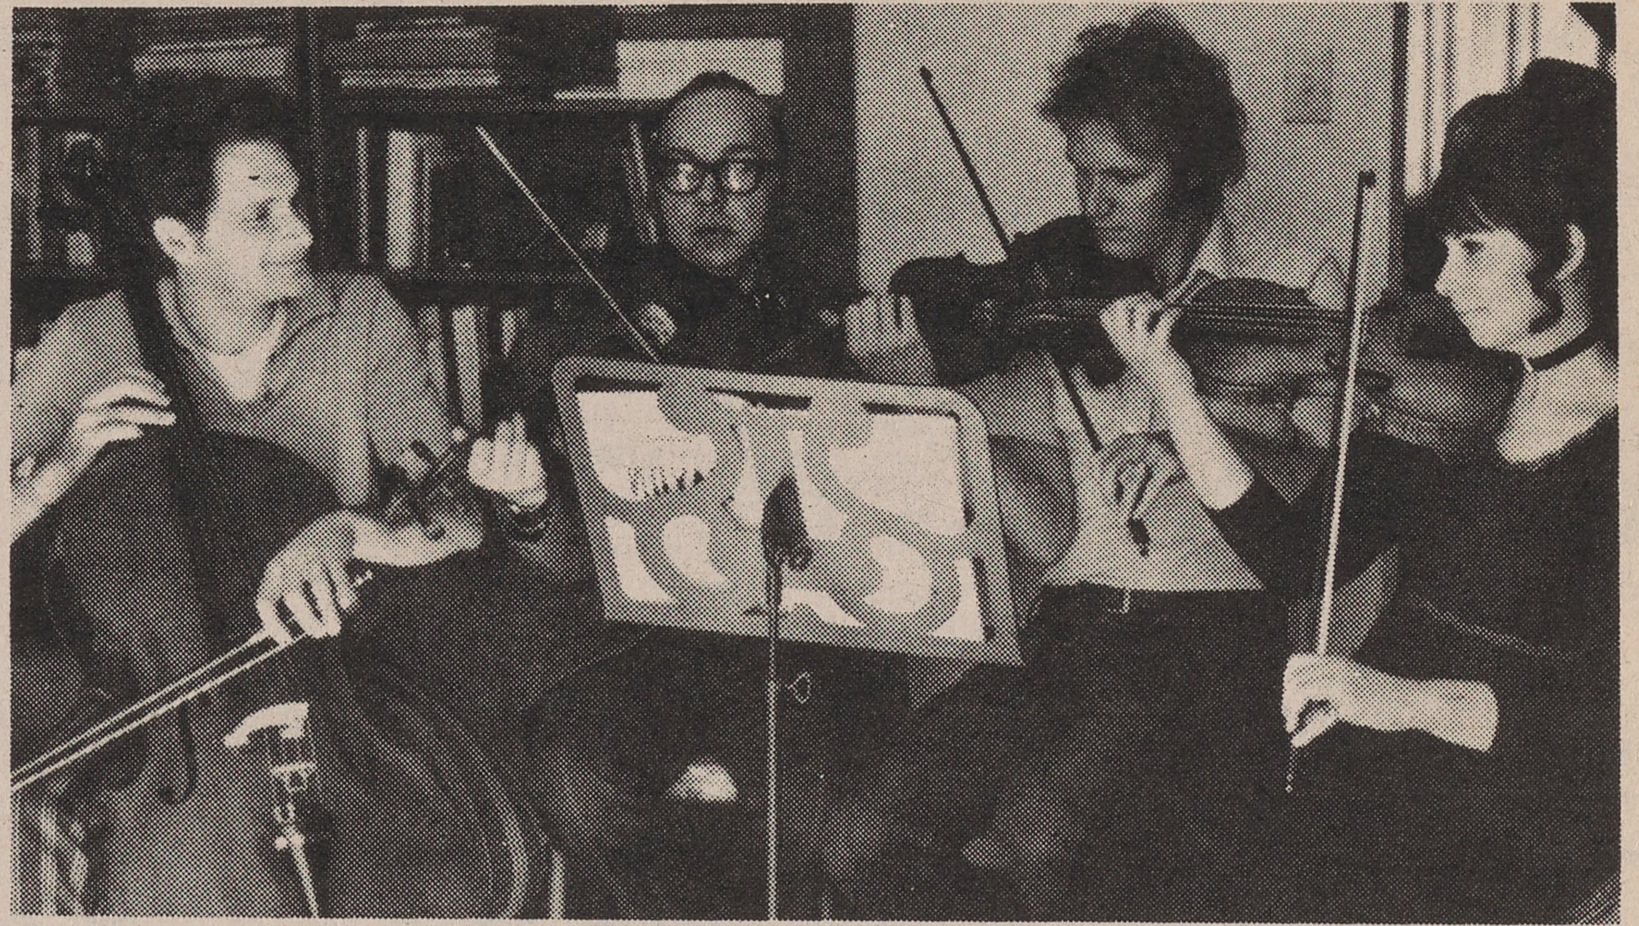

The purpose of NPOA is to establish communication and to upgrade and professionalize the peace officers of Nevada. NPOA has approximately 1,000 members. They are mainly police officers, sheriffs, deputies and highway patrol officers.

As new president, Shumway will work for an amendment to the association's by-laws to include as members everyone concerned with criminal justice. According to Shumway, the new people qualified for membership would be district attorneys, fire and postal investigators and "even university presidents."

Shumway is opposed to NPOA's former practice of hiring lobbyists to work for legislation favorable to the association. He believes that "if it's good legislation, it doesn't have to be bought." He has set up a committee of members to coordinate the legislative effort instead of spending money on professional lobbyists.

The association publishes the NPOA Magazine four times a year, a monthly newsletter and an annual crime journal for distribution to peace officers throughout the state.

NPOA also offers training programs on crime prevention and police supervision. This year top men in crime prevention from around the country will speak at these programs.

New World Quartet

The New World String Quartet perform in the Jot Travis Lounge Wednesday at 1 p.m.

The quartet, composed of four local professional musicians, will be playing musical analogies demonstrating principles of social unity in addition to its regular repertoire of light classical and pop music.

Sponsored by the Baha'i Student Association, the event is being held in observance of the birth of the founder of the Baha'i movement, Baha'u'llah, who established the faith's social and spiritual principles more than 100 years ago.

Bids open on gym

Bids will be opened Thursday on the new UNR physical education complex.

The building alone is expected to cost $3.8 million, according to Ed Pine, vice president for business. The total construction budget is for $4.25 million.

The State Planning Board will open the bids and pass them to the university Board of Regents for a decision. Pine said the bid award could come in late November or early December, and the complex could be completed in the spring of 1974.

The complex will provide UNR with its first swimming pool with spectator seating. Also included is a diving pool and two gymnasiums for intramural sports.

The current gymnasium will continue to be used for spectator sports because a larger gymnasium will not be built until phase two of the construction program.

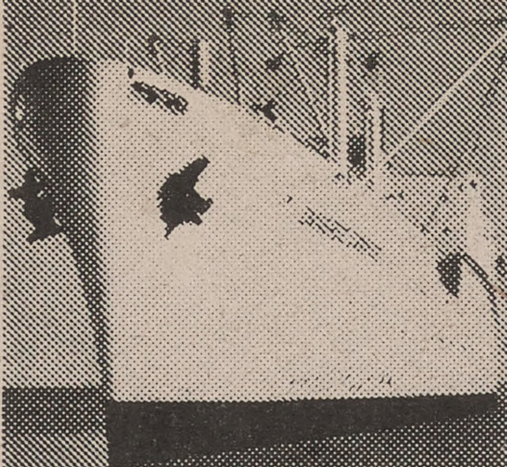

The complex will be located northwest of the Bureau of Mines building, and the architecture, done by Selden & Nespor Associates, will be in keeping with the northern portion of the campus.

Pine said the swimming pool will have eight lanes and the diving pool, with one and three meter springboards, can also be used for water polo. The pool and other facilities, he said, might see some use by the community after construction.

Six handball courts, two squash courts and a multiple-use room will increase the variety of activities at the school.

Preliminary grading of the site has already begun.

Most of our classes are held at night and we award credits for documented life/work experience. Today's colleges and universities must respond to the needs of the communities that surround them. We are committed to making our programs responsive. We attempt to provide financial assistance to students with need. Our campus is located in three areas: Washington, Columbia and Baltimore.
