UNPD tired of being bad guys

Michael Dean

"There's only one way to change a bad law, and that's to enforce it," UNR Police Chief Keith Shumway told the Senate in his address on campus parking problems Wednesday evening.

"We're going to enforce the law," said Shumway, "as you people pay us to do. If that doesn't do it we might as well give up, because we're tired of being the bad guys."

Shumway said he wouldn't care if another parking ticket was ever written, but he said, "I can't change the law. I can tell the officers not to enforce it but then I wouldn't be doing my job."

Last year, said Shumway, $13,049 was paid for parking permits, 16,937 citations were issued totaling $41,777 and the 104 meters took in $19,379. The $13,049 was put into a special account set up by past UNR president N.Edd Miller, which has never been touched.

Shumway said that $21,000 was spent to improve the bookstore parking lot, $16,000 was used for redoing the Lincoln and White Pine parking lots, $3,550 went for blacktop along the fence by the Lombardi Recreation Building, and $30,000 was spent on the student payroll, according to these figures, the UNPD went into the red $9,394 last year not including the $13,049 that went into the special account.

There were 12,934 UNPD parking permits issued last year which breaks down to 6,467 per semester.

"The problem is," said Shumway, "where do you put them?" There are 3,600 parking spaces on campus, not including the parking by the medical building.

Zones on campus have been established for parking, he said, and it is the policeman's responsibility to enforce them.

Shumway explained how the parking laws are established. The Parking and Traffic Board, which answers directly to Dr. Edward L. Pine, makes recommendations. Their recommendations then go to President Crowley. If he approves them, he sends them to the Senate. The Senate votes on them and the recommendations move to the Board of Regents which gives them to Larry Lesley, who in turn returns them to the Board of Regents. The board then sends them to the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State sends them to the Chancellor, (Dr. Donald H. Baepfer, for approval, and then, they land on Police Chief Shumway's desk.

Mondays and Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. about 50 percent of the students, faculty and staff are here with about 6,000 vehicles, said Shumway. "We don't write 1,000 parking tickets on Monday and Wednesday but that's where the problem is at."

Shumway said he wasn't sure what could be done about the parking problem, but he did say that changing the fees for tickets from $3 to 10 cents wouldn't cure the problem. It would mean that instead of getting one ticket, a student would get 30.

"Those who are going to park legally will, and those who are going to violate it will," he said.

Home Economics, Sen. Liz Morrow asked Shumway about the feasibility of high rise parking. He in turn replied that a group of engineers, three years ago, estimated the cost of constructing a 1,000 vehicle high rise at $4.5 million. At 10 percent interest a year, he continued, it would cost each vehicle owner parking there $450 a year.

Shumway said he suggested buying the property that the Race Relations Center is on for parking. He said that he also suggested blacktopping a part of the San Rafael Ranch.

ASUN President Dave Ritch said that the proposed sports complex will take up much of the stadium parking but that it will be replaced by the parking by the medical building. Shumway said the parking there could be improved.

In answer to Arts & Science Sen. Stephanie Brown's question as to how the Senate can help solve the parking problem, Shumway replied, "I think the fees should be raised." He said Las Vegas has cheaper fees than UNR and that $1 is really quite ridiculous. It's nice, he said, but most places have to pay for the parking. Shumway also said that three students interested in improving parking should be put on the Parking and Traffic Board. Students have an equal vote on that board.

Shumway replied to a statement about meters on campus costing more than Reno's. Meters downtown are checked about every hour, he said, and the UNPD may start issuing citations every half hour.

Arts & Science Sen. Terrence Flannigan asked Shumway about the people who receive tickets and the tickets are removed without the owner's knowledge. The fine increases, and when the student goes to register, he or she receives a stop card.

"I really don't believe that happens," Shumway replied. He said he's never seen anyone do it and he can't believe anyone could be so mean as to do that to a friend or fellow student. An appeal would be granted to contest the doubling of the original ticket, he said, but the UNPD has nothing to do with the appeals as they go before the Parking and Traffic Board. Shumway said, UNPD has purchased a computer to try and cut down on mistakes.

He said that of approximately 2,000 various appeals filed last year, half were visitor appeals and that $960 was all that was paid back last year.

Education Sen. Al Babb inquired about a shuttle bus system set up between the stadium parking area and the main campus. Shumway's reply was that it has been tried on a number of campuses but has never been very successful because of the cost of operating it.

ASUN refuses Schivo rock concert

K.J. Evans

The ASUN Activities Board, at its Tuesday meeting, killed a proposal by Michael Schivo and High Sierra Concerts for a Sept. 29 concert which would have featured the East Coast Rock Group South Side Johnny and the Asbury Jukes.

The Board refused to act on the proposal because Schivo had failed to submit the proposal by the board's deadline. According to the Board's by-laws, a proposal must be submitted in writing no later than 2:30 p.m. on the day the Board is to meet in order to be acted upon.

Schivo appeared agitated by the decision and at one point became involved in an argument with ASUN Business Manager Gary Brown over whether or not he had complied with the rule.

Schivo claimed ignorance of board policy, and said that he didn't think anyone else on the Board understood the rules either.

ASUN President Dave Ritch was skeptical of that statement. "Every year these guys think they have to try out the new board," he said.

Some of the tension between Schivo and the Board seemed to emanate from a general feeling that Schivo is not delivering the types of concerts that appeal to the university community.

Vice President for Activities Elizabeth Contri said that only about 200 UNR students attended the recent AC/DC concert at the old gym and that the average age of the other 1900 concert goers was around 14-15.

Schivo claimed that he is often forced to make deals whereby he will book a less desirable act in order to get the one he really wants. He said that AC/DC was the product of such a trade-off and called the concert a "loser" claiming that he made only $500 on it.

Contri suggested that ASUN promote its own concerts when they are to be held in the gym. But the suggestion was not acted upon when it was pointed out that such a move would result in higher costs, and would limit the availability of entertainment.

Assistant Dean of Students Pete Perriera expressed concern about the unruliness of concert crowds after receiving numerous complaints from administrative officials about the noise level the concert generated, and the debris left in the gym area by the concert goers.

President Dave Ritch pointed out that the temperament of a crowd could possibly be predicted by looking at the type of music they come to hear, and suggested that a "punk rock" group like AC/DC would probably attract a rowdier crowd.

In other business, the Board approved a Sept. 20 concert featuring the Jerry Jeff Walker band and the Sutro Symphony Orchestra. The concert will be at the Old Gym and is part of UNR's 1979 homecoming celebration.

Morrill Hall rededicated

Fourteen years of public and private commitment were recognized Wednesday night at the re-dedication of Morrill Hall at UNR. About 125 major donors, public officials and UNR administrators gathered to honor those who played important roles in securing funds for restoration of the 94-year-old structure—UNR's oldest.

It was in 1965 that Virginia Phillips, representing the alumni association, approached President N. Edd Miller to request approval to raise funds to restore a condemned Morrill Hall.

City, state and federal funds were raised, and donations were received from alumni and other members of the community.

Restoration began in 1978 and finally the basement and first two floors were completed at a cost of over $800,000.

All that remains to be funded are plans for a third floor museum, an elevator, window coverings and furnishings.

According to Douglas Byington, chairman of the Morrill Hall Restoration Committee, the re-dedication was an opportunity for the alumni association to thank those who donated time, money and talent to the project.

During the informal reception, a pen and ink sketch of Morrill Hall, drawn by locally-recognized artist Tom Summers, was unveiled. Summers was commissioned by the alumni association in April after a number of artists were considered. The official drawing will be displayed in Morrill Hall's reception lounge.

Also on display was the trowel used by the Grand Lodge of the Masons to lay the original cornerstone Sept. 12, 1885. The Masons loaned the sterling silver trowel to the university for the occasion.

The Morrill Hall bell, sporting a new clapper, was rung by hand in honor of the occasion.

Refreshments included a cake decorated with a picture of Morrill Hall and a cheese carving in the shape of the restored building.

The public open house is set for Saturday, Oct. 20 in conjunction with homecoming activities.

Editor:

In the Friday, Sept. 7th issue of Sagebrush, Michael Dean reported the following about Dave Ritch and his statements at the Sept. 5th ASUN Senate meeting: "ASUN President Dave Ritch reported that at the last Board of Regents' meeting in Las Vegas, a student petition was presented to save UNR's Quad. The Board of Regents has no intention of destroying it, he said." May I offer the following observations for Mr. Ritch's benefit?

First of all, the regents may not want to destroy the Quad, but they might acquiesce in a master plan which will have the effect of being destructive of it unless such efforts as the student petition bring it to their attention. So far all demolitions, including that of the Hancock Building on the Quad, have been exactly according to the outlines of the April, 1978 master plan, the same one that calls for the demolition of the Old Journalism Building, Frandsen Humanities, and the Mackay Rock Museum. This plan has in no way been officially modified.

The History Club, which presented the petition to the regents for students, seems to be indicating that students should be allowed not just participatory democracy, but anticipatory democracy. They are wary after bad experiences with master-planning in the city at large, and after much of the campus has already been harmed by previous plans. They want to be able to comment on, and to propose creative ideas for the restoration of, historic buildings before plans for their demolition are set in concrete. A policy for a demolition can be decided upon far in advance of the arrival of any wrecking crew—even two or three years in advance. If a building is to be restored, funds must be sought over months or even years.

I hope Mr. Ritch will eventually support the History Club's petition. Thank you.

Sincerely yours,
Paul Strickland

Juniper escort service

Donna Valenti

Twenty-five Juniper Hall residents have organized an on-campus escort service for the women in Manzanita and Juniper Halls who may have to walk across campus at night.

The way the service works, according to coordinator Brian Hinsey, is the women arrange for someone from the list of 25 names to escort them. They go down the list until they find somebody, he said.

"Why should a girl be scared to go out of her room when there is no reason for her to be. She has this outlet (escort service) to get out," said the 20-year-old metallurgical engineering major.

Hinsey said the escort service was initiated last semester after a girl was reportedly assaulted one night in Manzanita Bowl. The men expressed genuine concern for the safety of the girls in their dorm last year, and they voice the same concern now.

"It really upsets me to see a girl walking by herself at night. You don't know who is lurking around. Police have arrested men wanted in other states who were near the campus," said John Bokelmann, a third-floor Juniper resident assistant.

Said tuba player Fred Steinle, "I just sort of want to help the girls out." Ed Zayas, also a freshman, added, "I don't want to see the girls get hurt or anything." Zayas, is an electrical engineering major.

A criminal justice major, Tony De Crona, said he sees the escort service as preventive medicine. "It's the possibility that something may happen. Once it happens, the girls can't go back in time," explained De Crona, second floor Juniper resident assistant.

On a lighter note, the guys in Juniper said they were involved in the escort service to meet girls. Said 23-year-old Bruce Visser. "Seriously, the first week we were here no one knew anybody, and we want to meet chicks." His roommate agreed, smiling.

"It's a way to meet different people. It works both ways, guys to meet girls and girls to meet guys, especially for shy people," said Hinsey, grinning.

Many of the escorts have not received calls, he said. "We do have this organized. Now it is just up to the girls to use it," added the coordinator. Hinsey said one reason for the lack of callers is the girls in Manzanita and Juniper don't know about the service yet. Bokelmann, offering another reason, said maybe the girls are afraid to call people they don't know.

"The girls do control who they call. They can ask their friends who they would recommend as an escort," pointed out Bokelmann.

"The idea of the escort service is that it is among friends. The guy lives close by and the girls usually know him," said Hinsey.

Bokelmann and De Crona both liked the idea of expanding the escort service to all the dorms or campus-wide. Hinsey suggested two ways this could be done: first, the other dorms could initiate their own escort services; second, if it is an emergency, the Juniper Hall escorts could walk the girls across campus.

Visser, a junior psychology major, said he preferred the service to remain small and within a group of friends. A transfer student from Florida, he said he did not understand why a campus this small would even need this type of service.

"It seems kind of screwy that a campus this size, we can't walk around,(without worrying)!" he said.

The Juniper Hall escorts asked for one rule of courtesy. No 4 a.m. calls without advance notice, please.

Potential energy in Nevada

Sharon Macdonald

"There is a serious shortage of energy resources in this country and Nevada has a potential for reaching out and making a significant contribution to the solution of the energy problem," said Dr. Edmund Barmettler, Assistant to the Dean, at UNR's Agricultural College.

The Brady Hot Springs, located 49 miles from the university, is where over two weeks ago there was found to be a potential energy source that could make the state of Nevada totally energy independent," commented Barmettler.

"This used to be a rest-stop between Lovelock and Reno and provided a spa and cabins," said Dr. Barmettler. "In recent years the question has been how to utilize the underground resources."

Things appear to be on the verge of happening at Brady Hot Springs of Fernley on I-80 and the UNR College of Agriculture is likely to be involved.

Barmettler said, "After long discussions and much agonizing, the thing to do was to provide a resource for those areas of agriculture that were in danger of curtailment. Financial and other arrangements have been made at the Brady site by Geothermal Food Processors Inc. to develop new activities to be energized by geothermal fluids. At the present," he continued, "various details are being worked out to see if both fresh and saltwater prawns can be grown in ponds heated by the naturally hot water at the Brady Hot Springs."

Barmettler explained that the Geothermal Food Processors plan to expand the operation to the building of greenhouses and the dehydrating of onions, carrots and celery and the use of algae ponds. He went on to explain the "energy cascade" concept that is forming the base of planned operations at Brady.

This means that energy can be multiplied in use since seldom does any single use require all the heat developed."

Barmettler noted that he, Dr. Joseph Howland professor of agronomy at the Agriculture College, Dr. Taylor and others will be involved in the developing of possible research to be conducted on the area."

"This new discovery was found only two weeks ago and the pipes are going underground this week," said Dr. Barmettler.

"We're facing a new era and we must capitalize on the technology so that there can be long range benefits to the state of Nevada."

Problems in Pregnancy

Kathleen Conaboy

Drugs, alcohol, nutrition and smoking have documented negative effects on developing fetuses, newborn infants, and maturing children, according to Dr. H.C. Huneycutt, Reno obstetrician and gynecologist.

Dr. Huneycutt outlined these effects as he addressed a symposium on "Normal Pregnancy and its Potential Problems" sponsored by Continuing Education and the School of Medical Sciences at UNR. The doctor is an assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the medical school.

Dr. Huneycutt said, "The human being and the infant are very complex and are influenced by many factors. We have to consider what the mother does during her pregnancy and at the same time be aware of her past medical history and her emotional state."

Many syndromes being documented today were observed by the ancients, Dr. Huneycutt mentioned. Nearly 2,000 years ago, Plutarch stated, "One drunkard begets another," and Aristotle said that "foolish, drunken or hair-brained women, for the most part, bring forth children like unto themselves."

These observations, Dr. Huneycutt said, relate to the fetal alcohol syndrome (FAS) found in infants of mothers who consume large amounts of alcohol during pregnancy. FAS is characterized by brain deficiencies, facial abnormalities, cardiac defects, joint malformations and mental deficiency.

Further, he explained, children with FAS may be exceptionally hyperactive in the neonatal (newborn) period, sleeping only a few hours during any 24-hour period, and have an average verbal IQ of 55 when testable.

In outlining unacceptable levels of alcohol ingestion, Huneycutt said some studies indicate that two drinks in the first week after conception have caused the baby to be adversely affected. Other studies he cited indicate there are effects in the third through fifth months of pregnancy due to chronic ingestion of three ounces of alcohol per day for greater than a week.

A further study, still in progress, indicates that two ounces of alcohol ingested chronically during the first trimester of the pregnancy causes up to 40 percent of fetuses to have some of the five symptoms of fetal alcohol syndrome, he said.

"If the mother drinks less than one ounce of alcohol per day, the risk appears to be low, but not zero," Huneycutt cautioned. "For comparison, one ounce of alcohol equals two ounces of bourbon, eight ounces of wine or 16 ounces of beer."

Caffeine, too, can have an adverse effect on infants, the Reno physician mentioned. Prospective mothers who drink more than 6 to 8 cups of coffee are prone to a greater loss of pregnancy through spontaneous abortion and suffer an increased incidence of stillborn or premature infants, he explained.

Huneycutt said that smoking, too, has been conclusively linked to lower birthweights and an increased incidence of prematurity.

Although some effects may not be noticeable at birth, the long-term effects of smoking during pregnancy reveal that progressive weight gain and the circumference of the head as it develops are behind in the children of smokers versus non-smokers," Huneycutt explained.

In general developmental ability, he noted, children of smokers lose five to eight points on IQ scales and usually test several months behind their healthier peers in reading and mathematical abilities.

"We have to remember," Huneycutt emphasized, "that when the mother smokes, so does the fetus. If, however, the mother stopped smoking during the first trimester of the pregnancy, the incidence of all the above mentioned problems greatly decreases."

For personal reasons

Regent resigns

Laurel Jackson

Brenda Mason, one of the University of Nevada Regents, officially resigned by letter to Gov. Robert List on Monday.

Ms. Mason's letter stated that she was "quitting for personal reasons." She will be continuing her law studies in San Diego and devoting more time to raising her son.

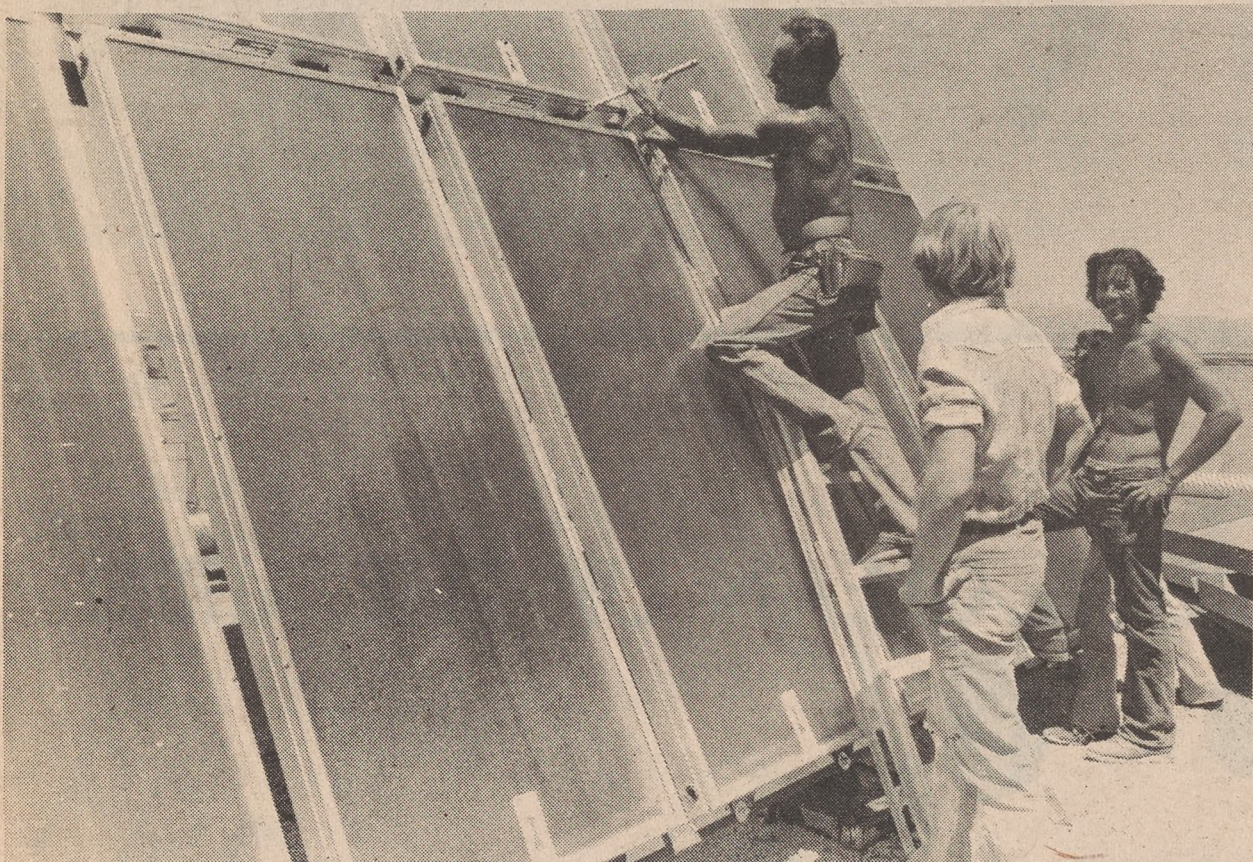

An appointee for the vacancy must be made by Gov. List for the remaining portion of her term. An election for two additional years of the term will be held in the next general election of November 1980.

Mason represented North Las Vegas and parts of western Las Vegas for four years on the board, and was the only black member. According to List's executive assistant, Bill Phillips, "The governor would like to fill the vacancy by the Sept. 21 Board of Regents meeting in Las Vegas, but wishes not to sacrifice choosing the best representative for the area to meet a time limit."

When questioned about the possibility of the appointee being a minority or a woman, Phillips stated that "it is not a sure thing the appointee would be a minority," and added that "the area Mason represented has a large black community and a number of minorities."

Solar water operational

K.J. Evans

The solar hot water system in Nye Hall became operational Sept. 7, supplying an estimated 60 percent of that hall's domestic hot water, according to Project Engineer Buzz Nelson of the UNR physical plant.

Nelson said that the only work remaining to be done on the system is adjustments and balancing of the system's instrumentation.

Other alternative energy projects are in the future if federal funds become available, as they did in the case of the Nye Hall project, Nelson said.

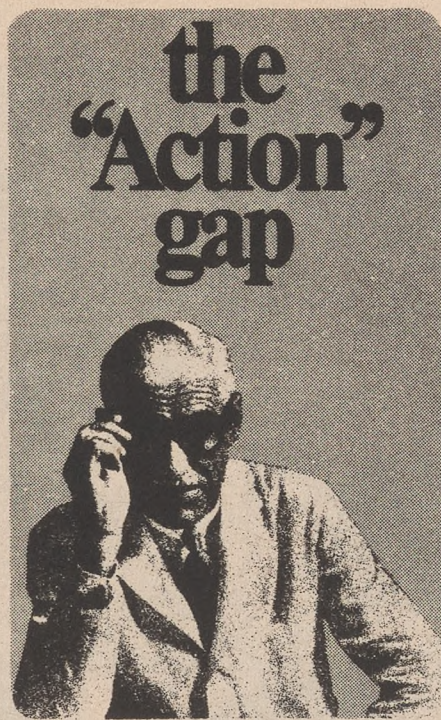

"I'm staying in touch with HUD to make sure we know about any money that becomes available for this sort of thing," Nelson said.

A solar heater for the pool and pool area in the Lombardi Recreation Building is one of the projects such funding might be used for, said Nelson, as well as more domestic hot water for the residence halls. He mentioned the College Inn and Juniper Hall as possibilities.

Another alternative energy plan being considered is that of converting the physical plant's main boiler from natural gas and diesel fuel to number six crude oil, which is used oil that is drained out of automobile crankcases.

Nelson said that the conversion would make boiler operations "considerably cheaper" and pointed out that the oil would not cause any new air pollution, since it is a low-sulfur fuel.

Cancer of the colon and rectum will strike 75,000 Americans this year. Survival rate is only about 44%. But early diagnosis and prompt treatment could save almost 75%. How can this critical gap be closed?

With proctoscopy. This is why we urge its inclusion in annual checkups, and make available pertinent materials for layman and physician. We are closing the "communications" gap.

The "action" gap can be closed with joint action by people and their doctors.

Senate scene

Michael Dean

ASUN President Dave Ritch reported that the Board of Regents will be meeting in Las Vegas Sept. 21, and there is a bulletin board in his office for progress reports of Senate committees.

Jerry Jeff Walker and the Sutro Symphony Orchestra were approved to play Oct. 20 (Homecoming night) in the Old Gym.

Vice President of Activities, Elizabeth Contri reported that the Activities Board has discussed not having any more hard and punk rock concerts in the Old Gym because only 234 students showed up at the AC/DC concert and it might not be worth the problems involved. She reminded the Senators not to forget the Boogie Bash Dance tonight from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in front of Lombardi Recreation Building.

Heidi Waterman, vice president of Finance and Publications, moved for the Senate to approve an emergency action of $6,200 for the publication, Brushfire. Home Economics Sen. Liz Morrow made a suggestion to Brushfire editor Carol Schaecceterle to reduce the size of the Brushfire if there is not enough content to warrant a larger work. Ritch intervened saying that the Senate should not become involved in the make-up of a publication, but should approve or disapprove the budget proposal. The budget was approved.

Medical Science Senators Bob Mays and Richard Moore reported that a petition, to be circulated beginning yesterday in the Medical Science classes, would recommend to the Faculty Senate that further investigation of the Medical Sciences Undergraduate program be instituted before it is abolished. The petition will be in the Jot Travis Student Union Monday, said Moore.

The 107 Institutional Studies and Budget Committee made a decision without student input, Moore explained, and that decision affects premedical, pre dental, physical therapy and physical education programs. The petition was approved and endorsed by the Senate.

A student evaluation of the faculty form has been approved by the Faculty Senate, reported Sen. Devin Hampson. It will be used as a pilot. If the form is done jointly with UNLV, the four colleges chosen are: business, UNR, Arts and Science, UNR, Hotel Management, UNLV, Arts and Letters, UNLV. Hampson said that if there isn't time to institute the program this semester, it will be done the following semester.

Business Sen. Gary Fuller made a motion to approve the go-ahead on a car pooling map to be put up in the Jot Travis Student Union. The map will include Reno and the outlying areas. Any student who desires a ride, or help with expenses for vehicle operation, will be able to leave his or her name, phone number and class schedule on the map. Students, by checking back, will be able to contact others in their area interested in sharing, giving, or taking rides to and from school. Fuller said the map will be put up Monday and the following two weeks will be the sign up weeks for car pooling.

October Concert series

Ron Ellis

The UNR Performing Artists Series, sponsored by the Public Occasions Board, begins its 1979-80 concert season when the chamber ensemble Vermeer Quartet presents a performance Oct. 4 in the Church Fine Arts Theater on the UNR campus.

The quartet, founded in 1970, will perform works of past masters such as Beethoven, Schubert and Mozart and has won wide acclaim during its first tours of the United States and Europe.

They have performed their unique music in such illustrious places as the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto (Italy) and in New York City in Carnegie Hall and the Lincoln Center.

The New York Times, in describing the quartet, stated, "they're among the top quartets active today. They manage to sound both matched and individual. There are a number of young quartets that have a luscious tone and precisions to spare. The Vermeer has that and soul, as well."

The members of the quartet—Shmuel Ashkenasi and Pierre Menard, violinists; Jerry Horner, violist; and Marc Johnson, cellist—bring a broad solo and chamber music experience to their performances and all are members of the Resident Artists Faculty of Northern Illinois University.

Tickets for the concert are $4 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens. Season tickets for the five-performance series can also be purchased at $15 for adults and $8 for students and senior citizens and are available in the activities office in the UNR student union or the Public Occasions Board office in Morrill Hall.

The other concert performances in the series include the following:

—Oct. 30 (Pine Auditorium, UNR student union) Quintetto Boccherini, a five-piece ensemble which in the past two decades has "restored to its rightful place the music of the long-forgotten master composer, Luigi Boccherini."

—Jan. 21 (Church Fine Arts Theatre) Toulouse Chamber Orchestra, which has achieved international renown and has become known as one of the world's greatest chamber orchestras. Soloist Michel DeBost, who is considered by many to be "one of the finest flutists of our time," will perform with the orchestra.

—Feb. 17 (Pine Auditorium) Nicanor Zabaleta, world-famous harpist who has played soloist for more than 200 symphonies throughout the world including the Berlin, Budapest, Israel and New York City philharmonics.

—March 11 (Pioneer Theatre Auditorium) Utah Symphony, conducted by the Public Occasions Board and the Sierra Arts Foundation.

For more information about the Performing Artists Series or tickets, contact the UNR Activities Offices (784-6505) or the Public Occasions Board (784-4893).

Beginning in our next issue, Sagebrush will present "The Gripe Vine," a new consumer service column dedicated to cutting red tape, investigating consumer gripes and answering questions or complaints about the university.

So, if a merchant rips you off, or you are just mystified by the way the university works (or doesn't work), do the next best thing; bitch about it!

Bring gripes to the Sagebrush in the Mechanical Arts Building on the Quad or mail them to us at P.O. Box 8037,

At 8:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 21, Reno Little Theater will raise the curtain on their production of "Fools Paradise," a farce by Philip King. The play will run for six performances, and is the opener for this, the 45th season. That's 45 continuous years of community theater.

As a community theater, RLT welcomes participation from anyone in the area. If you have ever had a desire to play a part on stage, or do some backstage work—come on down and try out. No experience is necessary, and training will be given.

Season tickets are available for $15, but students and senior citizens can get one for just $10. The season ticket is good for any combination of six admissions, which works out to just $1.67 a show, a bargain price for entertainment.

Season tickets are available from David Hettich in Frandsen Humanities, Room 17, or from Vonnie Kirk or Will Hogan at the Center for Religion and Life.

There will be six productions at RLT between "Fools Paradise" and the closing play, "Thurber Carnival," in May. Come on down and watch the fun, or try out for a part, or just learn about theater backstage at RLT—on the corner of 7th and North Sierra.

SHORT TAKES

EE design course

A course dealing with the design of microprocessors, which are the central processing units of computers, will be offered this fall at UNR.

Sponsored by UNR's College of Engineering and division of continuing education, the course is geared to answer basic questions concerning hardware, software and applications of the microprocessor.

The course, taught by Dr. D.K. Fronek, UNR associate professor of electrical engineering, is divided into two segments—a non-credit introductory seminar and the class itself.

The intensive two-day seminar, scheduled for Sept. 24-25, 8 a.m.-5 p.m., in the Jot Travis Student Union, will provide an overview and introduction to microprocessors.

According to Fronek, the design class, listed in the fall schedule as Electrical Engineering (EE) 487/687, will take an in-depth look into the uses and applications of the computer's central processing unit.

The ten-week class, which is set for Wednesday afternoons from 2-5 beginning Sept. 26, will allow management-level engineers the opportunity to better understand the microprocessors, explained Fronek.

This course is the first in a series that the university will be offering to the general public as a result of a survey which was conducted by UNR last spring among a number of Northern Nevada businesses concerning their interests in special course offerings for non-traditional students, such as businessmen.

The fee for the seminar is $100, and the cost of the entire course, which includes the seminar, ten weeks of instruction worth three college credit hours, the text and other handout materials is $395.

Registration for the class will be limited to 20 people, so preregistration is imperative, added Fronek. Interested people must contact UNR's division of continuing education before Sept. 21. Actual registration is set for Sept. 24, 8 a.m., in the Ed Pine Auditorium of the student union.

For more information concerning registration, contact in person or by telephone, Jan Douglass, UNR's division of continuing education, Room 327 of the College Inn (784-4046).

For more information about course content, contact Dr. D.K. Fronek of the electrical engineering department, UNR College of Engineering (784-6927).

spoke on behalf of the alumni of the Delta Pi chapter. Chapter officers making brief presentations included President Michael Langton, Senior Vice President Scott Koepf, Vice President of Pledge Education Kathleen Hallamore, Chancellor Cliff Young, and Treasurer Ethel Bennett. In addition, President Langton presented certificates to the initiates of last spring semester's pledge class.

The Pledge Pinning Ceremony will take place on Monday September 17, 1979, in RBA 106-A. Semi-formal attire is requested of all pledges and active members attending the ceremony.

Open at night

The Snack Bar in Jot Travis Student Union is now open from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays for the entire semester.

Business frat

The Delta Pi Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi hosted "Meet The Chapter" on Monday, September 10, 1979. This event was held in conjunction with the professional business fraternity's fall semester rush activities.

A slide show was presented, and a number of members spoke on behalf of the fraternity so prospective pledges might become more familiar with the organization. Dr. Donald Winne, faculty advisor of the fraternity, spoke on the topic "Why Go It Alone?" Monica Powers and Ronald McDowell

Topic is health

Recruitment and retention of health professionals in rural areas, an issue of high visibility and much concern lately in many Nevada communities, is the topic of a one-day workshop to be held at the Fallon Nugget Convention Center Sept. 14.

The program, which is sponsored by the Nevada State Hospital Association, the office of rural health at the UNR School of Medical Sciences, the Nevada State Health Coordinating Council and the State Health Planning and Development Agency, will be conducted by Dr. James Bernstein and the staff of the North Carolina Office of Rural Health.

Richter at Center

Lacy Bell Richter, Counselor for Christian Science students, will be at the Center for Religion and Life on Thursdays, this semester, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., in the upstairs office. She will be happy to meet with Christian Scientists or anyone interested in learning more about this faith.

Many happies, Rabbi

Rabbi Abe Feinberg turned 80 years young last Sunday, and the day went quietly enough. In the evening, he was totally surprised by a group of about 100 friends that had gathered at the Twentieth Century Club, to wish him well. There was a fine buffet, a demonstration by the 8 to 80 folk dancers, and music for dancing by the Joe Rossi Band.

Feinberg is the resident rabbi at the Center for Religion and Life. He is hard at work completing a manuscript for delivery to his publisher this month, and is planning on taking a tour of the Holy Land in October.

Free Artemisias

Anyone who wishes to pick up a free copy of last year's 1978-79 Artemesia from the Activities Office in the JTU is invited to do so. The hard-bound volumes are available because they were left over from distribution last spring.

The Artemesia is the yearbook of the Associate Students of UNR. Anyone, including new students, may pick up one copy of the book, which was edited by Sherri Humphreys.

History buffs

The UNR History Club holds its first meeting of the fall semester Thursday, September 20, at 12:15 in Room 117 of the Mack Social Sciences Building. According to Advisor John Folkles, the meeting's agenda will include the election of new officers and methods of promoting the club.

In the recent past, the History Club has sponsored such activities as visits to local or regional historical sites, colloquia on historical topics, trips to San Francisco museum exhibits and beer and pizza parties. The group also arranges faculty-student get-togethers and formal lectures.

Anyone interested in any aspect of history or historic preservation, regardless of his or her major, is invited to attend meetings and become a member.

Prelegals meet

Professor Don Driggs will conduct an informational meeting for prelegal students at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, September 19, in MSS 119.

The LSAT, law schools, and the WICHE support program will be discussed. All interested students are invited to attend.

Blue Mailbox opens

The Blue Mailbox Coffeehouse, downstairs at the Center for Religion and Life, will be open this Saturday night from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. There will be a $1 admission charge for coffee or tea and listening to whatever entertainers can make it on down. All the old hands are invited to show up, and new ones will be most welcome.

Happy hour profs

The National Society of Professors is hosting a happy hour for UNR faculty, staff and administrators on the second floor of Morrill Hall, Friday, Sept. 14, from 4-6 p.m.

Homecoming plans

It's time again to begin planning the 1979 Homecoming Activities for UNR. The first organizational meeting of the Homecoming Committee will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 18, at 5:15 p.m. in the Ingersoll Room of the Jot Travis Student Union.

Any Student interested in being on this committee to plan the events for the week (which will be Oct. 15-20) is invited to attend the meeting. This year's theme is "The Sky Is the Limit."

Pass the word around to any interested students and organizations. Your help is appreciated! If you have any questions, contact Bob Mays at the ASUN Office at 784-6589.

Mining law

A short course concerning mining law will be offered Sept. 21 and 22 by the UNR Mackay School of Mines and Continuing Education, UNR, at the Convention Center, Eldorado Hotel, Reno.

The course, which is a detailed treatment of the location system of mining law, includes such topics as mineral discovery, location procedures, annual assessment work and patent of mining claims during the first session.

Particular emphasis will be given to the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) recoordination regulations, and there will be a brief discussion of leasable and common varieties minerals.

For more information about the course, contact Jan Douglass, program coordinator, continuing education, UNR (784-4046).

Boogie bash

The cement plaza in front of the Lombardi Recreation Building is the site of tonight's "Rip the Rebels Boogie Bash." Sponsored by the ASUN Activities Board, this spiritual event is scheduled to help students tune up for tomorrow's Silver Bowl between the UNR Wolf Pack and UNLV in Mackay Stadium.

Live music will be provided by Timbre, a group of local rockers, and free hot dogs and soft drinks will be given away. Blue Key will be selling 50 cent beers to any student over 21.

The Bash was originally scheduled as a chance to meet the members of the Wolfpack football team, but the players and coaches will not be able to attend because of a team meeting.

The dance will be held outdoors at 9 p.m. and will last until 1 a.m.

StudentsRecords

The 1979 issue of the New Student Record for the University of Nevada-Reno is now available from the Activities Office in the Jot Travis Student Union. The Record is an orientative photo directory of all new students at UNR and was paid for by student subscribers earlier this summer. The publication is either hard or soft-bound, depending on what each student requested.

Discount tickets

Discount tickets worth considerable savings at three local movie theatres are available to all UNR students from the University Ticket Office in the Jot Travis Student Union.

The tickets apply to the General Cinema in the Oddie Mall, to the Mann Theatres in the Old Town Mall and the the MGM Grand Hotel Theatres. Assistant Dean of Students, Pete Perriera, stated that he is currently trying to get a student discount at the downtown United Artists Theatres.

The discount ticket program is in its second year after being initiated by ASUN. The tickets are available at the Activities Office from 8 a.m. until 4:45 p.m. Monday thru Friday.

An atmosphere of football

John Acree

As I entered the football coaches' reception room in the Old Gym, I sensed an aura around me of constant mellow. The cool, dard-blue walls and matching vinyl chairs seem to fuse with the air conditioning and dull florescent lighting. Pictures of former UNR greats decorated the four walls and I felt as if I were in a museum, expecting Brahms or Tchaikovsky to vibrate through the intercom.

Then I entered Chris Ault's office.

I felt transposed into an atmosphere of pure football. The office was surprisingly conservative considering Ault's personality.

Coach Ault entered the room, greeted me, and we both sat down. The man was remarkably clean cut, reminding me of a short Pat Boone. Ault, however, is far from being a straight Pat Boone. The sparkle in his eye suggests a few unshared secrets. He speaks calmly but firmly, and always on a first name basis.

"Well John," Ault began. "What can I do for you?"

Let's start with the usual questions Coach. Last week against Idaho State, did the game go as well as expected?"

"Not quite, John. The first half was played well. We moved the ball, and generally, the team played good hard-nose football. It was the second half that was disappointing. Our skilled players made too many mistakes such as dropping passes and fumbling. We're going to have to be more consistent with our offensive tendencies."

"How about the defense?" I asked rather slowly so as to rest my metacarpal bones.

"The defense played well," he answered. "The linebackers filled well and the defensive backs kept to their assignments. The pass rush wasn't quite what we had expected, but we have big boys up front. They'll come around."

I know, I know, you readers have heard all this before. But I had to loosen this guy up before we got into the heavy reporting.

"Alright Chris, next Saturday is the biggest non-conference game of the year, Las Vegas. What will be the game plan against the Rebels?" I was hoping for some kind of sign about a new secret play.

"I can't really say that we have a specific game plan, John." Ault leaned back and smiled. He knew what I was after.

"We'll start just like always, with a balanced attack. Whatever they give us, we'll take. This year's Vegas team is probably the best they have ever had. They're a division I-A football team (compared to Reno which is I-AA). They receive 18 more scholarships than we do. They can recruit more and supposedly better players. We have got to play super super good football to beat these guys."

I kicked back in my chair. This interview stuff isn't as bad as they say.

"Now that the hard-core reporting is out of the way" I continued, I want to ask you about the student body and...

Doggone it John, I'm glad you asked that. Last Saturday, and I'm not kidding, last Saturday, the spirit those kids showed was the best since I've been here. It made me feel super and I'll guarantee you this; it made our players feel super too. To see all those kids come together and pull for one common goal, it was great, just great.

"That's one of our goals here at Reno. The football team is an ex-attention of the student body, and if we can unite these two aspects of the university, well, we've accomplished one of the things we set out to do. When we get a turnout like last week, we know we're on the right track.

Doggone it John,

"I'm glad you asked about that."

"I can't wait until this Saturday. All those kids running around yelling 'That's our team! Our Wolf Pack!' I'll tell you what, it fires the team up, it fires the coaches up, it's going to be super, just super."

When he stopped talking, I realized that I wasn't writing anymore. I was sitting on the edge of my seat, mouth half open, eyes fixed on his, waiting for more.

"Is there anything else John?"
"Ahhhh...no, no, that should do it. Thank you Coach, and good luck Saturday."

"Hey big guy, thank you. Feel free to drop by anytime and we'll see you Saturday afternoon."

I left his office and walked through the air conditioned corridor to the parking lot.

For some reason, I wanted to drop into a three-point stance and tackle the parking meter.

Gainer

Frank Hawkins quietly crept by Earnie O'Leary's career rushing record against Idaho State Saturday, making Hawkins the top ground gainer in UNR history. Hawkins ran for 168 yards in 27 carries, giving him a career total of 2,168 yards.

O'Leary took four seasons to accumulate the old record of 2,133 yards, a record that Hawkins has reached with and passed in a little more than two full seasons with the Wolf Pack.

Hawkins, a junior fullback from Western High School in Las Vegas, again credited UNR's offensive linemen David Hann (tackle), Roberto Selden (guard), Rick Pettenger (guard), Eric Sanders (tackle), Tom Crowell (center) and former Douglas High School star Todd Wilcks (reserve guard) for most of his success.

Women interested in trying out for the UNR women's tennis team should meet in the football film room on the lower level of the old gym Monday, Sept. 17, at 2:30 p.m.

Rebels due

This Saturday brings sister school Las Vegas up to Reno and you can bet the Rebels will be looking for blood. The Wolf Pack won big last year, beating the Rebels on their home field 23-14, bringing back the coveted Fremont Cannon in the process.

Vegas comes to Reno after a big opening win over Cal State Fullerton last Saturday.

The Rebels lead the series with Reno 6-4-0 and bring with them 48 lettermen from last year's team. Some key players for Las Vegas include Leon Walker, fullback; Ron Crews, defensive end; Michael Morton, running back; and Jim Gaetano, kicker.

Purcell to coach gal's basketball

Maureen Henderson

Richard Purcell is the new UNR women's basketball team coach this year. And, if his past record of coaching is any indication of this year's team performance, winning the Nationals is only a shot away for the team.

Purcell spent the last two years in Iowa working at a business that he started.

"I really missed coaching and basketball," Purcell said. "So when this job opened up here, I decided to take it. Everything has just worked out great."

The 41-year-old Purcell began his career in 1964 as a high school coach. Since then, Purcell's coaching experience has included jobs at Cal-Poly, for six years, coaching men's basketball; a year at University of Pacific in charge of women's track; and six years at Arizona State as head coach of the women's track and field team.

Purcell has coached, both basketball and track, for some 15 years and has never had a losing season. This is quite an accomplishment and an added plus for the women's basketball team. More than 30 women tried out for the team, but Purcell says he wants to cut the team down to 15.

"It's really hard for me to cut any of these girls," he said. "I never expected so many to come out, but I know I have to do it sooner or later."

The women's team is in division = II, but most of the schools that they will be playing against are in division = I. Usually, a division = I school is considered better than a division = II school, so this could hurt the team's chances of reaching the Nationals.

"I don't want to think about divisions," Coach Purcell said. "I think that my team is capable of winning the Nationals. If we want to do it, we are going to have to think we can beat every team we play."

The first game of the season will be played at home, in the Old Gym, against the University of Washington on Nov. 26.

Coach Purcell is very optimistic about his team's chances this year.

"We have size and we're young. I think we're going to surprise a lot of people. We're good and everyone on the team is very dedicated to playing their best."
